Steel Firms Give 406,000 $90,000,000 Pay Increase

4 Big Corporations Agree to 10 Cents An Hour Boost In Pact With C. I. O.

On the Labor Front

AGREEMENTS for ending two strikes, those of the Phelps-Dodge Copper Products Co. and the Snoqualmie Falls Lumber Co., were announced by the National Defense Mediation Board. Page 14.

SECRETARY of Labor Perkins entered the deadlocked negotiations over the bituminous coal tie-up, as more complaints of coal shortages hampering defense work were received. Page 11.

WAGE BOOSTS of 10 cents an hour were granted by United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet & Tube, adding more than $90,000,000 to the industry's annual pay roll. Page 1.

SENATOR MURDOCK defended union activities in a radio talk, as two Capitol committees arranged for hearings today into the effect of strikes on defense efforts. Page 11.

Steel Tie-up Averted

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, April 14.—Four hundred and six thousand steel workers, approximately two-thirds of the steel industry's total, were granted 10 cents an hour wage increases today by the United States Steel Corporation and three other large producers.

Similar increases previously had been extended to 20,000 employes of the National Steel Corporation and about 5,000 workers in smaller plants, bringing the $5.80 a day wage to a total of 431,000 workers.

On the basis of full time employment, the increase adds about $90,000,000 annually to the workmen's pay envelopes.

At New York, the United States Steel Corporation, estimating its 10 cents an hour wage increase for steel workers would add $62,000,000 yearly to direct operating costs, announced it was studying what effect these "heavy additional" expenses would have upon earnings and prices.

Price Rise Feared

Trade sources waited the outcome of the study in the belief a rise in steel prices to absorb rising operating costs would have far-reaching effect upon industrial pricing generally and the efforts of defense authorities to limit higher prices.

In addition to U. S. Steel, companies granting the increase today were Bethlehem Steel Co., second largest producer with 90,000 workers; Republic Steel Corporation, third largest with 50,000, and Youngtown Sheet & Tube Co., with 26,000.

In all cases, the increases were made retroactive to April 1. The workers will earn a minimum of 72½ cents an hour, giving them $4 extra for each 40-hour week.

Today's action by "Big Steel" and the others was expected to be followed within a short time by other companies, so that eventually about $125,000,000 will be added to the industry's pay rolls.

Union Loses Check-off

U. S. Steel's increase, along with improved vacations and other changes in working conditions, was embodied in a new contract signed by the C. I. O.'s Steel Workers Organizing Committee and the corporation after three weeks of negotiations.

Signing of the pact, essentially an extension of an agreement signed in 1937, averted a C. I. O. walkout which had been scheduled for Tues-

One Colorful Day in Washington:

Roosevelt, 32,000 See Yanks Beat Nats, 3-0, in Opener

President Roosevelt and 32,000 cash-paying fans saw major league baseball for 1941 launched at Griffith Stadium yesterday on the dreary note of a 3-0 defeat of the Nats by the New York Yankees.

Shortly after the President's opening pitch from the bunting-decked White House box, the Yankees moved into a 1-0 lead which they increased with single runs in the fifth and sixth innings.

It was Mario Russo's day. The young Yankee left-hander turned in a sparkling performance in beating the Nats back with three hits—all of them singles. He was the dominating figure of the contest, driving in one of the Yankees' runs with a two-base hit, and starting two double-plays on fierce drives hit back to the pitcher's box.

ANDERSON
Caught First Ball

For Dutch Leonard it was another cruel defeat. The Washington knuckle ball star gave up only six hits to the Yankees, and one of the three Yankee runs was the outgrowth of an error.

Joe DiMaggio fittingly celebrated his return to baseball as the American League's batting champion. In the first inning the Yankee slugger clouted a long three-bagger against the center field fence to drive in the first run of the game.

Every seat in Griffith Stadium was occupied as the President stood in his box to deliver his annual 3 o'clock pitch. Players of both teams reached eagerly for the toss which was a high lob toward the diamond. Thousands of fans in the stands were shirt-sleeved during the warmest afternoon of the year.

War Now in Decisive Phase, British Minister Tells D. A. R.

With the war "now in its decisive phase," this is "no doubt the crucial period" of the conflict at sea "and if the Germans do not strangle us now they never will," Neville M. Butler, Minister of Great Britain, declared last night in the keynote address on "The Price of Liberty" at the opening of the Fiftieth Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

With colorful pageantry—a procession of white-clad pages carrying the flags of the States and the United States—the congress opened in Constitution Hall with an audience of approximately 4,000.

SIR NEVILE
Addresses D. A. R.

"If the mounting passion for liberty in Britain can be matched by an equal intensity of feeling here, then I am bold enough to say that nothing which the might or craft of the enemy can do to us need cause us fear," Butler said.

The rarity of a Briton being invited to open D. A. R. Congress was noted at the outset by Butler, when he commented on the fact that he was speaking to an audience composed of "descendants of those determined patriots who, 150 years ago, put a forcible end to His Majesty's authority over the soil whereupon we meet." Laughter mixed with applause greeted that remark.

Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., of Annapolis, president general of the D. A. R., in her introduction of Butler said that the British people are fighting for the institutions of self-government which the founders of the United States fought to preserve, and that there is no

Record 53,258 Trample Eggs, Receive President's Greeting

The White House opened its big lawn to the egg rollers again yesterday, and within eight hours got a gross omelet—"but not one single complaint."

An all-time record number of rollers, 53,258, came to the open-yard invitation and 10 collapsed of heat exhaustion, 4 fainted, 73 got lost, several got nose bleeds, several got foreign bodies in their eyes, and one woman was treated for a chicken bone in the throat.

But there was no mischief.

"It set the all-time record, but never did police handle a crowd better. They had fun but we got not one single complaint," said Capt. Herbert L. Marcey, in charge of the White House police. He watched the last roller retire at 5 p. m., leaving behind yellow splotches on the lawn from the egg yolks, besides newspapers, lunch leftovers and an attendance record.

Seeing it for about two minutes from the south balcony, the President waved vigorously and said he would like to be down among it. His eye must have detected that most of the visitors were adults.

"I am not at all sure that the grownups don't enjoy this as much as the youngsters," he said.

"I am very glad," he continued, "to welcome you here on another of these occasions which through a great number of years have made Easter Monday quite memorable." Then he left. And easily half of the crowd left also. This was thought to have been the tourist section, because most of them carried cameras and won-

'Theatre' Premiere Is Brilliant On Both Sides of Footlights

Such a premiere as playwrights, actors and audiences dream of was celebrated in the National Theater last night, when John Golden's new production of "Theatre," starring Cornelia Otis Skinner, was presented for the first time before a metropolitan audience, after three preliminary performances in Wilmington on Friday and Saturday.

It was an evening of color and complete camaderie between those on the stage and those in attendance. These electric occasions occur only once in a blue moon. Last night's moon must have been blue.

There was distinction on both sides of the footlights. With Miss Skinner, Arthur Margetson, Viola Roache, Frederick Bradlee, Carl Harbord and the other members of the cast giving fine performances, there were those in the audience, had the general public known it, who might have attracted comparable attention.

In the fourth row center of the orchestra, for example, sat Otis Skinner, dean of American actors and father of the brilliant star who was performing on the stage. Mr. Skinner seemed to enjoy the play immensely in most of its passages, but seemed to frown now and then as something amiss seemed to strike his schooled ear.

MISS SKINNER
New Play's Star

Only three rows back of him sat W. Somerset Maugham, coauthor with Guy Bolton of the dramatization of his own book, evidently pleased with the warmth of the reception being accorded the play by one of the most brilliant audiences of the season.

$728,767,000 More Sought For Army

President Asks $289,065,000 For Air Corps, 51 Million for Bases

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday asked Congress to appropriate an additional $728,767,000 for the Army, to be spent during the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

The supplemental budget message asked that $289,065,000 of the sum be provided for the Air Corps, and that $51,000,000 be appropriated for construction and maintenance of the new bases acquired from Great Britain.

At the same time, Secretary Knox proposed legislation to authorize the President until August 1, 1945, to reduce the course of instruction at the Naval Academy from four to three years. In a letter to Speaker Rayburn he declared that the defense program made necessary an increase in the number of Academy graduates, and the shorter course was chosen as the best means.

Defense Pamphlets Ready Soon

The War Department, meanwhile, announced that the first of a series of civil defense pamphlets, prepared by the division of State and local cooperation of the Council of National Defense, will be distributed April 23. It is entitled "Civil Defense Protective Construction" and contains complete instruction for building air-raid shelters and steps to protect industrial plants, utilities and buildings against air attack.

Data as to the weapons used in aerial attack, including the effect of demolition bombs, fragmentation bombs, gas bombs, incendiary bombs, aerial mines and aerial gunfire, is contained in the pamphlet, as well as defense measures against each. Illustrations and plans are included for four types of air-raid shelters, holding 6, 50, 100 and 200 persons.

Action Not Urgent

The War Department said that publication of the pamphlet "is by no means a signal to start work immediately on any of the protective structures described."

"It was thought that such information should be made available to responsible civilian officials and civilian engineers so they might consider methods, plans and especially procedures that can be followed in their respective localities should the situation change," the department added.

No details were given in the President's budget message as to the use of the supplemental Army funds, other than the general purpose of each item. Major projects included Army pay, $76,378,000; travel expenses, $15,000,000; subsistence, $14,825,000; clothing and equipage, $38,239,000; military post construction, $76,922,000; barracks and quarters, $31,384,000; Army signal service, $9,403,000; ordnance service and supplies, $53,179,000; seacoast defenses, $8,273,000; Chemical Warfare Service, $5,562,000.

88-Degree Heat Gives Preview Of Days to Come

Washington, which is usually in the middle of things, yesterday found itself in the center of an unseasonable heat wave which raised the mercury to 88, an all-time high for April 14.

The freakish high temperature is due to continue today, but is expected to subside Wednesday, when a polar air mass, sweeping down from Minnesota, where it snowed last night, meets up with the tropical heat wave which came up from the Gulf Sunday.

Showers, and possibly a thunderstorm, will announce the clashing of the hot and cold air fronts tomorrow, and by Thursday the weather will be back to normal, ranging from 45 to 65 degrees.

New York April 14 (AP).—Konrad Bercovici, writer, filed a $5,000,000 suit against Charles Chaplin in Supreme Court today, charging the comedian-producer had used the author's idea for the film, "The Great Dictator," without reimbursing him either by credit or payment.

British Admit Falling Back In Greece, Nazis Report Them Fleeing by Harbors, Beaches

Berlin Reports Sinking of 30,000 Tons of Transports In Port of Athens

By the Associated Press

Berlin, April 14.—Declaring the British were starting to flee precipitately from Greece, using both harbors and beaches, German press dispatches tonight reported that Nazi dive-bombers had sunk 30,000 tons of British transports in the Athenian harbor of Piraeus.

Transports and supply ships totaling another 80,000 tons were said by the official German news agency D. N. B. to have been "severely damaged."

(The British wireless without specifically mentioning the German report of British evacuation from Greece in effect denied it by stating that "strong British reinforcements are now moving up to front lines in Greece." The broadcast was heard by C. B. S.)

The Germans have contended ever since the British troops landed in Greece that the Hellenic peninsula would be another Dunkerque.

It was presumed by Germans that the British were unable to find enough Greek ports for rapid embarkation, so were leaving from the shores along the open sea.

Nazis Reported in Egypt

At the same time, the German expeditionary force in Africa was declared by the high command to have firmly established itself on Egyptian soil and to have occupied Salum, inside the Egyptian border.

This force was reported still heading eastward with Alexandria and the Suez Canal within the range of military possibilities.

At Tobruk, port in Libya 90 miles west of the Egyptian border, German press dispatches said Nazi dive-bombers were hammering at transports seeking to take off the British garrison, which the Germans said was encircled.

The news agency further said that 8 of 14 British armored cars were destroyed in a "desperate" effort to escape by land.

"There Is a Plan"

Whether the Germans in Africa actually would strike for the Nile was a secret of the high command.

The only suggestion from informed quarters was the remark "you may be sure that there is a plan; also that the German army doesn't rush into adventures, a policy which eliminates to the greatest degree humanly possible any chance of failure."

In Greece, a line which ran roughly from German-occupied Salonika westward along the northern border was being consolidated.

The Nazi high command asserted that the backbone of Yugoslav resistance had been broken with the destruction of "the general mass of the Serb army," although fighting of a local character still was in progress.

Some of this appeared to be in the region of Nis. Another portion

10 Senators Can't Keep Cotton Ed's Son Out of Draft

A $3,900-a-year clerkship for a Senate Committee is not necessary employment, even though ten Senators say it is, Ellison D. Smith, jr., son of Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith, of South Carolina, learned yesterday.

Young Smith, a clerk for the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry, a week ago asked Local Board No. 8 to place him in Class 2 as a "necessary man" because of his job.

In support of his contention, when he appeared before the board, he presented a letter signed by ten members of the committee. His father was not one of the signers.

Yesterday the board unanimously declined to place Smith in Class 2. Instead, it placed him in Class 1-D as a student, subject to call July 1. He is a second-year student in law at National University Night School.

Hull Unruffled By Japanese, Soviet Treaty

No Surprise, He Says; Chinese Ambassador Expresses 'Real Regret'

By Bertram D. Hulen
Copyright by New York Times

The policy of the United States Government remains unchanged in the face of the pact concluded between the Soviet Union and Japan, Secretary of State Hull said yesterday.

"The significance of the pact between the Soviet Union and Japan relating to neutrality, as reported in the press today, could be overestimated," Secretary Hull said. "The agreement would seem to be descriptive of a situation which has in effect existed between the two countries for some time past. It therefore comes as no surprise, although there has existed doubt whether the two governments would or would not agree to say it in writing. The policy of this Government, of course, remains unchanged."

American officials were inclined to believe that the arrangements made with respect to Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia will not prevent a continuance of Soviet aid to Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek.

Disappointment to China

Although Hull made the statement in response to questions at his press conference, he had carefully drafted it in advance. Diplomats accepted it as saying as little as possible.

However, Dr. Hu Shih, the Chinese Ambassador, was not so restrained. Emerging from a conference with Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., the Ambassador declared that the pact was "a grave disappointment to his country.

"We cannot tell its full significance until we know more about the terms," he said. "While the agreement is a cause of real regret, we are hopeful that Russia will not discontinue her policy of aiding China. Russia has been doing this for some time and China has a right to expect that this aid will continue."

Currency Pact Expected

The Ambassador's call at the Treasury gave rise to reports that China and the United States might soon conclude an agreement providing for stabilization of Chinese currency. After he talked with the Secretary, Dr. T. V. Soong, president of the Bank of China, said he thought conditions were "very favorable" for completing the stabilization agreement "very soon."

From the European standpoint it seemed clear to observers here that Russia was crumbling under Ger-

Nazis Held All Along Line, Greeks Assert

Hitler Elite Division Hurled Back; Reich Casualties Heavy

By the Associated Press

Athens, April 14.—Germany's opening feints for the Battle of Greece have been parried all along the British-Greek front, Greek dispatches said tonight.

One of these feints, apparently an action of last Friday, came from a division of Adolf Hitler's own SS Elite Guard, British quarters reported.

Tonight the Greek government spokesman said:

"German mechanized units displayed activity devoid of general importance and only of a local character. Greek formations yesterday held positions assigned to them according to plans."

(The London war office meanwhile announced a withdrawal of British troops to new positions in Greece, but added that the British inflicted severe casualties on German forces at the same time.)

High commanders of the Allied forces expressed belief that any German break through the mountainous defiles of northern Greece would prove the costliest thrust of the war and Greek newspapers predicted the deep passes would become a "slaughter house" for the invaders.

Snow and mud were said to have hampered German armored divisions in the principal assault, which apparently was fought between Phlorina, in Greece, and the Bitolj Gap in southwest Yugoslavia. After the battle much German equipment was reported massed in the Bitolj Valley, under constant bombing and machine-gun attack by Allied planes.

Planes Bomb Nazis

The Greek wireless announced tonight that British and Greek air squadrons were furiously bombing and machine-gunning the Germans in Bitolj area.

The radio broadcast a communique of the Greek war ministry said:

"The failure of the Germans to effect a break-through during the first days (of fighting), together with a continuous and effective reinforcement of the Allied lines of resistance, has confirmed the general conviction that a very strong front has been established stretching from the Adriatic Sea to the Aegean.

"The positions occupied by the Allied forces are natural strongholds which do not at all lend themselves to the tactics of mechanized blitz warfare.

"All reports concur that the situation may be considered as highly

Death on a Moonlight Cruise

Athlete Accused of Knocking Norfolk Boat's Mate Overboard

Norfolk, Va., April 14.—Police yesterday seized a former Virginia Military Institute athlete and charged him with murder in the disappearance of Harry B. Murphy, 47, of 1416 Holbrook Street Northeast, who was lost overboard from a Potomac River steamer Sunday.

Raymond F. Reutt, 24, of Norfolk, was charged, according to Associated Press, with knocking Murphy overboard from the top deck of the Washington & Norfolk steamer Northland to the river 40 feet below during an argument. Murphy, who was first officer, and the captain assertedly were trying to persuade Reutt to return to his room.

The tragedy occurred during an Easter Sunday moonlight sail to Norfolk when the vessel was about a mile south of Mathias Light and 3 miles upstream from the Morgantown Bridge.

The Northland's master, Capt. T. J. Hewitt, told the Norfolk police that about 10 p. m. he was informed three occupants of a room were disturbing the other passengers. Reutt was one of the three, according to the captain.

A watchman was posted at the door, Capt. Hewitt said, but later Reutt and another Norfolk man climbed out of the cabin window and got onto the hurricane deck, which has no railing.

"First Officer Murphy went up to Reutt and took hold of his right arm, like he was trying to persuade him to go back down again," the ship's master told police. "I took hold of the other one, and then Reutt snatched his arm away

Axis Tanks Repulsed At Tobruk, London Says, Claiming Heavy Toll on Balkan Foe

By the Associated Press

London, April 14.—British troops have withdrawn to new positions on the eastern sector of the Greek front, the war office acknowledged tonight.

At the same time, thousands of British imperial troops are being rushed from the Italian East African front to Egypt in an effort to stem the German onrush toward the Suez Canal, it was understood here.

The British said their troops in Greece inflicted heavy losses on Nazi infantrymen before withdrawing, while forces in Libya repulsed with heavy losses an Axis infantry and tank attack on the outer defenses of besieged Tobruk.

"Severe casualties," the communique said, were inflicted by British covering troops during the Balkan withdrawal (apparently west of Salonika), but in the center of that front, the British asserted, "persistent German attacks" failed in the face of heavy British fire.

Although an earlier communique said "the situation has been completely restored" by the repulse of the attack on Tobruk and the infliction of "considerable casualties" on the Germans near Salum, the British public did not share this confident tone.

Instead, the mounting threat of Germany's North African and Balkan forces caused many Britons to bid farewell to "comfortable illusions."

Axis Planes Heavily Bombed

Heavy bombing by the British Middle East air force was reported to have caused severe damages to the Axis air machines in both Africa and the Balkans.

A German bomber and fighter plane were said to have been shot down when the British dispersed a formation in the Koritza area in Albania.

Axis motor transports moving toward Salum, Egypt, the report added, were successfully bombed and machine-gunned.

Additional bombs were said to have straddled the custom house and power station and left one ship burning fiercely in Tripoli, Libyan port from which the Axis African advance started.

Admit Loss of 11 Planes

The British acknowledged the loss of 11 planes in their Middle East-Balkan operations, which also included cleanup attacks in Ethiopia and defense operations over Malta.

News that the Germans had rushed more than 400 miles in seven days and to Salum, within Egypt, forced realistic watchers of the situation to visualize a decisive African battle at the very gates of Alexandria, seat of Britain's Mediterranean naval power.

Though the war office communique announcing the withdrawal in Greece told of "severe cas-

Italians Retake Koritza After 11-Day Battle

By the Associated Press

Rome, April 14.—The southeastern Albanian town of Koritza, evacuated by the Italians November 22, has been reoccupied by the Italian army after 11 days' fighting, it was announced officially tonight.

The Fascist Ninth Army entered the city, near the Yugoslav-Greek borders.

About 25 miles south of Lake Ohrid, Koritza is a road junction whence a highway leads eastward to Phlorina, hinge of the present British-Greek line confronting the Axis armies.

Fast columns of Bersaglieri captured "numerous prisoners and arms of every kind, including several batteries of cannon," it was said. Pursuit of Greek forces continued beyond the city.

Serbs Make Repeated Attacks

Masses of shouting Serbs are hurling themselves "repeatedly and uselessly" by land and speedboat against Italian defenses at the northern Albania lakeshore town of Scutari, Fascist dispatches from the Balkan front said tonight.

Accounts of the violent fighting there were coupled with reports of further Fascist penetration of Yugoslavia in the south.

The Yugoslavs were declared checked or driven back by Fascist assaults everywhere along the 420-mile front.

For 48 hours the Serbs have been moving in wave upon wave through rain and snow against Scutari, on the southern shore of a lake of the same name, only to be mowed down by Fascist machine-gunners and scattered by Italian airmen, war front advices said.

Serbs Use Speedboats

Italian motor torpedo boats were declared to have thwarted attempts by the Serbs to land troops from speedboats darting across the choppy waters of the lake, which straddles the Albanian-Yugoslav border.

Advices from Fascist war correspondents said four Yugoslav divisions of 11 regiments and some 60,000 men had been routed between Debar, on the central section of the Albanian frontier, and Lakes Ohrid and Presba.

Fascist units operating along the Adriatic were reported by the high command to have occupied four small islands, listed as Sestrugno, Eso, Raviane and Puntadura. Other Italian forces, it said have besieged the rail center at Knin, in western Yugoslavia.

The Italian second army moving down the Adriatic Coast, Fascists reported, has occupied Gospic, inland town 30 miles north of the Italian port of Azara.

Flying Instructor, Two Cadets Killed In Plane Crashes

San Angelo, Tex., April 14 (AP).—Two flying cadets and an instructor at the Air Corps basic flying school in San Angelo were killed today in two crashes a few hours apart.

Cadet Raymond L. Stephenson, 22, Sweetwater, Tex., died as his training plane crashed about 25 miles east of San Angelo. He was flying alone.

The two airmen killed in the second crack-up were identified as Lieut. E. B. Burns 22, of Ecru, Miss., an instructor, and Cadet F. E. Pogue, 25, Duluth, Minn. The plane, according to witnesses, fell from a low altitude and burst into flames.

Witnesses said Stephenson's plane fell from a height of about 700 feet.

satisfactory. The morale of the army is even better than at the time of Italian aggression."

The Germans were reported still trying to mop up Yugoslav forces fighting at their rear, while rushing up reinforcements for a continuing assault on the Greek-British defenses. Additional Greek reservists were being sped to threatened points. There were frequent clashes between scattered armored patrols.

Military circles said the Adolf Hitler's SS division, which was thrown back in Friday's attack, was an elite Blackshirt formation, originally a bodyguard for the Fuehrer.

Its members were said to have discarded their black uniforms for field gray in the present motorized operation.

(In Berlin it was said that the SS frequently participates in the most spectacular front engagements.)

Athenians found further cause for jubilation in a report from British sources that the Yugoslavs "were believed" to have captured the strategic Adriatic seaport of Durazzo, which lies 25 miles west of Tirana, the Albanian capital.

Other Yugoslav troops were declared to be counterattacking fiercely against the Germans in the mountains 130 miles southeast of captured Belgrade.

Bill Authorizes Inquiry Into Slum Conditions Here

Investigation of substandard housing conditions in the District by the Alley Dwelling Authority would be authorized under a bill introduced yesterday by Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee.

The bill would empower the authority to hold hearings "for the purpose of determining the areas wherein such conditions exist."

Introduced originally in the Seventy-sixth Congress, but not acted upon, the measure has the general aim of strengthening the authority's power to eliminate slum areas outside the city's inhabited alleys.

The authority's determination of substandard conditions and the "property necessary to be taken" to eliminate those conditions would be made "conclusive" by the bill.

Cairo Deputies Meet Secretly On Defenses

By the Associated Press

Cairo, April 14.—While British forces fiercely resisted the new Axis advance into Egypt, the Egyptian Chamber of Deputies met secretly tonight to discuss what defense steps the country would take.

This question was to be put by the chamber to Premier Hussein Sirry Pasha following conferences today with Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander in chief of Britain's Army of the Nile, and heads of the chief Egyptian political parties.

Wavell also called on Minister of Defense Bey Hassan Sadek, after which the cabinet met before the premier called the chamber into session to hear his statement on the situation.

Fight at Salum and Tobruk

The British meanwhile reported fighting continued about Salum, inside the Egyptian frontier, and Tobruk, Axis-besieged Libyan port, with little change in the fighting lines.

Earlier, British sources said the Italian-German advance had not progressed much in the Salum area, where the British were reported to have engaged an Axis mechanized column.

(In London, a war office announcement said the "situation has been completely restored" following the British repulse with heavy losses of an Axis tank and infantry attack on Tobruk and the infliction of considerable casualties on advanced German detachments on the Salum area.)

Mopping Up in East

British reinforcements from East Africa, where mop-up operations continued against the broken Italian defenders, have been reported sent to the army of the Nile; others into the Balkans, with the possible result that Britain now may have to call on Egypt for man power.

(Allied with Britain, but nonbelligerent, the task of Egypt's small army has been chiefly to man defenses in the Suez area since the outbreak of the war.

(How near the country is to its planned army of 100,000 men by the end of 1941 is not known. The last available reports were that Egypt had a standing army of 22,500 in 1938, the training of which was taken over by British officers early in 1940.)

ualties" inflicted on the Germans, the British public still recognized it for what it was—another setback. The withdrawal was made Saturday night, with the Germans reported maintaining continuous pressure.

SS Troops Hurled Back

An earlier British report had told of Germany's "SS Adolf Hitler" motorized division being thrown back with heavy losses in Greece.

Even the most optimistic observers in their frequent reminders about Germany's long, vulnerable lines of communication have admitted that a major campaign could be waged across the Egyptian desert, despite the terrific summer heat.

The lack of official information recalled the dark days of last spring, when the Nazis overran Norway, then the Low Countries and finally France.

The full impact of the Libyan and Balkan reverses has hit the British public slowly. A bright side, it seemed, could be found in every setback. But today the two powerful London papers, the Daily Mail and Daily Herald, demanded fact-finding in strong language. Said the Mail: "It is common sense to realize that British forces in North Africa and Greece are facing a colossal task, and it is no service to them to pretend otherwise. A good deal of nonsense has been written and spoken about Germany's extended and vulnerable lines of communication. The same thing was heard when they thrust deeply into France."

The Herald charged that the people had been "constantly distracted by writers and speakers who seek quite superfluously to cheer them up."

"The present is dark and the immediate future not bright," admitted the ultraconservative Times.

of the Serb army, D. N. B. reported, was being driven from the general section toward the Adriatic Sea.

There was no information or comment here on British reports that Serb forces had broken into Albania and occupied the chief seaport of Durrazo, which is an Italian base.

In Zagreb (Croat capital in Yugoslavia), Gen. Sladko Kvaternik was setting up his independent Croat government and told the German press that it sees eye to eye with Germany in all matters of policy. He said, according to the press, that the first Croat obligation was to help Germany win the war. There was no suggestion, however, that Croatia should participate in the fighting.

Two Nazi Raiders Stay at Berths, Believed Damaged

London, April 14 (AP).—Failure of the Germans to remove their 26,000-ton battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst from their bomb-scarred berths at Brest, France, was regarded here tonight as an indication both fighting vessels had suffered damage.

Observers pointed to British reports of dropping bombs near the two ships in six raids in two weeks, without scoring hits on the vessels themselves, but pointed out that if the battleships had not been damaged "the only sensible thing" for the Germans to have done would have been to order their removal.

A communique said there had been "rather more daylight activity" over Britain today than of late, but that bombs dropped in widely separated parts of the country had caused but few casualties. Two northeast England towns were raided tonight.

Briton Opens 50th Congress Of D. A. R.

At the conclusion of his address, Mrs. Robert presented to Butler a check for $1,200 raised by the San Francisco chapter of 47 members toward the purchase of an ambulance for England.

In his address Butler said the forces against Germany "are growing stronger. You have just sent us a group of invaluable Coast Guard cutters, our own new destroyers and corvettes are going into action, we are getting and building more long-distance aircraft to patrol the danger zones and in a few months' time we hope new freighters will be leaving the American yards to build that vital bridge of ships without which lending and leasing would be idle words.

"This is the way in which our interests meet on the Atlantic after all, for on that bridge of ships—on the men who build them, and on the silent heroes to man them—depends more than on anything else today, the final battle for England.

"The last ten months have raised the temper of the British people to a degree which all observers find amazing," Butler said.

"What you will find is a land peopled—as an Italian journalist sadly put it—with '47 million Churchills.'"

"The whole American Revolution produced no more impassioned cry than 'Give me liberty or give me death!' Let it be yours again today, for it is also ours," Butler ended.

Declaring that America "cannot turn back" in its aid to England, and that "there's no limit to how far you can go," the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, told the national defense symposium of the Daughters yesterday afternoon that even if England wins, America will be faced with stupendous problems.

Approximately 1,000 women, gathered in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel, heard Dr. Walsh in his address on "Democracy and the World Revolution," outline a grave outlook for the future. Russia, he said, would be waiting to take advantage of the postwar letdown and confusion. With so much destruction and disorganization, America will be faced with a heavy share of the burden of reconstruction, he said.

The symposium brought also addresses by Col. Frank E. Lowe, acting executive for reserve affairs, office of Chief of Staff, who spoke off the record, and by Dr. David Spence Hill, of the Brookings Institution, who spoke on "Education for Defense of American Democracy."

"If England falls and Hitler obtains economic and military control over Europe and over the heart and nerve center of the British Empire, we will be faced with the most formidable menace we have faced since 1776. Do you imagine that we will not suffer the worst type of reprisal and revenge?" Dr. Walsh said.

"Even in the event of British victory, the world will be exhausted and there will ensue one of those let-downs, demoralizations and depressions to which the first was only a dress rehearsal. In that confusion will be the moment the Bolsheviks have been waiting," he added.

Dr. Walsh said that in his belief whether England wins or loses, the United States will find itself at the conclusion of the war faced with an emergency as great as the present one.

"The root question is not whether one likes or dislikes the British Empire—not what England has so successfully done to alienate much American sympathy in past generations. The challenge is to the future and what the world revolution may do to the liberties of all Americans, North and South," he said, as applause rang out.

Col. Love spoke extemporaneously, substituting for Representative J. Buell Snyder (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House subcommittee on Military Appropriations, who had been scheduled to speak on "Building Our Army."

Dr. Hill, in his address, said major items in America's defenses were, in addition to arms, "the solidarity of determination to put America first," industry and education. He took a crack at the "small group of labor racketeers" who exploit workers, but paid tribute to the large majority of labor and management.

Mrs. Henry M. Robert, Jr., president general of the D. A. R., in a brief talk at the symposium, said that "the work of the society in the past year has jumped forward by almost unbelieveable leaps and bounds," indicating that "the things we are prepared to do are the things the Nation finds needful."

She siad that although the society at times has been misunderstood and even ridiculed, "at a moment of emergency and uneasiness in our Nation, the people turn to us."

"And may we say—as some of the press has told us we have a right to say—'I told you so'" she added.

Mrs. Robert said that the D. A. R. does not need at this time of emergency to start new work but merely "to do more of the same work we have been doing over a period of years."

Mrs. Imogen B. Emery, chairman of the Committee on National Defense through Patriotic Education, opened the symposium with an address, pointing out the committee's long range objectives.

In discussing educational measures, she said "we oppose bills now before Congress that would set up a bureau to cut the pattern for all the States. We still believe that the citizens of the various States can best keep their fingers upon the pulse of their own department of public instruction."

Dr. Walsh in his address paid tribute to the D. A. R. support of national defense and democracy through the years. "Thank God, you have not retreated one iota from the line of that reasonable and progressive national defense which I have heard you advocate year after year in the very teeth of ridicule from the left and in the face of a complacent indifference from certain circles on the right who should have known better," he said.

The Congress, with attendance of delegates and alternates mounting toward 4,000, will continue through Saturday morning.

As the Marine Band Orchestra played a march, the president general and other national officers came down the aisle at Constitution Hall last night, escorted by the pages. As they mounted the stage a large United States flag was released from the ceiling to float throughout the program.

Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of St. John's Church, Lafayette Square, gave the invocation, after which the audience gave the pledge of allegiance to the flag. William Tyler Page for the twenty-second year led the D. A. R. Congress in the saying of "The American's Creed," which he wrote.

After the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner," greetings were brought from Robert C. Tracy, representing the National Society, Sons of the American Revolution; and from Mrs. John Morrison Kerr, national president of the Children of the American Revolution. Two members of the C. A. R. in colonial costume, Elizabeth Kimberly, 9, and Sterling John Eagleton, 8, of Washington, then presented a corsage of spring flowers to Mrs. Robert.

The 49 Good Citizenship Pilgrims, representing the States and the District of Columbia, then lined up on the stage to be presented to the congress by Mrs. Roscoe O'Bryne, national chairman of the pilgrimage. Dolores Bellamy, of Nebraska, responded in behalf of the pilgrims, saying that Washington had given them "an abundance of inspiration to carry back to our States and communities."

Leonard Stocker, barytone, son of a D. A. R. member, sang two groups of songs, accompanied by Sarah Knight on the piano.

Mrs. Pouch, D.A.R. Candidate, A Former Tennis Champion

Best known for her work for patriotic causes, the unopposed candidate for president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution is a former national singles tennis champion and a movie fan, she divulged in an interview Sunday.

Mrs. William H. Pouch, of New York City, who is slated to become head of "the world's largest women's patriotic society" at its fiftieth Continental Congress here this week, has already been given a foretaste of the demands of the job. Sunday night at the Mayflower Hotel she attended two dinners—of the D. A. R. juniors and of a North Dakota group—and later went to two meetings of the California and Michigan groups.

Many Benefactions

She and her husband have gone about their benefactions quietly—such as giving scholarships and memorial rooms in D. A. R. schools among mountain children. These gifts have formed a continuous memorial to their only child, Helen, who died in 1927 at the age of 16. After the daughter's death Mrs. Pouch began giving largely of time and effort to the D. A. R., of which she has been a member since 1916.

She was reluctant to speak of future plans for the D. A. R.—nominations will not formally be made until Wednesday night, and new officers will be installed Saturday. She would only say that "the society should build on the fine foundations already laid."

As Helen Hellwig, she held the tennis championship for a year, but it "was so long ago" that she demurred at recalling the year or the scores. "In those days it was mostly a matter of covering the court and returning the ball," rather than hard driving as today, she said, modestly.

She was much more ready to talk about her present hobby—the movies. She has only recently returned from Hollywood, where she saw behind the scenes. "I sat next to Rosalind Russell at a luncheon—and had my picture made with her," she said enthusiastically.

Enjoys Movie Work

As a member of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, it's part of her job to keep track of what the movies are doing, and she enjoys it.

Her husband, who is head of the Concrete Steel Co. in New York, shares her enthusiasm for work among young people. He is a leader in Boy Scout activities.

Mrs. Pouch has held several national chairmanships in the D. A. R., and was president of the National Society of Children of the American Revolution from 1937 to 1939. In addition to these affiliations, she belongs to a number of other patriotic organizations, including: United States Daughters of 1812, Colonial Dames of the XVII Century, Colonial Daughters of the XVII Century, Colonial Daughters of America, Colonial Descendants of America, Patriotic Women of America, Daughters of the Union, National Society of the Dames of the Court of Honor, Sons and Daughters of the Pilgrims, and Daughters of Colonial Wars in the State of New York.

Federation Urges Veto Of Jai Alai

The Montgomery County Civic Federation last night unanimously adopted a resolution urging Gov. Herbert O'Conor to veto the jai alai referendum bill, and gave the county's legislators a verbal spanking for introducing the controversial measure into the State Assembly at the "last minute."

The referendum bill, which the Maryland legislative body passed during its closing hours, had few friends at the federation's meeting in the Bethesda Elementary School, and opponents assailed the bill as a means of bringing professional gambling to the county for the first time.

"It (the federation) is emphatically and overwhelmingly opposed to the establishment in this county of professional gambling and its attendant evils in connection with jai alai or any other game or sport," said the resolution.

"The citizens of our county have no desire to profit by such gambling," the statement added.

An amendment criticizing the legislative delegation for introducing a bill that was not an emergency measure to the Assembly just before its adjournment was made a part of the resolution.

The federation also voted opposition to rezoning western Massachusetts Avenue to permit a $5,000,000 apartment house project on a 60-acre tract, just west of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad right of way. The federation stood similarly opposed to apartment house construction on a 40-acre plot adjacent to the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Recreation Center.

It was argued that the Massachusetts Avenue section was a single-home development region that would be adversely affected by the introduction of apartments.

Takoma Park Citizens Oppose Jai Alai Bill

The executive board of the Takoma Park (Md.-Di. C.) Citizens Association has unanimously opposed the jai alai bill with the referendum on pari mutuel betting in Montgomery County, Md., it was announced yesterday by Walter Irey, secretary.

A resolution upon the motion of L. R. Grabill, vice president, opposes "to the utmost the legislation of an yform of betting or gambling in this county and particularly opposes the enactment into law of the bill referred to" The committee sent Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor a copy of the resolution asking his veto of the bill.

Reasons given for the opposition are that betting would attract to Montgomery County an "undesirable class of persons, for the purpose of betting and gambling, from Washington and other cities." Also that the existence of a jai alai court would tend to lower the moral standards of the entire community, decrease the value of residential property continguous to its location, and generally detract from the desirability of the county as a place of residence.

Legion Chief Attacks Defense Strike Tactics

New York, April 14 (AP).—Milo J. Warner, national commander of the American Legion, tonight accused "some of the leaders" of the C. I. O. of promoting "lawless, head-smashing tactics" in the defense emergency and of condoning Communist elements in the organization.

The legion, he said, in a speech prepared for delivery at a meeting of the Ohio Society of New York, seeks "no part in labor disputes as such," but opposes lawlessness on the part of employers and unions alike.

Warner said C. I. O. leaders had made no effort to "clean their organization of radical and Communist elements which promote lawlessness and, disorder—not to win strikes as they claim—but to cripple the defense work of the United States and to cripple the Government of the United States."

Mr. Harris Returns To Washington— And Finds Trouble

Winder Harris, of Norfolk, Va., never had any trouble making his way about Capitol Hill until he appeared there yesterday as a duly elected member of the House.

Long a Capitol correspondent for the now defunct Universal Service, Harris knows the Hill intimately. He was chosen in a special election to represent the Second Virginia District and arrived in Washington yesterday. He found there was no lodging for him, even though he had reserved a hotel room.

When he endeavored to take his seat, he discovered his certificate of election had not arrived. His certificate finally was telegraphed from Richmond just after the House adjourned for the Yankee-Nats ball game.

Harris will try again today.

Motorist Slain, Police Broadcast Lookout for Car

Washington police were asked last night to look out for a 1940 Buick sedan carrying Pennsylvania license ZB338 in connection with the shotgun death near Lynchburg, Va., of a man idetnified by an operator's permit as S. W. Boyce.

Virginia State police believed a hitchhiker shot the man in the stomach with a shotgun and left his body beside U. S. Higway 29, where it was found last night.

The thug evidently fled in his benefactor's car after the shooting, it was said. In the victim's pocket was an automobile registration card carrying the name of Hattie B. Boyce, 251 North Highland Avenue, Lansdowne, Pa., and a courtesy card indicating he purchased gasoline yesterday at a filling station at Eastern and Rhode Islan dAvenues.

116th Infantry, 121st Engineers Bang Away at Meade Targets

By the Associated Press

Fort George G. Meade, Md., April 14.—The 116th Infantry today began a week of firing practice on the post range, with all officers and men of the Virginia regiment scheduled to fire latest type rifles and some units also to receive instruction on machine guns.

The regiment, commanded by Col. E. W. Opie, now numbering 1,368 enlisted men and 120 officers, expects its first group of selectees sometime next week. During the next few weeks enough selectees will be taken into the regiment to bring it up to its war-time quota of approximately 2,600 men. So far as possible, the recruits will be Virginians.

Members of one battalion of the 121st Engineers, from Washington, also were on the known distance range today for target practice. Other men from the regiment completed firing last week.

Tomorrow the Engineers will begin bayonet practice and grenade throwing, and will work on guarding, patrolling and other subjects that have been delayed because of bad weather. The regiment also is preparing for preliminary instruction in chemical warfare work.

Col. John W. Oehmann, commander, said the regiment may receive some selectees during the latter ten days of this month. Except for two barracks, all the regimental buildings are completed and ready for the additional men.

A civilian instructor was in the Engineer area today, giving instruction in operation of crane and pile driving equipment.

Division headquarters announced that during the week approximately 1,500 selectees would be assigned to various divisional units.

About 800 of these will go to the three Field Artillery regiments of the Fifty-fourth Brigade—the 111th Virginia, the 110th Maryland and the 176th Pennsylvania—and men will then be assigned to the 104th Quartermaster Regiment.

Including 225 selectees received today, the strength of the Twenty-ninth Division is 9,547 enlisted men and during the next few weeks enough selectees are to be added to bring the number up to 17,945 men.

Last Rites Today For Mrs. Simpson

The funeral of Mrs. Elace Virginia Simpson, widow of William Simpson, who died at her home at Bethesda Sunday, will take place at 2 p. m. today at the funeral home of W. Reuben Pumphrey, Bethesda. The services will be conducted by the Rev. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Methodist Church, Washington, and burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mrs. Simpson was a native of Howard County, Md. Before taking up her residence at Bethesda five years ago she lived in Washington many years. She leaves a son, Roger E. Simpson, Bethesda; a sister, Mrs. Edward Schofield, Silver Spring, and a brother, John Belt, Seat Pleasant, Md.

A STATEMENT TO THE PUBLIC RESPECTING THE PAUL ROBESON CONCERT ON APRIL 25th, 1941, ULINE ICE ARENA

The Washington Committee for Aid to China would like to have it clearly understood:

1. That the Washington Committee for Aid to China and the National Negro Congress are collaborating to make the Paul Robeson Concert a musical event of historical importance to Washington;

2. That the full net proceeds available to the Washington Committee for Aid to China go without deductions of any kind directly to Chinese medical and similar aid to China through the China Aid Council of New York;

3. That all contractural arrangements governing the operations of the Concert are freely open to those of the public who take the trouble to call at the Committee's offices and enquire for them;

4. That there will be no discrimination whatever in the distribution of tickets; any vacant seat may be purchased and occupied by any respectable well-behaved person of any race, color, or sex;

5. That anyone who has accepted sponsorship or patronship of the Concert under any misapprehension as to any of the above facts can, and indeed should, relinquish that relationship at the earliest moment;

6. That anyone who has purchased tickets under a similar misapprehension will have the full purchase price of the tickets refunded upon presenting them to the Office of the Committee.

It should be added that these statements do not reflect in any way a change in any policy of the Committee. They are made because it has come to the attention of the Committee that, as a result of inadequate publicity, some tickets may have been purchased under a misapprehension, and further because the Committee suspects, under the smoke-screen of this misapprehension, efforts to sabotage the Concert.

Elman, Bullitt To Appear For China Aid

Mischa Elman, the violinist, will be the guest artist and William C. Bullitt, former United States Ambassador to France, will speak at Constitution Hall at 8:30 p.m. Sunday, April 27, the United China Relief Committee announced yesterday.

Mrs. Caldwell

Held for the benefit of China's war victims, the program will include motion pictures of the Burma Road and the bombing of Chungking, said Mrs. Irene B. Caldwell, chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Tickets for the affair are now on sale at Homer Kitt's Music Store, 1330 G Street Northwest, Mrs. Caldwell said. Several hundred tickets already have been sold and only one box remains available, it was stated.

Mrs. McNutt Is Chairman

Mrs. Paul McNutt is chairman of the organization's Constitution Hall benefit plans and Mrs. Eugene Meyer is vice chairman.

A group of 125 Washington debutantes and several Chinese girls in costume will act as ushers.

Roy A Teller, 19, of 801 North Daniel Street, Arlington, Va., yesterday was announced as the first prize winner in a poster contest advertising the program. Prizes of $25, $10 and $5 were offered by Chinese merchants in Washington.

Mary Hillberg, 20, of 4105 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest, received the second prize for her contribution. Third prize went to Vera Roberts, 14, of 3111 Cathedral Avenue Northwest.

Honorable Mention List

Receiving honorable mention in the contest were Merwyn N. McKnight, jr., of Arlington; Joseph F. Still, of St. Anthony's High School; Margaret Ledig, Bethesda, Md., Camp Fire Girls; Herbert D. Faurite, Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School; Marjorie Russ, 1606 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, and Miss Mary Pope, 2853 Twenty-ninth Street Northwest.

Works of Chinese art were presented to those contestants receiving honorable mention.

Macgill James, assistant director of the National Museum; Clifford Berryman, cartoonist of the Washington Star, and Forbes Watson, editor of the American Magazine of Art, were the judges in the contest. Anne F. Abbott served as chairman of the contest.

Va. Motorists Rush to Beat Tag Deadline

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., April 14.—C. F. Joyner, jr., assistant director of the division of motor vehicles, said today motor vehicle license sales were running ahead of last year with prospects that the last-minute rush would add thousands of dollars to the 1941 increase over 1940.

Employes had difficulty today wending their way through the crowds packed into the division offices here, where the State holiday in commemoration of Jefferson's birthday was ignored for the benefit of late license purchasers. The deadline on the 1940 tags is midnight tomorrow.

The holidap apparently contributed to the crush at the license windows today as hundreds freed from offices and workday routine plunked down the 40 cents a hundred (for private passenger cars) for the new tags.

J. C. Devilbiss Rites Tomorrow In Frederick

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., April 14.—Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon for James Clark Devilbiss, sr., prominent retired grocer and fraternalist, who died at the Frederick City Hospital yesterday at the age of 59. Mr. Devilbiss conducted a grocery store here for 26 years. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, Mountain City Lodge No. 29, Knights of Pythias, of which he was past chancellor commander and captain of the rank team, and a member of the Modern Woodmen of America.

Surviving are three sons, James C. Devilbiss, jr., Hagerstown; Kenneth F. Devilbiss, Woodsboro, and John A. Devilbiss, Frederick. Two brothers, Clarence Devilbiss and Charles Devilbiss, Frederick, and three sisters, Mrs. William W. Brish and Miss Nina Devilbiss, Frederick, and Mrs. Allen Sier, Bartonsville, Md., also survive. Interment will be made in Mount Olivet Cemetery, this city.

Dr. F. R. Hagner Memorial To Be Library

Former students and patients throughout the United States of the late Dr. Francis Hagner, are contributing to a memorial to him planned by a committee of prominent laymen and physicians, it was announced yesterday for the committee.

It is to be the Francis R. Hagner Library, at Garfield Memorial Hospital, for the use of internes and young physicians studying at the hospital, it was stated.

Dr. Hagner, who died July 8, 1940, was born in Washington and received his medical education here. He practiced here for 40 years, attaining international reputation in his specialty, which was genito-urinary surgery. He served as professor in this subject at George Washington University School of Medicine.

Honorary chairman of the Francis Randall Hagner Memorial Committee, which has headquarters at 1718 M Street Northwest, is Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen. The chairman is Dr. Harry Hyland Kerr, and the secretary-treasurer is Miss Margery L. Powderly.

Other active members of the committee are Corcoran Thom, Robert L. Lewis, John Callan O'Laughlin, Luther H. Reichelderfer and Drs. Edward Y. Davidson, Charles P. Howze, John Allan Talbot and John D. Thomas.

Names of contributors to the fund for the Francis R. Hagner Library will be inscribed in a book, although not with the amount of their contributions. This will be bound and be preserved in the library itself.

Japan, Russia To Study Problems

By the Associated Press

Moscow, April 14.—The neutrality pact by which Russia and Japan recognized each other's frontiers in Northeast Asia is to be followed by a general settlement of outstanding economic and political issues in the interests of peace, the Soviet press indicated today.

The pact, signed Sunday in the Kremlin by Premier-Foreign Commissar Molotoff was hailed by Pravda, the Communisty Party organ, as a far-reaching step to make good neighbors out of the two traditional rivals.

The new pledges "are going to be filled, of course," said Pravda. The paper added that the two countries were going to "get rid of everything which aroused hatred between them."

(In Tokyo, however, the press interpreted the pact as chiefly "a blow to the activities and policies of the United States in the Pacific," and as a strengthening of the three-power alliance of Tokyo, Berlin and Rome.)

Pravda said the accord cleared the way "for regulation of other unsolved questions between the U. S. S. R. and Japan" and would help found an era of political and economic cooperation between the two powers.

Such outstanding questions were listed as follows:

1. A trade agreement which has been in negotiation for months, but without concrete result as yet.

2. A permanent fisheries agreement respecting the rights Japan is to receive in waters adjoining the Siberian coasts, one of the most troublesome questions in Soviet-Japanese relations. This, too, has been the subject of long negotiation.

3. Demarcation of the frontiers of Japan's puppet state of Manchukuo and Russia's protege, the Outer Mongolian Peoples Republic.

A joint commission has been at this task, too, for many months.

man pressure, with Nazi troops on her borders, and did not dare pull away from the Axis.

Congressional comment on the agreement yesterday included the assertion of Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, that militant interventionist policy in it "is the inevitable result of our militant interventionist policy in the Far East."

"Our confused interventionist policy," he said, "based on diplomatic promises, led Yugoslavia to fight the mighty Nazi armies without our raising a finger to help them. Either our State Department is ignorant of the Nazi air force and military machine, or does not care if it is responsible for urging small nations to commit suicide."

Chinese Communists Stunned

Chungking, April 14 (AP).—Chinese Communists appeared today to have been stunned by the Japanese-Soviet pact of neutrality signed Sunday in Moscow.

Chou En-lai, the Chinese Communist leader, was unavailable for comment today, and lesser officials indicated that they were unable to explain the Moscow move or to predict what course the Chinese group was likely to adopt.

Informed sources, however, expressed belief that Chinese Communists' only chance of maintaining their present status in China would be in an official severance of all connections with the comintern in Moscow.

If they continue to follow Moscow, these quriers said, it was likely their influence would deteriorate rapidly.

Chinese military experts expressed the view that any new Japanese drive in China as a result of the pact would not prove decisive in the nearly four-year-old war.

These experts insisted the number of troops Japan would be able to transfer from Manchoukuo as a result of the new Soviet guarantee of the Manchoukuo frontiers—perhaps 125,000 men of 250,000 garrisoned there—would not be enough to deal a vital blow.

The influential newspaper Ta Kung Pao declared, however, that the pact almost certainly presaged an outbreak of war somewhere else in the Pacific area.

U.S. on Very Brink Of War, Clark Says

New York, April 14 (AP).—Declaring that involvement in war might bring "a complete dictatorship," Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, said tonight: "My fear is that we might win a war and lose our liberties."

The Missouri Senator, in an address prepared for a meeting in Carnegie Hall, said that numerous small changes in foreign policy have "brought us to the very brink of war."

Tax Plan to Fit Economy Urged

Chairman Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, yesterday favored a tax program "raising every dollar we reasonably and fairly can without disturbing the economy of the Nation."

Doughton, who later this week will hold preliminary tax talks with House, Senate and Treasury tax spokesmen, said no decisions have yet been reached on tax methods or amounts.

Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, who will return here tomorrow for the preliminary discussions, has predicted a tax bill ranging between $1,000,000,000 and $2,000,000,000.

Doughton said he believes public sentiment favors financing a large part of emergency defense spending through current taxation "rather than passing it on to the next generation."

"The Treasury tells me there were practically no complaints from increases in the last two tax bills," Doughton said. "I attribute that to two things. First, they are patriotically anxious to coperate with their Government in the present emergency. Second, many people are making more money and able to pay more."

The Ways and Means chairman said much of the new revenue can come from rate changes in the existing tried income and excise tax structures, but Congress may have to go beyond the present "peacetime" tax structure.

Pending consultation with his Joint Internal Revenue Committee staff and Treasury experts, he said he was not entirely ruling out proposals for a sales tax or gross salary taxes.

"I hope we won't have to resort to a sales tax but I won't mark off anything," said Doughton, who has consistently fought direct consumer taxes.

Doughton probably will call his committee together late this week or early next, but has set no date for opening House hearings.

Another Rebuff for Berlin

Hull Backs De Kauffmann, Agrees Denmark's Recall of Envoy Was Made 'Under Duress'

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

The State Department yesterday took sides with the man who represents Denmark rather than the nation which subjugated it, and informed Henrik de Kauffmann that it would continue to recognize him as Danish Minister despite recall orders from his Nazi-dominated government.

The diplomatic slap to the German forces of conquest was announced by Secretary of State Hull, who made public an interchange of notes showing that De Kauffmann and Hull agreed that the orders for the minister's recall were those of a government "acting under duress" and hence invalid.

The orders were prompted, De Kauffmann's correspondence showed, by his negotiations and execution of the agreement of April 9 bringing Greenland into the sphere of American defense, a document which the Danish government has declared "invalid."

Not the First Time

Although the Danish Minister said at the time that he signed the agreement in behalf of King Christian, his note to Hull revealed that he informed his government of the pact the day after it was signed.

This act, which precipitated the recall orders, was not De Kauffmann's first to provoke the anger of Denmark's conquerors. Recently the Minister ignored instructions to lodge a protest with the American Government against the seizure of 39 Danish merchant vessels in United States harbors. A year ago, when Nazi armies overran his country, the diplomat boldly announced that he would work for only one thing, the reestablishment of a free and independent Denmark.

In his note to Hull, delivered yesterday, De Kauffmann said that he had received a cable from the Danish foreign office reporting that his government "strongly disapproves" of the Greenland pact executed by him "without authorization." The message added that he was recalled by royal decree, and that the legation here should be placed temporarily in the charge of Einar Blechingberg, charge de affaires.

"Believe It to Be My Duty"

De Kauffmann said, "I believe it to be my duty towards my King and my country to carry on the work that was entrusted to me when I was appointed Danish Minister to Washington by a free Danish government and to let myself be guided by the same principles as hereto. This attitude of mine has the full support of all the other members of the Danish foreign service stationed in the United States."

Hull's reply took note that the Danish government "purports" to have recalled its minister, but added that "my Government considers it to be the fact that the government of Denmark in this respect is acting under duress" and consequently would continue to recognize De Kauffmann as the duly authorized minister.

Hull repeated that the Administration "renews its hope for the speedy liberation of Denmark."

In a memorandum accompanying the text of the notes, the State Department explained that since the Nazi occupation of Denmark on April 9 last year, the country has remained in subjugation to 200,000 German troops "and no act of the Danish government since that time has been taken or can be taken save with the consent of the occupying power or as a result of its dictation."

The statement classed Denmark's government as "patently acting under duress and which is in no sense a free agent."

It repeated assurances given at the time the Greenland agreement was signed that the step was taken in Denmark's interest "and with full recognition of the sovereignty of Denmark over Greenland as well as with the hope and belief that the time is not far distant when that sovereignty can once more be freely exercised by a free and independent Danish government."

Italy Protests Anew Over Ships

Copyright by New York Times

A new protest against the taking of 28 Italian merchant ships into protective custody in American ports was delivered to the State Department yesterday by Prince Colonna, Italian Ambassador.

It was described as presenting nothing new over the two protests previously made by the Ambassador on his own initiative but set forth his reasoning in somewhat more detail on the basis of a draft received from the foreign office in Rome.

Secretary Hull indicated that it would not modify his earlier rejection of Prince Colonna's protests.

Hull said at his press conference that no consideration was being given as far as he knew to the requisitioning of French ships in American ports and that he had not even heard discussed any question of taking the ships of the Baltic republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

Gayda Warns U. S.

Rome, April 14 (AP).—Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editorialist, said today that the Axis considers itself free to attack any or all ships bearing aid for the British in African waters.

Referring to President Roosevelt's lifting of the ban on American ships entering the Red Sea, Gayda said, "Whatever passes in the enemy service may legitimately be attacked by Italian and Axis forces which are ever present.

"It is well that this is made clear in time."

Gayda said Mr. Roosevelt could not venture to announce that, with the liquidation of Italy in East Africa, American convoys could pass quietly to Egypt and the Balkans via the Red Sea.

He also warned against American ships convoying aid for Britain.

"The Axis powers," he said, "are waiting on the alert and ready for this new form of North American aid. It is useless to say they will deal with it as international law permits and as has been fixed by a duly declared counter-blockade against British convoys."

Nonvoting Clause For P. U. C. Hit

Characterizing the provision as absurd, Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, yesterday introduced a bill to eliminate from the law governing selection of members of the District Public Utilities Commission a clause requiring that appointees must not have voted for three years prior to their nomination.

McCarran, chairman of a subcommittee studying nomination to the commission of Gregory Hankin, Federal Power Commission attorney, pointed out that the law also provides that commission members should be residents of the District. In view of this provision, he said, he believes the clause covering voting to be unnecessary.

McCarran said action on the Hankin appointment could be expected soon.

Wallace Tells of Defense Unity In Pan-American Broadcast

Vice President Wallace told the world on behalf of the 21 American republics yesterday that "we are building an impenetrable defense, moral as well as material."

His address before the Pan American Union's governing board was part of a hemispheric celebration of Pan-American Day. In Spanish and English his words went by short-wave radio to the nations of the Western world.

"In the great struggle for the survival of human freedom, we have not been willing to resign ourselves to the role of idle spectators of a scene whose consequence must so affect our future," he declared.

"In witnessing the tragic downfall of small, peace-loving nations, none of the American republics has been willing to wait its turn."

Seek Economic Stability

The Vice President emphasized that by planning "a more abundant life," the nations of the Western Hemisphere are striving for economic stability" rather than for "economic subordination."

He warned, "If we, the peoples of the New World, do not measure up to the extraordinary responsibility which the events of the past 25 years have thrust upon us, we shall in all truth be reduced to a state of impotence and confusion."

Declaring that "The torch of civilization has been placed in our hands," Vice President Wallace cited the "raw materials" of physical resources and human skills which are speeding the work of welding the American Republics together.

"We intend to encourage that commercial intercourse which arises out of good faith, peaceful purpose and which is conducted openly and fairly," he said. "Against commerce on any other plan we are forewarned."

Sees Era of Progress

It is possible that Latin America will go through an expansion during the next 50 years similar to that of the United States between 1860 and 1910, Mr. Wallace said.

"Based on the experience of the United States, it is quite possible that Latin America 50 years hence will have a capital investment in industry more than ten times that which she has today," he stated. "It is quite possible that her wage earners may increase by three times, and the value of manufactured output ten or 15 times."

Mr. Wallace was introduced by Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, the Mexican Ambassador, Nelson A. Rockefeller, coordinator of cultural and commercial relations between the American republics, presented Dr. Castillo Najera.

Welcome by Rockefeller

In a brief welcome Rockefeller observed that "Peace reigns among us because we have a deep feeling of international integrity, a sense of mutual trust, and a firm determination to preserve a way of life that is dear to all the peoples of the Americas."

The luncheon gathering was held at the Pan-American Union Building. At 6 p. m. yesterday Edwin C. Hill, the news commentator, discussed inter-American travel, on a broadcast to South America.

A concert of Latin American music was broadcast from the Pan-American Union headquarters last night by the United States Navy Band orchestra under the direction of Lieut. Charles Benter. Lila Cerda, Chilean soprano, and Angelo Reyes, Cuban violinist, were guest artists with the orchestra.

In New York last night approximately 300 writers gathered at the Waldorf to honor Ciro Alegria, of Peru, and Miguel Angel Menendez, of Mexico, first and second prize winners, respectively, in the Latin American novel contest sponsored by Farrar and Rinehart, publishers, and Redbook magazine.

A program of Latin American songs and dances will be presented in the auditorium of the George Washington High School, Alexandria, Va., Saturday at 8 p. m. The program will be held under the auspices of the St. Agnes School Parents-Teachers Association.

Deadline Hour For D. C. Income Tax Is Midnight

Midnight tonight is the deadline for filing 1940 District income tax returns and for making first-half payments, Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent warned yesterday.

The office on the first floor of the District Building will remain open until the deadline hour, he said, and all returns and payments sent by mail will be accepted if postmarked before midnight.

Dent said he expected some 15,000 returns in tomorrow's mail. Although there were reports at the District Building that returns were expected to fall short of last year, Dent said the crowds making personal returns and the daily deluge of mail appeared "about the same."

Navy Band Presents Program of Latin Airs

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Pan American Union observes Pan-American Day with a concert by the United States Navy Band Orchestra, directed by Lieut. Charles Benter, on Monday night in the Hall of the Americas. Guest artists: Lila Cerda, Chilean soprano (Emerson Meyers, accompanist) and Angel Reyes, Cuban violinist (Angel Reyes Camejo, accompanist). Program of compositions representing Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Cuba, Mexico, Peru, United States and Uruguay.

Guests of the Pan American Union filled the Hall of the Americas last evening at a concert closing the annual observance of Pan-American Day in Washington. Lieut. Charles Benter directed the United States Navy Band Orchestra in the major portion of a program containing music by 12 composers representing nine republics of the Western Hemisphere, and the guest artists were the Chilean soprano, Lila Cerda, and the Cuban violinist, Angel Reyes. Familiar music from the Southern countries was notable by its absence, and there were novelties enough to satisfy the curious seeker after the unknown.

BROWN

The concert began with an orchestral "Elegia" by Luis Calvo, of Colombia, a work melodically attractive and structurally interesting. Luis Guzman, a member of the orchestra, had arranged this piece with effective instrumentation. Despite its title, the elegy had little melancholy in its mood, nor was there much local color in its harmonies.

Native themes and rhythms constituted the warp and woof of the Inca suite, "Punenas," by Isabel Thiele, of Argentina. Primitive aspects of the music were emphasized in the simplicity of the structure, and the direct impact of the melodies was not marred by any formal development. The three movements were mainly pastoral in character and descriptive of the Andean life.

From Uruguay came Eduardo Fabini's symphonic poem, "Campo," which revealed the thorough musicianship and the poetic imagination of the composer. Another Uruguayan writer, Benone Calcavecchia, had a place with his ingenious and atmospheric "Preludio." The last orchestral number was Aaron Copland's "El Salon Mejico."

Lila Cerda, whose soprano voice showed sedulous schooling, contributed two groups of songs in which she was accompanied by Emerson Meyers. Three of the songs were by composers of her native land: "Plante una mata de rosa" by Urrutia Blondel, "El Encuentro" by Humberto Allendo and "Cancion de cuna" by Domingo Santa Cruz. Others "La Tisanera" by Mercedes Ayarza de Morales of Peru, and "Cancao do mar" by Lorenzo Fernandez of Brazil.

In his first appearance on the program, Angel Reyes, the violinist, played two Cuban dances, "Tambo" and "Yemaya," by his father, Angel Reyes Camejo, who accompanied him. These afforded him little opportunity for his virtuosity, which was later demonstrated to the full in his performance of an unaccompanied sonata by Julian Carillo, of Mexico.

Senor Carillo has long been known in this country as a bold experimenter in subdivisions of musical tone—even to sixteenth-tones. But in this remarkable sonata he laid aside these experiments and wrote in the old forms and tonalities with a marked originality. Of the two movements the first is a largo in pure classical style and the second a free fugue of great technical difficulty. Senor Reyes played the work with a skill that made light of such virtuosic tricks as double-stopped glissandi, and with a purity of intonation that clarified each phrase and ornament.

27 in Fairfax County Will Be Inducted Today

Twenty-seven white registrants have been ordered to report to the Fairfax County Selective Service Board for induction today and 11 colored men tomorrow. These quotas will be the last to be sent to Baltimore for induction, according to Herbert Blunt, chairman. In the future, registrants will be sent to Richmond.

"Why, I Never Realized WASHINGTON PERMANENT BUILDING ASSOCIATION Is Part of a Sound Business 110 Years Old!"

THAT'S RIGHT! This month, Washington Permanent, along with more than 6,000 savings and loan associations in America, is celebrating the 110th birthday of the first home loan made by the first savings and loan association.
In the 110 years that have elapsed since that first home loan was made to a lamplighter in Frankford, Pennsylvania, more than 11½ million homes have been financed on a similar repay-from-income plan.
Identified with a Sound Business
Washington Permanent is proud to be identified with a business that has served faithfully millions of Americans in their home financing and thrift needs. And especially during uncertain times, when homes and savings stand for family security, are we proud of the obligation entrusted to us in protecting the homes and the financial futures of American citizens.
A Record of Achievement
Since its establishment 60 years ago, Washington Permanent Building Association has loaned millions of dollars to home buyers and home owners. It has assisted materially in the development of the Nation's Capital by encouraging the erection of sound dwellings and the improvement of property. Ever mindful of its obligations to community service, the officers and directors of the Washington Permanent offer its patrons and other friends the years of accumulated experience gained through close contact with the problems of the home owner.
GET YOUR ANNIVERSARY BOOKLET FREE
To celebrate this anniversary, we have prepared a special booklet for you, a valuable addition to your library, a helpful assistant for the children in school, a piece for your pleasurable reading! You'll find three pages of American historical events in brief form, ideal for a permanent record. There are pictorial facts about the authenticity of American-designed furniture, an exclusive house plan of a Georgian Colonial home with three variations in architecture that are sure to please. You'll like the special art work, the wealth of pictures, and the two-page picture map of the United States.

Pincers Close On Italians In Ethiopia

By Godfrey Anderson

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, April 11 (Delayed).—South African planes pounded a retreating Italian army northwest of this captured capital as the first of the season's "little rains" drenched Ethiopia today.

The Italian force numbering about 5,000, including some white troops, was caught between two fires—the British occupying this city and the pro-British native army approaching from the northwest. British officers forecast their certain destruction or surrender as they retired after blowing up a bridge over the Blue Nile near Derba Markos.

"We caught them in a rare piece of open country," said one pilot just returned from the raid. "We let them have everything we had, bombs and machine guns. Many were on horses. They charged wildly to and fro, but could find no cover. We must have inflicted many casualties."

Desertions Reported

The main Italian forces still were concentrating in the northern area, but it was believed there had been considerable disintegration of those forces through desertions.

Peace and quiet prevailed in the capital and the British military had the situation well in hand after disarming all Italians and Ethiopians in the city area.

Most of the shops were open and doing business as usual, but the banks were temporarily closed and only military automobiles were allowed in the streets, where Italian white and native police temporarily remain on duty.

Natives Apathetic

The natives, for the most part, seemed apathetic to the change in their government and frequently greeted British officers with a Fascist salute—apparently the only one they know.

Many Italian officers and soldiers still were about the city in full uniform, but without weapons, and the city was packed with refugees.

There was no apparent shortage of food in any part of the city and the finest of wines and delicacies were available at the hotels.

The city's airfield was littered with the wreckage of burned-out Savoia bombers destroyed by the South African raiders last week, but business areas remained undamaged.

Mrs. Bonner Heads Page Woman's Club

Luray, Va., April 14.—Mrs. J. H. Bonner, wife of the supervising physician of the Shenandoah health district, has been named president of the Page County Woman's Club. Other officers are Mrs. W. P. Hershberger, first vice president; Mrs. J. N. Black, second vice president; Mrs. T. J. McCaleb, recording secretary; Mrs. Sherrill Wright, corresponding secretary, and treasurer, Mrs. G. C. Miller.

End of an Era in Africa: How British Took Ethiopia

FROM ALL SIDES came the British Empire and native Ethiopian forces that have all but put the finishing touches to Italy's East African empire. Arrows show eight different thrusts. "A" denotes where native Ethiopian troops operated. The area southwest of Addis Ababa, while not occupied by British, is mostly a wild country of little strategic importance. British Somaliland was occupied by the Italians when the British East African campaign was launched

Wadsworth Proposes Changes To End SEC 'Reign of Terror'

Representative Wadsworth (Republican), New York, yesterday offered amendments to the Securities and Exchange Act which he told the House "will help to put both dollars and men to work and thus fortify our free institutions."

In general, he said, the amendments would reduce the cost of complying with requirements for registering security issues for public sale and were designed to end "a sort of reign of terror" by the Securities and Exchange Commission over businessmen.

Simplification Proposed

The amendments would:

1. Provide for a form of prospectus "which will be more comprehensible to investors" by limiting the requirements to "essentials" and "eliminating the voluminous mass of unimportant detail now required."

2. Authorize publication, "subject to adequate safeguards against false or misleading statements, of simple descriptive newspaper advertisements informing the public of security offerings."

3. Simplify what Wadsworth described as "needlessly complicated registration procedure" and reduce "the excessive costs now involved in registration."

4. Reduce the statutory waiting period for securities sales from 20 to 7 days.

5. Forbid issuance of SEC rules or regulations "without giving persons adversely affected a fair opportunity to be heard."

6. Forbid the Commission to publish charges of wrongdoing or violation of law until such charges are proved.

7. Provide "prompt relief" to persons injured or aggrieved by "any arbitrary or unreasonable act or ruling of an officer or employes of the Commission, with an opportunity to appeal to the courts if he cannot obtain relief within the Commission."

8. Amend the preamble of the Securities and Exchange Act so as to instruct the Commission that "its duty is to encourage and foster orderly, active, stable and liquid securities markets for the protection of investors, as well as to police these markets to prevent fraud and other abuses."

One-Man Inquiry

Wadsworth said that his amendments were based on a one-man inquiry he conducted among "corporations engaged in productive business."

"From it (the investigation)," he said, "I gather that certain provisions of our laws and of the regulations are exceedingly and needlessly onerous, especially as they affect the little fellow."

Chairman Edward C. Eicher of the Securities and Exchange Commission said last night that the amendments would be studied jointly by the SEC and representatives of private industry.

Eicher said the suggestions would be "fully and carefully reviewed" with other possible amendments which the SEC has been considering.

"We have been working constantly on the problem since last September," he said. "We have had almost weekly conferences with officials of the Investment Bankers Association, the National Association of Securities Dealers, the New York Stock Exchange, the New York Curb Exchange and representatives of the various smaller exchanges . . . We are nearing the end of the job."

Another conference is scheduled for Friday, he added.

Observers Glum on Prospect Of Stopping Nazis Short of Suez

By the Associated Press

Highly competent observers took an exceedingly glum view last night of the short-run prospects of the British and their allies in the terrific struggle now raging in the Balkans and Northern Africa.

The question being asked was not whether the British, the Greeks and the Yugoslavs can stop the Nazis where they are, but whether they can prevent the foe from making a clean sweep of the whole eastern Mediterranean, including Egypt, the Suez Canal and the Middle East oil fields.

Despite reports from many quarters that the British had succeeded in getting a formidable army of 200,000 or more men to Greece, informed persons here have been saying privately all along that it was ahrdly larger than a "token force"—say 50,000 or 60,000 men.

If that force should be defeated and all of Greece taken, observers here would consider it a blow to the Allies, but not necessarily an extremely serious one, provided the Nazi gains stopped there.

After all, it is pointed out, one of the purposes of opening a front in the Balkans was to create a diversion, to draw some of the German strength away from the main theater of the war, the Atlantic in and about England. The "token" force would thus have served a good purpose, it is argued, even though only for a short time.

But the amazing thrust of the Germans along the North African coast to Egypt is considered something else again. There is evidence, it is said, that the British miscalculated the strength of this German operation.

Steel Firms Hike Pay of 431,000

day midnight in the corporation's 69 plants.

The union lost its demand for a check-off of union dues; for recognition of the union as exclusive bargaining agent of all employes, and for "job protection" for employes called into military service.

Steel observers have predicted that a steel wage boost, accompanied by an increase in miners' wages, would cause a price rise.

Aside from the direct addition to wage costs, United States Steel said, a "substantial" increase in indirect costs was anticipated and it remained to be seen what added Federal taxes Congress might vote at this session.

Revisions in steel wages and prices, it was explained, frequently are transmitted along the line to allied fields of production, coming back to United States Steel in form of added costs of materials and services.

The 1937 initial contract between the Steel Corporation and the S. W. O. C., it was recalled, quickly brought announcement of a general advance in steel prices.

Now producers face the new price control setup in Washington under the defense program and its reported opposition to an upward trend in industrial prices.

Since steel enters into manufacture of thousands of products for defense and civilian needs, the pricing of steel was considered in business quarters a key to manufacturing costs generally.

Oil Men Get Pay Rise

New York, April 14 (AP).—Consolidated Oil Co. announced today agreement with the Sinclair Nationwide Council (C. I. O.) for a 5-cent-an-hour wage increase to the 9,500 employes of Sinclair Refining Co. and Sinclair Prairie Oil Co., operating subsidiaries.

Contracts Let To Erect 5 More Airport Hangars

The development program of Washington National Airport moved ahead a step yesterday with the award of a $2,076,700 contract for the construction of five additional hangars.

The Public Buildings Administration announced that the low bidder is John McShain, Inc., of Philadelphia, the same firm which built the first hangars on the field and which is now completing the terminal building.

The new hangars, which are to be 223 feet long, will be flat-topped, and with a seventh hangar proposed for eventual construction, will form a unit covering six acres. The hangars will be leased by the Government to airlines using the Gravelly Point facilities, and will contain repair shops and offices. They are to be completed within nine months.

3 Women Held in Marine's Death

Three young women were held in the Prince William County Jail at Manassas, Va., last night in the fatal stabbing Sunday of Private Aubrey Heyl, 24-year-old Marine of Warrenton, Va., stationed at the Quantico Marine Barracks.

Col. John Sebree, provost marshal of the Marine Barracks, said that Heyl was stabbed about 3:50 a. m. Sunday, in a rooming house in the town of Quantico, and that he died shortly afterward in Quantico Base Hospital. He added that the body had been taken to Warrenton.

Held on a warrant charging murder was Helen Schuler, 20, of Richmond, according to Mrs. Katie Garner, matron of the Prince William County Jail. Mary E. Shirry, 21, of Quantico, and Mildred Mae Downs, 26, of Quantico, were held at material witnesses.

They were held without bond pending a preliminary hearing at 10 a. m. tomorrow before Judge Lacey Compton, at Manassas.

Col. Sebree said Private Heyl had died as a result of a knife wound, which entered his chest just above the heart and severed an artery.

YOU can avoid baldness by ridding your scalp of dandruff and other local causes of hair-loss. Haphazard methods won't help—in fact they may spread infection over a larger area. Precise, accurate treatment, such as administered in Thomas offices, is helping 1600 other persons each day, and offers you the most reliable, practical solution to your scalp problems.

Thomas treatment effectively prevents baldness because it replaces guesswork with modern precision and accuracy. First a Thomas expert examines your scalp carefully and determines which of the 14 local causes of hair-loss are attacking your hair-growing structure. He then directs the 20-year proved Thomas treatment to overcome those specific causes. Soon your abnormal hair-fall stops, your dandruff disappears, scalp itch ceases, and normal hair growth is noticeable.

Come in today and see for yourself just how Thomas treatment can help you to avoid baldness. No charge is ever made for consultation or advice.

Miss Perkins Enters Talks On Coal Wages

By the Associated Press

New York, April 14.—Secretary of Labor Perkins entered deadlocked soft coal wage negotiations personally tonight, but declined to say what she told management and union negotiators.

After conferring with the negotiators for an hour and 20 minutes, Miss Perkins emerged from the conference saying she had another engagement and would not return to the meeting.

"There's nothing I have to say," she told reporters. "I had a very pleasant meeting with the gentlemen. I answered some questions.

She walked into the night session beginning shortly after 8 p. m. (E. S. T.) between Northern Appalachian bituminous operators representing 35 per cent of the country's production and the United Mine Workers of America (C. I. O.), repeating her action of two years ago at the last contract negotiations.

Later Dr. John R. Steelman, chief of the Government Conciliation Service, said Miss Perkins had stressed the "intense" desire of the Government for an early resumption of operations in at least some of the mines, and in all of them as soon as possible.

The negotiators adjourned until 4 p. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow. Dr. Steelman described the next session as likely to be "a very important one."

The Southern Appalachian producers, who also represented about 35 per cent of the national output, bolted the general Appalachian conference last week on the grounds that the union and Northern operators were attempting to impose on the South wage conditions the region was unable to bear.

The union, Northern operators and Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the United States conciliation service, resumed negotiations after a weekend recess.

Meanwhile, Northern operators assembled in Washington to prepare briefs of their case in event the deadlock was certified to the National Mediation Board.

Heretofore the Appalachian contract, which sets the wage and hour standards for the entire industry, provided a $5 a day basic wage in the South and $6 in the North. The union is asking a flat $7 a day basic wage, thus eliminating the 40-cent-a-day differential.

Northern Appalachian operators have agreed to this union demand. Gov. Johnson said freight rate advantages of northern operators have made it impossible for Southern mines to pay high wages.

At their Washington meeting, Southerners, organizing their own "Southern coal operators wage conference" to negotiate separately with the union, declared that the Northern group and the union were "strangling the Nation in its defense program" by holding off a new wage-hour agreement until the Southerners agreed to it.

They reiterated their offer of a 11 per cent wage increase and to reopen production pending settlement of other union demands.

L. Ebersole Gaines, chairman of the conference, said coal shortages were becoming dangerous and that renewed production immediately "is a matter of grave national importance."

The War Department meanwhile said it was informed the Peerless Woolen Mills at Rossville, Ga., would have to halt work on Army blankets and overcoat cloth if coal supplies were not replenished, but a company official declared later there was no immediate danger of a shortage.

"We merely asked the War Departmetn to hasten negotiations in the soft coal strike," the spokesman said.

From Youngstown, Ohio, came word that Republic Steel Corporation officials said the work stoppage caused the "premature" closing of a blast furnace, the imminent closing of another, and the slowing down of coke production in the corporation's coke plant.

Sen. Murdock Assails Antistrike Legislation

On the eve of three Congressional hearings on defense problems, Senator Abe Murdock, Utah Democrat, last night attacked antistrike legislation and asserted that "the defense program is not being materially impeded by industrial disputes."

Senator Murdock declared over a Nation-wide network that "the profits of big industrial corporations are now soaring to fantastic heights."

"It is healthy human nature," he said, "that American workers should desire to participate in these fantastic profits."

Asserting that "the cost of living is rapidly rising," the Utah New Dealer stated that "American workers must receive higher wages."

The three Congressional committees that will conduct hearings on various phases of the defense program at 10:30 this morning are:

The Special Senate Committee under Senator Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, which will commence its inquiry into the Nation's rearmament effort with testimony from Secretary Stimson and Undersecretary of War Robert L. Patterson;

The House Military Affairs Committee, which will hear Donald M. Nelson, director of the Purchasing Division of the OPM, and also J. B. Matthews, of the Dies Committee.

The House Naval Affairs Committee, scheduled to begin hearings on the "cooling off period" bill, introduced by its chairman, Representative Carl Vinson (Democrat), of Georgia. Both Representative Vinson and Secretary Knox will testify.

Asserting that he thought that the committee would favorably report his bill this week, Representative Vinson said he "certainly" expected it to be passed.

Asked if he had Administration support, he retored: "It's up to Congress to write these laws."

The Vinson bill would impose a 30-day cooling-off period in disputes involving naval contracts, and would preserve the status quo in respect to open or closed shops.

....Too Rich for whose Blood?"

HAVE YOU EVER HEARD anyone say about Pontiac, "Yes, it's a fine car, all right. Big, good-looking, easy to handle. But it's too rich for my blood"?

If and when you hear such a statement, you can be sure of one thing. The man who's talking has never owned a Pontiac.

As a matter of fact, both buying and driving a Pontiac are much less expensive than most people realize.

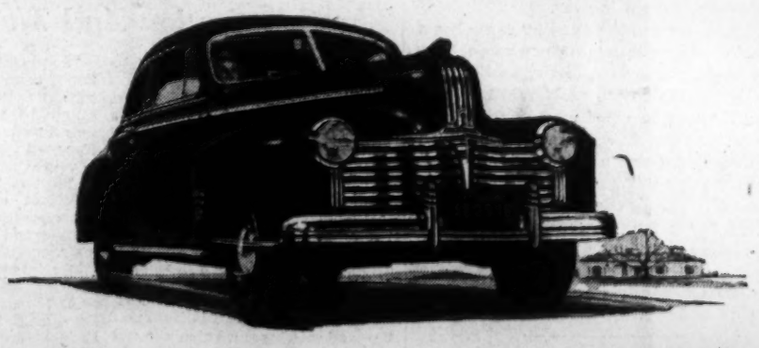

Pontiac prices are so close to the lowest that the difference in monthly payments is almost unbelievably small.

And many owners claim that they operate their Pontiacs for less than they formerly spent on much smaller cars.

Before you decide that a new Pontiac "Torpedo" is too rich for your blood, we suggest that you talk to a Pontiac owner who formerly drove a lowest-priced car. Then see your Pontiac dealer and ride in one, drive it—and get all the facts and figures which prove that, if you can afford any new car you can afford a Pontiac!

★ PONTIAC PRICES BEGIN AT $828 FOR THE DE LUXE "TORPEDO" SIX BUSINESS COUPE

Turn In Africa

The drive which a German-Italian mechanized force has been making in Libya has now wiped out all the territorial gains previously achieved by Gen. Wavell's Army of the Nile. Bardia fell on Saturday after an encircling movement which left a British garrison stranded at Tobruk. Axis forces have since pressed on into Egypt, with fighting reported to have taken place at Sollum in the western desert. There are indications that the British may find it expedient to withdraw to their base at Marsah Matruh, whence Gen. Wavell launched his offensive against the Italians last December.

The threat to the British life line embodied in this surprising turn of events in North Africa is not to be minimized. The retreat into Egypt of the skeleton British forces maintained in Libya after the bulk of Wavell's army had been rushed to Greece is not yet a disaster. Yet it may easily develop into a disaster, for the sequence of events is cumulative. In the face of British sea power, the Germans had managed to land troops, machines and supplies in Libya. It is not impossible that this force is steadily being strengthened. And even if, because of their over-extended lines, the approach of tropical summer heat and other considerations, the Axis forces do not at this time make an attempt to drive on toward Alexandria, they are again in a position to harass Alexandria, the Suez Canal and shipping in the Red Sea and the eastern Mediterranean. The problem of defending Egypt which the British believed they had solved now faces them again. And it faces them in far more acute form than it did when they had simply to deal with Marshal Graziani's army and the obsolescent Italian air force.

There is another danger arising out of the presence of German troops in Libya. This lies in the fact that these troops, which have been moving east at a headlong pace, can with equal ease move west, if necessary. Gen. Weygand's forces in Tunisia, Algiers, Morocco and West Africa may be considerable in numbers. But they lack supplies, mechanized equipment and planes. It is not inconceivable that if they are halted in their drive toward Suez, the Germans will turn around and cut through French North Africa to Tangier, on the one hand, and Dakar on the other. That would give them a base of operations against Gibraltar. Also it would give them a foothold from which submarine and air attacks on British shipping in the South Atlantic might be launched.

Possibly British sea and air power will yet succeed in cutting off those troops from their supplies. Whether it can do so is not at all clear in view of the rival claims to British attention, particularly the all-important British need of maintaining unimpaired communications between Egypt and Greece.

Freedom Of The Air

The Senate may open debate today on the Treasury-Postoffice appropriations bill for 1942. Treatment of this measure will determine, for the coming year at least, whether we are to permit monopoly of America's foreign air service. The House voted in favor of monopoly for the second time when it deleted a mail subsidy for American Export Airlines, which is seeking to set up a route to Lisbon in competition with Pan American Airways. The Senate Appropriations Committee restored this fund, but, judging from past experience with the bill, exponents of the American way must look for a hard battle on the floor and in conference. Congress, of course, is not in a position to say in so many words that there shall not be another airline to Lisbon. But defeat of the payment for carrying the mail would amount to the same thing, for it is generally recognized that new lines of this sort cannot operate without Government support.

In the past when new companies have had the approval of the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Postoffice Department, mail contracts have been forthcoming automatically. The CAB has issued a certificate of public convenience and necessity to American Export for the Lisbon line. And, presumably, it followed the terms of the Civil Aeronautics Act, which directs the board to consider "competition to the extent necessary to assure the sound development of an air transport system." American Export also has the support of the President, the State Department, the Postoffice Department, the Army and the Navy. Thus it would seem that American Export's expenditure of $2,000,000 in research was based on a tacitly accepted Government policy the discontinuance of which was hardly to be expected.

However, the House Appropriations Committee chose to challenge all these authorities. Expressly affected by the fine record of Pan American, the committee ruled that, "distasteful as monopoly may be under ordinary conditions," the wise course was to strengthen the present company against foreign competition expected after the war. That was to be done by continuance of the Pan American monopoly. The Post begs to differ from the legislators in this view. There is room for another American company in the growth of foreign air trade, and competition will encourage the expansion of business in the air as it has in other lines of endeavor. The Senate should consider that a swing toward monopoly by denial of a subsidy for a second foreign airline would tend to congeal enterprising capital which would contribute to employment and prosperity. It may also be reminded that competition is the only way in which we can prepare ourselves for the air-minded postwar world.

Two-Way Trade

It is good news to record on the morrow of Pan American Day that during 1940 trade between the United States and the Latin-American countries reached the highest total since 1929. Our exports to the 20 Latin-American republics showed a gain of 28 per cent over the preceding year, while imports were 20 per cent higher. Compared with the last prewar year, 1938, the gains were even more impressive, exports having increased about 47 per cent and imports, 37 per cent. Gratifying as this trade expansion is, the disproportionately rapid rise in our exports has had one unfortunate effect. It has brought about an adverse trade balance for Latin America. The deficit last year was $100,000,000, and it created a serious financing problem.

For a time, of course, it is possible to bridge a widening gap between what we sell to the countries of Latin America and what we buy from them by means of loans. However, as L. B. Clark, chief of the Latin-American Section of the Department of Commerce, points out in a current trade survey, the recent trend toward increasingly adverse trade balances for Latin America cannot continue indefinitely. A sound basis for a permanently enlarged export trade with the countries to the south of us calls for a correspondingly rapid expansion of import buying. In other words, Latin America can only pay for greatly increased purchases of our goods by correspondingly increased sales of goods. And with customary European outlets cut off or greatly restricted, that means that more Latin-American goods have to be sold in the United States. Consequently, the Department of Commerce is especially interested in the trend of imports from Latin America and encouraged by any evidence that they are overtaking exports.

Late in 1940 Mr. Clark reports that the excess of exports in our favor began to taper off. In trade with the ten South American countries the failure of our exports to maintain the rate of expansion recorded in the first half of 1940 was especially pronounced. The absolute value of monthly shipments from the United States also declined toward the close of the year. The 1940 trend of imports from South America to the United States, however, was upward, the top figure being reached in December. There has been a quite spectacular increase in the import trade in raw wool. Most of this comes from Argentina and Uruguay. In 1940 we bought about $47,000,000 worth of it, an increase of 173 per cent over 1939, and almost 500 per cent over 1938. Chile benefited from our copper purchases, which were almost double those of 1938. Our purchases of hides and skins likewise expanded, supplies coming chiefly from Argentina and Brazil. Increased buying of various strategic raw materials, such as manganese, tungsten tin, etc., also mounted.

Although much of this increased buying is due to the war and the extraordinary needs of the defense program, it is our hope and our endeavor to build up a trade with Latin America which will resist the disrupting effect of postwar readjustments. The best guarantee of success in that effort is provided by an expanding import trade capable of acting as an adequate offset to exports.

Leveling A City

The vengeance which the Nazis have visited upon Belgrade appears to have been more fearful even than the punishment inflicted upon Warsaw, Rotterdam, Dunkirk and Coventry. If we can trust the fragmentary reports, hardly more than a store or two remains standing of what only a few days ago was the busy capital of a nation of more than 10,000,000 people. Most of the inhabitants got out after the first bombardment. Nevertheless, says a statement by the Yugoslav government, the streets were littered with the corpses of men, women and children mowed down by machine-gun fire as they fled from their blazing homes. Evidently the people had no protection, and the rapidity of the destruction of Belgrade seems to prove that it was in fact what the Yugoslavs had declared it to be, viz., an "open" or unfortified city. Not even in the wars of antiquity, or in the history of the Moslem conquests, can one find instances of such devastation accomplished in so short a time upon so vast a scale. Only in the thirteenth century, when the terrible tide of the Mongol invasion swept into eastern Europe, can anything like a parallel be found.

Belgrade is a very ancient city, but unlike Cracow, Louvain, Ghent and Amiens, which have also tasted the furor teutonicus, it contained few ancient monuments. Its long history has been punctuated by sieges and wars, and it has probably changed hands oftener than any other city in Europe. It was a fortified place in Celtic times, long before the Slavs came swarming into it from across the Carpathians. And when the Romans took Illyricum, they maintained a great military base at Belgrade. After the disintegration of the empire, Belgrade was taken and retaken—by the Huns, by the Goths, by the Merovingians, by the Magyars, by the Bulgars. Twice the armies of the Byzantine Emperor recaptured it only to lose it again. Against the Ottoman Turks, however, Belgrade held out for nearly 80 years after the fall of Constantinople.

The city is part of the record of World War I as it now is of this war. Belgrade was bombarded by the Austrians and abandoned to them by its defenders. But the taking of Belgrade in November, 1914, proved a fatal victory, for it undoubtedly hastened the Austro-Hungarian collapse. The typhus plague was rife in the city, and the invaders were stricken by the thousands. This may not happen with the more careful and efficient Nazis, but typhus must be included among the "imponderables" of the Balkan War. And of these there are so many that the imagination is staggered. In these sad days man has need to draw on all his faith that at the end of the tragedy of a world at strife there is the dawn of an ampler life. But that life will never come by bowing to terror and tyranny.

Hey Ding-A-Ding

Well, they say that the news from abroad was even less cheerful than usual, but for once nobody heeded or cared. Yesterday the American people and their President had something more important to think of than wars, revolutions and the crash of empires. The 1941 big league baseball season was being inaugurated, and Washington had the festivities all to itself. For about an hour and 50 minutes nobody hereabouts had the bad taste to mention such matters as convoys, inflation, Soviet diplomacy, Greenland, or even the Red Sea. And if there was some mention of strikes, it was merely by way of tribute to Mr. Marius Russo, of the New York Yankees, who shut the Nationals out with three hits.

That sort of virtuosity is rather unusual in opening day games, but then this was a very unusual opening day. Had the weather been provided to suit specifications drawn up personally by Mr. Griffith, it could not have been better. Under the coaxing of an all-day sirocco, the thermometer had risen to 88 by game time, and while all this may have been a bit enervating to those who were forced to remain indoors, and to try to concentrate on such things as the writing of newspaper editorials, it was well-nigh perfect for the crowd and players at Griffith Stadium. The one bit of dross in all this golden good luck is the fact that Mr. Griffith's boys, whose preseason exploits had given us so much encouragement, didn't manage to win. But here in Washington we learn to be philosophical about such things. Besides, the best part of it all is the thought that there are a hundred-odd games to be played before the season is over.

But, of course, the opening game has a special ritualistic importance, aside from the score. It is a great folk institution, like the Maypole dancing of Merrie England. It is the way in which an urbanized and gregarious people celebrates the return of the spring; and a much better way it is, than some other modern ways we can think of. The sight of Mr. DiMaggio galloping for a long fly ball gladdens the heart like the sight of a gazelle in the glade, and the voice of the umpire is like the voice of the turtle in the time of the singing of birds.

WEEDING THE STRAWBERRIES

Make an old song that will run
Homely as the stain on hands;
Pull weeds . . . you have not begun
To make a swathe on these thick lands.

Ragweed, buttercup and dock,
The bitter sorrel, thistle, clover,
The false buckwheat that twists the rock,
And the fleabane must turn over.

Give the muscles freer play;
Let a whistle mould your lips.
Work will be too long today
As the weeds crack fingertips.

Cinquefoil, self-heal, salsify,
Morning glory, and devil's brush,
Pigweeds, daisy, these we see
Together in a weedy crush.

Count them over in your mind,
Fifty at least where one has been.
And every one a separate kind . . .
List them: time goes swifter then.

Lamb's quarters, hawkweed, a reddened shore
With their tough youngsters lined together.
St. John's wort, campions . . are there more?
Will you agree it's fine weed weather?

DANIEL SMYTHE.

America's Choice

Is it not possible that we who differ with Col. Lindbergh, instead of being dupes of British propaganda, may have carefully and prayerfully considered our only possible two courses of action? Both call for risks, hard work and sacrifice.

Our first is to help England now, not half-heartedly, but with all our powers and in any way that may be necessary for her survival. She is our only possible ally in Europe and, whatever her past mistakes, is fighting magnificently and sometimes most effectively—for confirmation please refer to Mussolini. Though she is hard-pressed, her navy, larger than ours, still controls all the oceans. If England wins with our help, American ideals will dominate the world.

The other course is to withdraw into complete isolation and watch all we have called civilization crushed. We would have to become a permanent military nation, with every interest subordinated to defense, in order to be allowed merely to exist in a world in which we would have neither influence nor friends.

It is for Americans to choose.

Education's Role

That skills and mobility have been lacking in European opposition to Nazi attacks, was the ripe judgment of a broadcaster of national repute recently, and that those faults characterized much of the education offered to American youth and children is the criticism of friends of education.

Walter Lippmann has urgently written for a restoration of the basic learning of the ages, and it should be repeated from many angles, for it is beginning to show the shoddy in many American institutions, and the resultant habits of the students. Though there seems little hope of changing human nature, it is possible to develop skills through discipline and habits of thought in fundamentals such as mathematics and scientific thinking.

The capacity to follow directions, to change language into actions and to measure results by standards, may be taught, but must be done deliberately, knowingly by teacher and pupil alike, and approved by superior officers. National unity must come through inculculation from the earliest years, and Federal aid to education as proposed in the Thomas-Harrison bill, ought to be enacted into law as swiftly as possible, if we would actually prepare America to defend itself by modern methods. We are weaker than we think.

CHARLES M. THOMAS,
Washington, April 11.

Party Discipline

This is an attempt by an impartial observer, a voteless citizen, to answer a letter by Mrs. Robert R. Bacon (a letter which appeared in The Post of April 12). Mrs. Bacon seems to have overlooked some very important items: As long as there will be political parties, there should and will be party discipline. That type of discipline, aside from political parties, exists only in some branches of the church and in the Army and Navy. Although we are being prodded into a war, we still sheepishly shun the very idea of anything militaristic.

We the people have temporarily lost all sense of discipline. We are living in a period when we demand: In literature, murderous thrillers; in politics, the glamourous; in economics, spectacular somersaults.

Vandenberg, Taft, Lodge, Martin are the leaders of the Republican Party. They were shouted down at an asssembly which reminded one of scenes in Coney Island. It was not, as it should have been, a gathering of the wisest men of the party, during which the one who would best represent their policies should have been nominated. Mr. Willkie suited the present mood of the masses. Mr. Willkie has repudiated the priceless heritage of his race—he has repudiated his political affiliations. Mr. Willkie may be the glamour child of repudiation, but he is not a Republican.

It would seem that Mrs. [illegible]on is mistaken, too, when she claims that the Democratic Party has undergone a great change. Is it not rather that a small minority within the party has taken control of the party itself? That minority comprises some very brilliant critics and destructors. When they started drawing the attention of the Nation to the fact that structures were lopsided, one was forced in all honesty to admit that they were, so dynamite was inserted, and the structures were blasted. Then the trouble began, for search as they might that minority was unable to find within its ranks a single man who could so much as build a shack, let alone some more solid and durable building.

The old-line Democrats stepped aside (or were stepped aside—take it as you will); the Republicans sniffed and growled, but started to construct; that's all they know how to do, poor souls, and there certainly is nothing glamorous about solid construction, nothing thrilling in normalcy.

We have repudiated our Constitution, and we don't know it, for these strange "nominating circuses" are a repudiation of the very spirit of our Constitution. But don't let's worry. When we'll have somersaulted ourselves into a trance, and when somebody will come along and crack us good and hard on the head—we'll wake up and come to our senses.

I have seen far worse things happen to great nations than will ever happen to ours—God bless us!

Jitterbugs On Parade

In regard to "Jifterbugs in Army" a letter to the editor signed "An Army Woman" I would like the privilege of saying that I did not see the "jitterbug, short-skirted, utterly disgusting females prancing about in a parade of our soldiers" but I am sorry that I missed it. To me the young girls switching around in their swing skiris are inspiring. I feel glad that someone has the incentive to feel like frolicking about in these woeful times.

The Constitution And The Poll Tax

The poll tax battle is on. I take my stand.

I agree with Mrs. Roosevelt that every individual is entitled to a vote. I believe in universal suffrage—the right of every man and woman, being 21 years of age, to vote in local, State and Federal elections. When I say universal, I mean universal: I mean black and white and all intermediate shades; I mean illiterates, paupers, habitual drunkards, neurotics, idiots, morons, lunatics, criminals and reationaries. I would exclude only those with ascertainable ape blood. Noisy lunatics and confined criminals could vote by absentee ballot—that would not be the first time that criminals and lunatics ever voted by an absentee ballot.

I could not believe anything else and be loyal to the Constitution of the United States. If I did not believe in absolute universal suffrage, I would launch immediately a campaign for repeal of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments.

Any limitation of suffrage debases rather than dignifies democracy.

I am profoundly opposed to the substitution of a literacy test for the poll tax. A tricky manipulation of a literacy test by unscrupulous politicians could disenfranchise more people than the poll tax—and it would save the politicians the expense of block payments of poll taxes.

The expedient preelection enthusiasm of candidates for repeal will shortly evanesce after election. Beneficiaries of the poll tax just can't get very excited about the issue, because the retention of the poll tax is essential to their political survival. Besides, the process for amending our State constitution is cumbersome and unwieldy, requiring four years at least.

I direct your attention to the forgotten clause of our Federal Constitution:

Amendment 14, Section 2:

"Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of Electors for President and Vice President of the United States, Representatives in Congress, the Executive and Judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being 21 years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion, or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens 21 years of age in such State."

I challenge lawyer or layman to tell me what this clause of the Federal Constitution means if it does not mean what it says. This is an outright outlawry of the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting in both State and Federal elections. Here we have the prohibition and the penalty for its violation. How can Congress think otherwise, how can the Supreme Court hold otherwise?

The proper execution of this clause would give Virginia three Representatives instead of nine—leaving six potential Governors.

William Lloyd Garrison—the advocate of action—knew more about the slave issue than Henry Clay—the champion of compromise. The Southern Electoral Reform League would do well to take cognizance of this historical fact.

Appeasing the "liberal" press and currying favor with demagogues are not repealing the poll tax.

For five years, as an individual, I have fought the poll tax. I shall continue my individual battle.

The Post Impressionist

Mumps, Singular

For the moment, we are out of quarantine. Donnie's swollen jaw has subsided, and he is playing with the gang again, shouting "Hi-O Silver" with unimpaired vocal cords. And now that they are allowed the pleasure of each other's company once more, he and his small sister Mary have resumed their constant and amiable bickering. It is most unsatisfactory to hurl epithets through closed doors; they are apt to bounce.

Perhaps I should not have tried to separate the two children, for next year Mary will start to school and begin catching things for herself. But being a conscientious mother, I chose to thwart the microbes as far as possible.

Donnie has now gone back to his classes, and Mary's envy of her brother's suddenly acquired prestige is almost forgotten. I believe it was in "Miss Minerva and William Green Hill" that the children sold their mumps for a consideration. What worries me most is the unexplained dime in Donnie's bank and the fact that one is missing from Mary's. Only time will tell.

The first day of Donnie's illness was singularly peaceful. Propped moon-faced among his pillows, he submitted to my ministrations with neither enthusiasm nor undue complaining. Sipping broth through a straw, he noted the astonishing cleanness of his hands. The hours passed quietly, and, as she peered through the keyhole, Mary was impressed. Life with Donnie always holds the same measure of breathless excitement as Life With Father, and this strange calm was not a grateful breathing spell; it was an unthinkable vacuum.

The next morning the patient was more cheerful, but still contagious. He read all the books suitable for his second-grade vocabulary, and then turned his attention to a cannon that fired wooden shells across the room. Mary, eager to serve, offered to retrieve them, but I interfered. Gloom settled over the sick room in pale gray waves.

Out of need, many an idea is born. When I carried up the lunch tray, two boys were in bed. One was my son and the other a dummy. Knickers and shirt had been stuffed with pillows and topped by a football head. Dummies are dull company, and contrite, I promised to spend the afternoon reading to him. Mary was banished to the yard, and we began "Treasure Island."

Just as we were about to open the sea chest at the "Admiral Benbow," a wail floated up the stairs, followed by Sister, dissolved in tears. Her friends had deserted her, breaking ranks and running off when she appeared in the front yard, as if the very sight of her would bring the plague. Well in body, she was sick of soul, and I suggested that she sit on the stairs and listen. Donnie was to outline to her the beginning of the story while I went to the refrigerator for ice cream.

"It's about pirates," he began, "and——"

"Uh-huh. I know all about them. You feed them crackers and they talk to you." The voices floated down to me as I spooned out the cream and arranged wafers on a plate.

"Aw, not parrots. Pirates! You know—with knives and guns."

"Oh, pirates. Well, I like parrots better. Mama, can't you read a story about parrots? That talk?"

Donnie's face, set with utter exasperation, fell dismally when I answered, "Certainly." But even the parrot, that chanted "Pieces of Eight!" failed to hold Mary's attention long. Besides, her brother had already warned her that no girls were in the story. She put on her wraps and went out of doors to count crocuses. The Hispaniola sailed on as the afternoon shadows lengthened.

From the window I could see her doleful little figure, alone and friendless, trying to climb the apple tree. But the lowest hanging branch, the first foothold, had been pruned away, and the next limb was out of reach. A fat robin, just returned from the south, was in the lower corner of the yard, eyeing homesites. She threw him half of her cookie, but it frightened him away.

When she began digging holes in the freshly seeded lawn, I hadn't the heart to stop her. In each hole she planted a hemlock twig, until a tiny evergreen forest grew up. She stood in the middle of it for a moment, a benevolent giantess towering over the pygmy trees. Perhaps this small action restored her sense of dignity and self-respect. At any rate, she came in to supper in a cheerful mood. But beneath the good humor I could feel her lingering desire to achieve the eminence of mumps.

Therefore, on the following day, I was not surprised at the turn of events. When I carried Donnie's lunch to him, the dummy was sitting in a chair. Only its back was visible, but I was sure that I saw it move. And it squealed when I pinched it.

After that, of course, there wasn't any use in keeping them apart. And she may not get it. The three weeks are almost up, and she still drinks orange juice. As for precautions—well, I've never had mumps myself.

The Encirclement Of America

IT WOULD BE reassuring to be able to deny that in the Soviet-Japanese pact the Axis has won a diplomatic victory which prepares the way for some exceedingly dangerous developments in the Pacific Ocean. In form the pact seems to say that if Russia is at war with Germany, the Japanese will not attack Russia in Siberia and that if Japan is at war with Britain and the United States, the Russians will not attack Japan. But while this looks like a kind of equalized arrangement which might become inconvenient for Germany, in fact Russia has gained nothing and has done exactly what the Axis wants most to have her do.

LIPPMANN

FOR RUSSIA in Siberia was in no real danger of an attack by the Japanese army. The Chinese are engaging so much of the Japanese army that another war on land would be as pointless as it would be costly for the Japanese. But the Japanese navy is not involved in the China war; it cannot be used against Russia: it can, however, be used most dangerously against the British-Dutch-American position in the Netherlands Indies, Singapore, and the Philippines. Whereas Russia had nothing to fear from Japan, there was every reason why Japan should fear Russia. The Soviet air force at Vladivostok is a menace to Japan; the Russian army in Siberia is a menance to Manchukuo; the Russian support of China is a menace to Japan. It is too early to say whether Stalin's declaration of "neutrality" in Asia means that he will now abandon China, or even disrupt her by internal Communist revolt, and then partition China with the Japanese. But at the very least, Stalin has assured Mr. Matsuoka that Russia will not intervene if Japan goes to war in the Pacific.

This assurance, like the Stalin-Hitler pact of August, 1939, is certain to strengthen the Japanese war party, of which Mr. Matsuoka is a leader, and to weaken greatly the more moderate party in Japan. The risks of Japanese aggression in the Pacific are sure to seem less in Tokio, now that Russia, the nearest neighbor of Japan, has been neutralized. We must expect, nor perhaps an immediate frontal atttack upon the British or the Dutch in the Southwest Pacific, but a rapid concentration of Japanese power for such an attack, and a series of aggressive moves designed to test the defenses of the region, to test the will to resist, and to undermine the power to resist. This Soviet-Japanese pact removes one of the chief practical and psychological obstacles to Japanese participation in the world war.

THE FACT THAT Japan has also promised not to help Hitler attack Russia means nothing. For Japan cannot help Hitler attack Russia and Hitler does not need Japanese help anyway. Whether European Russia is to be conquered by Hitler or forced to capitulate or driven, like Hungary, to help Hitler, are questions which will be decided in Europe and in the Middle East. The fact that Stalin has made it so much easier for Japan to enter the war against the Allies can only weaken him still further in Europe. He has gotten nothing out of this agreement except an even greater isolation in the face of the Nazis. He is not safer merely because the Japanese, who never meant to attack him, have said they will not attack him, and he is much weaker because he has seriously increased the pressure upon Great Britain and the United States.

That this pressure is being exerted according to a well-considered plan devised by Tokyo and Berlin is less than ever open to serious doubt. As the Nazis move into Africa toward Suez on the one side and toward the Atlantic ports on the other, the Japanese are moving toward the South Pacific. If the two operations succeed, and if concurrently the assault on Great Britain can be carried forward or even intensified, the totalitarians will have cut to pieces the Anglo-American position in the world. They will have done on a grand scale what they have done on a smaller scale in their Polish, their French, and their Balkan campaigns.

BY THEIR ASIATIC campaign they will have isolated China, India, Australia, the Netherlands indies and the Philippines and rendered impossible any effective common resistance. By their African campaign they will have isolated Russia, Turkey, and the French Empire, and from Dakar and Casablanca they will have isolated North America from South America. By their campaign against Great Britain in the North Atlantic they will have isolated North America from the British Isles.

This is the strategical plan, now plainly in actual operation, for the domination of the world. It is not a new plan. It has been the plan for years—since the conclusion of the so-called anti-Comintern pact of 1936—and it has been carried out step by step under the eyes of the whole world because the free peoples could not and would not believe that a plan of conquest which took time and did not therefore touch them immediately would ever touch them. They have preferred not to believe the evidence: to say while the peril was distant, that it did not exist and when it became imminent, that it was too late to do anything about it.

ᔓᔕ

THE FACT of the matter is that the European war is expanding into a world war, and that in 1941 it is going to be decided at Singapore, in the Mediterranean and West Africa, and finally in the Battle of the Atlantic, whether, the United States, cut off from Asia, from Europe, from Africa, from South America, and from the British Isles, is to be left alone, entirely isolated, incompletely armed, and encircled by the world-wide totalitarian alliance. To say that the President's measures and gestures are moving the United States into this world war is the exact contrary of the truth as it is actually being disclosed. This world war is closing in on the United States from all directions, in the North Atlantic, in the South Atlantic and in the Pacific.

ᔓᔕ

HOW ILL-PREPARED are our people to grasp what is happening is demonstrated by the approval which the isolationists have given to the commitment to defend Greenland. Because that land is within the imaginary limits of "the Western Hemisphere," they approve the project to place American troops in Greenland and the pledge to defend it. Yet if they will look at a map, or better still at a globe, they will see that Greenland can be defended if the fortress of the British Isles, and the might of the British navy and air force stand between Greenland and Europe. But if they do not stand, then the troops we send to Greenland will be placed in deadly jeopardy, and the pledge we have given to the Danes can be carried out only by one of the most difficult and dangerous operations it is possible to imagine.

ANYONE WHO approves the occupation of Greenland and does not redouble his willingness to give support to Britain is too innocent to have learned the elementary facts of life. And in their state of dangerous innocence, the people are given false assurances that we have another "base" from which to defend the Western Hemisphere and, in consequence, are encouraged once more to believe that they can be satisfied with the existing plans and the existing tempo of the American production and of the American mobilization.

In fact, the situation is much more critical than the Administration has yet dared to say, and the prospects for 1941 are much more serious than the President has as yet made plain to the people of this country.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

One-Man Strike

(A State Labor Relations Board has ruled that if you employ only one man, and he is dissatisfied, he may name a collective bargaining agency to represent him in his demand for satisfactory wages and hours.—News item.)

You can now get a strike, picket service and a collective bargaining agency delivered at your door without even trying. You used to have a pay roll and more than one number to be punched on the time clock before you could get into labor trouble. But not any more!

It is now possible for an employer of one man to have all the troubles of Henry Ford, the Bethlehem Steel Co. or Allis-Chalmers.

Once, if you had one hired hand and there was any dispute over wages or hours, it was strictly a dialogue and often a monologue. But never a mass debate.

Now Joe Winch, the only man working for Peter Gollop, says he has got to have more money. Gollop says, "I am sorry, but I cannot give you any raise at this time, Joe." Then he gets a note from Joe, reading: "Dear sir. I have your note about not giving me a raise. My collective bargaining agent will take the matter up with you."

The correspondence then runs:
My Dear Joe Winch:
What is this about a collective bargaining agent? Do you think you are a group or something. How can there be any collective bargaining when you are not even collective? PETER GOLLOP.

Dear Mr. Gollop:
You and I will not get anywhere arguing just between one another, and my collective bargaining agent will explain it all to you in detail.

Mr. Peter Gollop:
Sir:
Mr. Joe Winch, who wants more money from you, has referred the matter to us as his bargaining agent, and we will handle the whole matter from now on. Please do not bother Mr. Winch about it personally.

Construction Workers Organizing Committee,

Gentlemen:
There must be some mistake. I am only one man. Joe Winch is only one man. I have no other man working for me. He has no other boss. I have no collective bargaining agency. How can Joe have one? It all boils down to the simple fact that he wants more money and I can't pay it.
Yours truly,
PETER GOLLOP.

Mr. Peter Gollop,
Sir:
Are you nuts? Or just old-fashioned? Joe Winch is the same to us, singular or plural, and has as much right to name a collective bargaining agent in his endeavor to get more money as he would if he were a crowd. Very truly yours,
State Labor Relations Board.

Dear Joe:
I am turning over the business to you. You be the boss and I will work for you. It's more fun for me that way. Sincerely,
PETER GOLLOP.

The circus has gone Broadway to such an extent that nothing remains to be done except to arrange for some vile lyrics, make some heel a hero and teach the elephants the strip tease.

Add similes: As absurd as Italy and Germany squawking about an "unfriendly act."

Judging from the news that has been coming in throughout this war from all areas, one of the big problems when peace comes will be the transportation of captured generals.

Ten Coast Guard cutters of the prohibition enforcement era may not seem a very hot contribution to British aid. But it may reflect a feeling that nothing the German subs carry can be any deadlier than the stuff the rum-runners used to carry.

Capital Parade

Joint Strategy For Joint Action

AS BRITISH-AMERICAN collaboration approaches war partnership, it is increasingly apparent that the most crying need in Washington is for some mechanism to give maximum effect to the two nations' joint actions. The need is strongly felt by influential officials at the War and Navy Departments, and has recently been thoroughly canvassed at the White House. There is a reasonable chance that something may be done.

Various alternatives suggest themselves, such as the appointment of a joint strategy committee composed of British and American military, air and naval officers of high rank and influential civilians. But before discussing the ways to meet the need, it will be useful to document its existence.

ALSOP

Having accepted collaboration with Britain by passing the lease-lend bill, this country is now a direct participant in all major war problems. Under the present arrangement, war problems are discussed between the President and Winston Churchill, who are now in continuous, close contact by telephone, cable and diplomatic messenger. They are also pondered by the various departments and agencies of the two governments, communicating through the embassies, and through such media as the British Purchasing Commission and the representatives of the Ministry of Economic Warfare in Washington.

THERE IS NO central body of men, however, who are charged with studying joint strategy in all its aspects, and collecting data on, correlating and exploring the ramifications of the staggeringly big questions involved in joint strategy. This task is too great for any two individuals. As the President and the British prime minister both have hundreds of other unavoidable preoccupations, the task is not done at all.

A typical result is the blow-hot-blow-cold policy which the two governments have pursued toward the French. Its failings can best be seen in the management of the North African situation. French North Africa is one of the critical areas in the war. If the Germans obtain a foothold there, Spain and probably Portugal will fall into the arms of the Axis and the western Mediterranean will become a German lake, only to be recaptured by conquest. Some months ago, the able American Counsellor of embassy at Vichy, Robert Murphy, was sent to French North Africa to learn what Weygand needed to reinforce his independence. He returned with a report that supplies of certain nonmilitary commodities, particularly the tea and sugar much in demand among the Arabs, would be extremely helpful.

Action on Murphy's report was deferred, however, because the British ministry on economic warfare opposed sending Gen. Weygand anything. Since Murphy's trip, nothing but one ship of oil has been let through. Yet now a representative of the Ministry of Economic Warfare is in Washington, advocating precisely the kind of action suggested by Murphy months ago as vitally necessary to save a situation in process of rapid degeneration.

THAT KIND of thing happens pretty often. If the British were at fault over French North Africa, our own people are to blame for their strangely nebulous and timid approach to the problem of active American participation in economic warfare on all fronts. Another example is the curiously indecisive British-American policy in the Far East. And still another, in the pivotal production field, is the failure until the passage of the lease-lend bill to work out even the roughest sort of consolidated schedule of war material requirements, and the failure since that time to translate the rough schedule into more specific terms.

The truth is that for want of a group of men competent and authorized to consider the big questions of joint strategy, decisions are simply put off until the questions become too acute to be ignored. By then, of course, they are much more troublesome than they would have been if tackled more promptly.

KINTNER

The nucleus of such a group already exists in the form of the "central staff" being recruited by Harry L. Hopkins to administer the lease-lend program. Hopkins' central staff cannot do the whole job, however, for several obvious reasons. First, its administrative business is too pressing, and has first call. Second, it does not and probably will not contain military, naval and air officers with the rank and experience needed on a joint strategy committee. And finally, the British representation is essential, since mutual exchange of views must be the foundation of joint strategy, and there is no British representation.

CONSEQUENTLY, some influential persons propose formation of a separate body, composed of British and American members, connected with Hopkins' central staff and perhaps using it as a secretariat, but directly responsible only to the heads of the two governments. The proposal has gained substantial support in the two service departments, and, so far as is known, is not opposed at the White House. The chief objection raised against it to date is political, the argument being that disclosure of such a body's existence will alarm public opinion. But surely the time has passed when it is necessary to boggle at important moves, to which no military risk attaches, because an isolationist Senator may make an angry speech.

Philippine Politics

By Vincent A. Pacis

Rule Of Quezon

IT MAY OR MAY not have some pertinence to the question of whether or not the Philippines is ready for complete independence in 1946 that the younger generation of Filipino politicians has just failed miserably in its attempt to cop the presidency of the Commonwealth through the back door. The old fox of Philippine politics, Manuel L. Quezon, simply went into his illness routine and, presto, the young lambs were routed.

It happened this way. The Philippine constitution prohibited the reelection of the President. Under this provision, Quezon was for six years elected President and Sergio Osmena Vice President in the first presidential election under the Commonwealth held in 1935. To the young generation this was the last lap of the joint Quezon-Osmena leadership that had begun in 1907. It took for granted that Quezon would want to retire and Osmena would follow suit. The second six-year term was to begin in 1941 and last well into the period of the republic, which begins in 1946. New nation and new leaders, the young politicians anticipated with glee.

But they figured out that in 1941 Quezon would still be the power—the only power—to reckon with. So they adopted the oblique tactics of working for his reelection, among others by amending the constitution—oblique because they either expected him to refuse and choose his heir among them, or to accept, but reward at least one of them with the vice presidency. And to make sure that the vice-presidency would be almost as good as the presidency, they so amended the constitution that if Quezon should be reelected, his vice president would automatically become president in 1943. They repealed the prohibition against reelection, but limited the consecutive presidential service to only eight years.

NO LESS THAN Jose Yulo, speaker of the Assembly, followed the constitutional amendment to Washington to seek President Roosevelt's approval. Yulo accepted this job with special delight; he not only claimed to be the original proponent of the amendment of the constitution and the reelection of Quezon, but he also aspired for the presidency, if available, the vice presidency if he had no choice. A few months ago, he returned to Manila with the approved amendments.

While he was getting ready to climax his labors by getting the Assembly to offer a second term to Quezon and hoping that, in gratitude, Quezon would pick him as running mate, provincial governors all over the country held their annual convention and, as one of their first acts, renominated both Quezon and Osmena. And they included Osmena in the ticket because Quezon had told them from his sickbed that, "In fairness and justice to the vice president, he should be nominated with me."

The nomination immediately created a veritable Balkan crisis in the Islands. On the ostensible ground that he had been ignored as speaker and nominal head of the ruling party, Yulo tendered his resignation from both jobs to Quezon, then disappeared from the Assembly for weeks. Meanwhile, there were maneuvers by his followers and enemies to effect reprisals by abolishing offices in the government and curtailing the authority of provincial governors. Quezon, the old fox, abruptly terminated his first interview with Yulo by saying that he felt sick and could no longer prolong the interview, and then went behind the curtains to manipulate things.

The governors, who continued in convention, took all their cues from Quezon and his secretary of the interior. They urged changes in the rules of the party so that members of the assembly may not unduly dominate the party councils. Having been elected only this year and therefore not worried over the coming election in August or November, they took unholy delight in twitting the assemblymen who must inevitably ask their help if they want to be reelected.

IN THE END Quezon came out with a letter to "My Dear Joe" repeating his earlier phrases of affection and praise for the speaker—but upholding the nominations by the governors by saying that the matter of the vice-presidency came up suddenly. It happened so it is, he as much as declared. "My dear Joe" replied that he was grateful for the new presidential recognition of his services and worth, then returned to preside over the assembly. But the prognosticators predict that Joe's defiance of Quezon, though temporary, marked his retirement from politics. He has definitely lost the president's former exuberant support of him, and his failure to keep his chin up once he had stuck it out, cost him his face.

Meanwhile, the two old foxes, Quezon and Osmena, will run for reelection and get elected. Osmena will automatically succeed to the presidency when Quezon completes a continuous eight-year service in 1943. In the presidency Osmena will last until 1945, the eve of the year set for independence. It still remains to be seen whether Quezon will not want to return to the presidency that year or whether Osmena himself may not decide to be president more than merely two years, given the fact that Quezon will have served eight. And, after all, he it was who first unified the Filipinos into a nation by serving as their first national leader with Quezon as his right-hand man from 1907 to 1922.

Inadequate Policy

By Mark Sullivan

Facing The Question Of Convoys

I SUPPOSE the art of writing will survive. I suppose history will still be written and read. Whenever this world-fire is over, when civilization and culture are able to function again, when men finger the relics and records of their past, they may find, in two items of current news, occasion for ironic reflection.

SULLIVAN

It is announced that 36 Danish cargo ships, now in American ports, are being taken over by our Government, and will be delivered to the British. Quite a furore is made about it; it is made to seem an important step and a triumph of diplomatic finesse. This we need not hesitate to concede.

But the total tonnage of those 36 vessels is about 135,000 tons. And that is just about the tonnage of British cargo ships that the Germans sink in one good week. To a Britain desperately threatened by paralysis of its ocean life lines, we provide one added week of life. It is something, but it is grotesquely inadequate. When a few days have gone by, say Monday of next week, Britain will be where she was before.

IT IS ANNOUNCED also that we are turning over to the British 10 naval vessels, from the Coast Guard. Their total tonnage is about 20,000 tons. Now the total tonnage of the British navy must be about 2,000,000 tons. (Exact figures are not given out—it is called "restricted information.") On that basis, our gift to Britain amounts to about one-hundreth of her present navy. We increase her naval strength by about 1 per cent. If that much, which is doubtful. For these Coast Guard vessels of ours were built during the 1920's and are not adapted to war needs.

Now to set down these instances without comment, to let them stand as a mere jibe about our aid to Britain, to contrast them with President Roosevelt's eloquent phrases about "total effort" and "all out effort"—to do that might be entertaining, but would be neither fair nor informative. We are giving aid to Britain in other forms, a great deal of it. And some of what we are doing now is necessary preparation for more.

But about our aid in the form of cargo ships and naval vessels, there are several considerations, some pointing one way, some the other. We have adopted the policy of transferring—lease, lend, give or whatever—cargo ships and naval vessels to Britain. Having adopted the policy, we have made the breach of neutrality, if that is what it is. Having made the breach, the quantity we give does not matter—Hitler will hate us as much for a Coast Guard cutter as for a battleship. Various adages express the truth, including the one which says a man may as well be hung for stealing a sheep as for a lamb. The late President Theodore Roosevelt had a saying: "If you are going to fight a man at all, give him a punch in the nose, don't slap him on the wrist—he'll hate you as much for the slap as for the punch."

As respects naval vessels, some of our Navy authorities are reluctant to transfer many to the British. Between two methods of fighting the German submarines, they would prefer to have part of our Navy help directly, acting under the American flag, with American crews. They, cautiously taking into account all the possible contingencies, as is prudent—they reason that, after all, there is the possibility that Britain may be conquered. If that should happen, naval vessels we have transferred to the British outright would be gone, while naval vessels operated as un of the American Navy, with American crews and under the American flag, would still be available to us.

On the other hand, this direct method of using American naval vessels under the American flag to help convoy, is unpalatable to President Roosevelt. He is quoted as having said that convoying means shooting and shooting means war. That statement is now an embarrassment. The assurances he has given at various times that America would not participate in the war, now deter him from use of our naval vessels under the American flag for convoying.

About the other matter, the giving of cargo ships, there is no dispute and there can hardly be any. Giving more cargo ships to Britain is not the cure for the sinking of her cargo ships by the Germans. Our transfer of those 135,000 tons of Danish ships, one week's meat for the submarine maw, is as absurd as it sounds. If it were ten times that tonnage, it would still be absurd. The million tons of new cargo shipping we will build this year are not enough. The 3,000,000 tons we may produce next year will not be enough and will be too late.

BUILDING more cargo ships is not, alone, the answer. That is the "build and sink" method. The real answer is to fight the submarines, even if that means convoying by us. This question of convoying is a hot potato in Government and political circles. There is one man not afraid to handle it. Rear Admiral Emory S. Land said over the radio the other night, that building more cargo vessels, alone, is merely giving more fuel to the fire. He said the answer is to hunt the submarines down, in the ocean and in their home ports. Convoying is a thing America will have to look in the face.

Defense Labor Being Hired In Home Cities

The United States Employment Service announced yesterday a system for hiring workers in their own home communities for defense and other jobs in distant cities.

Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security administrator, said the system would help prevent the waste of unplanned migration and facilitate the placing of workers in defense industries.

As he outlined it, a local employment office will broadcast an appeal for needed workers of certain specifications when they cannot be found in the community served by that office. The dozens of offices in other cities will make an effort to find men with the desired skills and other qualifications.

When several are found in one city they will be visited by a representative of the prospective employer, who will eliminate those he finds unsuited to his needs and hire the others on the spot.

The plan already has been tried out with satisfactory results, McNutt said. He reported that the employment service found several hundred skilled workers in the Chicago area for an aircraft manufacturer on the West Coast. A representative of the manufacturer, he said, visited Chicago and hired 735 of the men.

East Central States Seen Facing Drought

The Geological Survey reported yesterday that a serious drought threatened to hit the East Central States unless dwindling surface and underground water supplies were replenished soon by rains.

In a statement, the survey said that stream flow in this area and in northern New Enland was materially below normal, and that there also was a prospective water shortage for irrigation needs in parts of the northern intermountain region.

The report showed the water shortage to be less severe in the southern part of the East-Central States, but more agravated in the Central Mississippi Valley States. It said flow of five representative streams in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky ranged from 10 to 22 per cent of normal for March. The Gasconade River at Gerome, Mo., and the west fork of the White River at Noblesville, Ind., were said to have receded to the lowest March flow on record.

Rainfall during late March was said to have benefited stream flow in Illinois, Tennessee, and North and South Carolina but was insufficient to change a deficiency which had existed for six months.

The survey reported the total runoff since October in a 280,000 square mile area coincident with the lower Ohio River Basin averaged 35 per cent of normal. During the last six months the Cumberland River has not experienced sufficient precipitation to produce a bank-full stage.

Board Obtains Pacts to Settle Two Strikes

The National Defense Mediation Board last night announced agreements for the ending of two strikes that have seriously interfered with the defense program.

After four days of almost continuous conferences, a board panel effected a return-to-work agreement at the Snoqualmie Falls Lumber Co., in Washington State, where 900 men have been on strike since last October 28.

A few hours later another panel effected an arrangement by which 1,800 men will resume their labors at the Phelps Dodge Copper Products Corporation, Bayway, N. J., where a strike began April 6.

The latter agreement provides that the board panel shall resume on Friday its hearings on the knottiest points at issue, seeking a voluntary agreement, the terms of which shall be retroactive to the date when work is resumed. Should the hearings fail to effect an agreement, the panel will continue to the making of findings of fact and recommendations toward a final settlement. The findings are to be made by May 1 unless both parties agree to an extension of time.

Union to Get Terms Tonight

Yesterday's agreement is to be submitted to the unions tonight, with resumption of work tomorrow possible.

The company manufactures copper wire and tubing. The union involved is the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, C. I. O.

Members of the panel are William H. Davis, vice chairman of the board; Cy Ching, for employers, and Thomas Kennedy, for labor.

Terms of the settlement in the lumber company case were not announced pending ratification action by the A. F. of L. Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union Friday.

Work on Camp Delayed

The strike has delayed work on a large Army camp at Fort Lewis, Wash.; an air base at Everett, Wash., and sympathy picket lines have prevented shipping of vitally needed Navy materials.

The dispute, which concerned the status of the union and demands for wage increases, resulted in a walkout of about 900 men on October 28. It was certified to the board on April 1. Its settlement makes the eighth back-to-work agreement effected by the new agency.

According to reports from board sources, the case was one of the most difficult and bitterly contested on the board's docket.

The panel considering the strike consisted of Frank Graham, representing the public; Robert J. Watt, for labor, and Walter Teagle, for management.

Mayor Repeats Intent To Seek Another Term

Mayor E. Murray Gover of Hyattsville yesterday reiterated his stand announced a month ago to campaign for another term in office.

Gover said that he realized that no further formal statement was needed until the town convention is held on April 21, but that he could not let reports of his retirement currently circulating go unanswered.

The mayor has held that office since 1938, when he succeeded Dr. H. T. Willis, who resigned.

The White House Lawn Survives Another Egg Rolling

1. THRILL OF HIS LIFE came to Teddy Kuligowski, 8, of Philadelphia, when the President invited him to play "God Bless America" on the violin. Here, Presidential Secretary Watson accepts for the President an Easter egg scroll carved by Teddy

2. FRANCES GOODYEAR, 2½, voicing her displeasure, was one of 73 youngsters who became separated from their parents in the milling thousands on the White House lawn

3. A SKINNED ARM sent Rosalie Comstock, 3, of 1401 Fairmont Street Northwest, to the first-aid station. The hurt may have brought tears to her eyes, but they were soon forgotten in the excitement and Rosalie was there only long enough for Nurse Rebecca Orman to administer first aid

Boy Gets Bow, Day Mended At White House

There was an 8-year-old kid named Teddy Kuligooski, who was a refugee from Lithuania, and he wanted to talk to the President of the United States and present him a wooden token of Easter greetings.

So yesterday he dressed himself up in a uniform and took his violin and his mother and went to the White House egg rolling. There were many thousand people there pushing each other around and it didn't look as if he had any chance of playing his violin and talking to the President.

As long as he had his violin, though, he figured he had a chance. Then he lost that one chance, it seemed.

Because his mother got tired she sat down, and out of the whole White House yard she picked his fiddle bow to sit on. It snapped. So did something inside Teddy. He burst into tears.

It chanced that Col. Edward Starling, chief of the White House Secret Service, was going by. Col. Starling is a big man in every way, but he isn't so big he couldn't hear a kid crying.

He saw immediately what had happened. And he knelt down and mended the bow with a piece of string from his pocket. But Teddy still felt pretty low and kept on crying.

"Now if you'll stop crying I'll take you to see the President," said the Colonel.

So Teddy dried his tears and they went into the Big Man who reached out to shake hands. Teddy bent over the hand and kissed it.

The fiddle bow couldn't carry a strong tune, but Teddy's voice could. He sang "God Bless America."

They they talked for a while and Teddy presented him the token.

At the door Teddy turned for a last look.

"Come on back and see me any time," said the Big Man behind the desk.

4. A WAVE TO THE CROWD by Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Vice President, brought cheers from the egg rollers. The Second Lady took over for Mrs. Roosevelt as the latter was en route to the West Coast to see her eldest son, James, married dered aloud, passing through the gates, whether they had got the right focus.

The crowds yesterday topped those of past years (that of 1939, the past record year, was 52,250) but did not depart from the traditional egg rolling formula. It has long been known that few, if any children, roll eggs. It is the practice, rather, for them to throw them at one another, and to run and gambol about the lawn, often butting against their elders who came to see the President.

Many of the elders bring lunches and sit on the knolls with newspapers spread in their laps, eating. Mrs. Roosevelt ordinarily has passed among the crowds, but was away yesterday. Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Vice President, was hostess instead. She wore a navy blue knit suit, a narrow brim felt hat trimmed with a red band and carried white gloves.

Starling Mends Violin Bow

The varying dress, from finery to shabbiness, of the crowd, described the democracy of the party. All came in free, and wandered about among the same flowering trees and watched the same leaping fountain. The same six bands—United States Marine, National Training School, Alexandria High School, Loew's Theater, Police Boys' and Montgomery County High School, played for all to hear.

Only two fairly critical incidents occurred. Once was when Peter Goldsmith, 9, of 91 Carland Avenue, New York, cut his knee so badly the Red Cross workers sent him to Emerency Hospital for treatment. The other was when Mrs. Anna Kuloigowski, of 527 Hyson Street, Philadelphia, sat down without looking. She happened to sit on the bow of a fiddle which her son, Teddy, 8, was to play for the President, after singing "God Bless America."

Inside the White House, more than 150 British refugee children celebrated their first American Easter. In the absence of Mrs. Roosevelt, who arranged the party, Mrs. Wallace was hostess. They saw movies, ate ice cream and cake.

Elsewhere in Washington, hundreds of children had parties under family or community service auspices. More than 5,000 children and adults went to a party in Magruder Park, Hyattsville, Md., under auspices of the Prince Georges County Kiwanis Club and the Lust Theaters. Ann Boswell, 11, of Hyattsville, was crowned queen. Herman Groves, of Hyattsville, devoured a whole chocolate meringue pie faster than opponents and besides the pie, received acclaim.

Robeson Concert Goes On Though Mrs. Pinchot Quits

Plans for a concert by Paul Robeson, well-known Negro singer, on April 25 here will continue unchanged, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the former Pennsylvania Governor and chairman of the sponsors, announced Sunday that she had decided to withdraw her support after she learned that proceeds of the concert were to be shared between the Washington Committee for Aid to China and the National Negro Congress.

Mrs. Pinchot said yesterday that several other sponsors had withdrawn their support, and reiterated that her action was taken because the public had not been informed of the plan to divide the funds—not because the organization she learned was to share the funds was a Negro group.

The White House confirmed that Mrs. Roosevelt had agreed to be an honorary sponsor of the concert at the request of Mrs. Pinchot, and that she had withdrawn from the list upon Mrs. Pinchot's advice.

Work Started on New Sewage Pumping Station

Charlottesville, Va., April 14—Work was begun today on a sewage pumping station on the old Lynchburg Road below the Fry's Spring swimming pool, in the vicinity of Moore's Creek. The station will serve residences on the west side of Fry's Spring Road and the Monte Vista Avenue section.

The project, according to City manageer Stirling L. Williamson, will cost about $3,000, and work should be completed in about 60 days.

$1,130,000 More Asked for Extra Words of Congress

To pay for printing proceedings of an unexpectedly long session, Public Printer Augustus E. Giegengack yesterday asked Congress, through President Roosevelt, for a 1941 deficiency appropriation of $1,130,000.

Giegengack pointed out that his estimates for the current fiscal year were based on a six-months' session. But Congress, he said, has been in session almost continuously.

Of the amount asked, $1,100,000 would be for working capital and, primarily, for Congressional printing and binding. The balance would go for wages, he said.

Ball Crowds See 3 Rescued From Fire

With hundreds of homeward-bound baseball fans looking on, firemen rescued three persons from the second and third floors of a boarding house yesterday afternoon as flames damaged three residences at First and W Streets Northwest.

The fire broke out just before the Nats-Yanks game at nearby Griffith Stadium ended. Although three fire companies managed to reach the scene without trouble, post-game traffic in the vicinity was paralyzed for more than an hour.

The blaze started under the back steps of Mrs. Marjorie Bushong's boarding house, 2128 First Street Northwest, quickly burned the back porch and sent thick smoke throughout the building.

Mrs. Louise Bell, about 25, a War Department cafeteria employe, trapped in her third-story room, was brought down a ladder by firemen.

Likewise rescued from a second story room were James Greene and Miss Cora Lee Isaac. Greene discovered the blaze when he went into the kitchen to get a drink of water. He called the fire department, then ran upstairs, calling "Get your things out" to Miss Isaac.

After throwing their clothes from the window, they found their exit was cut off by the smoke and had to be rescued.

William Harris, 10, of 2124 First Street, whose mother, Mrs. Lillian Harris, saw the blaze about the same time as Greene and also called firemen, fought the flames with a garden hose before the engines arrived. He was credited with helping to check the blaze.

The fire spread to the back porches of the residences of Mrs. Hettie Jones, 2126 First Street, and Mrs. James F. O'Connor, 100 W Street. The interiors of these homes were slightly damaged by smoke.

At Mrs. Bushong's boarding house, the first and second story back porches were destroyed and the kitchen, a washroom and recreation room were damaged. Other parts of the house suffered smoke damage.

Dark Dinner Gown Advised by Star

Hollywood, Calif.—Merle Oberon believes that even the most loosely budgeted wardrobe is still undernourished if it lacks a simple dark dinner gown. Smart girls, she says, will stick to the basic black crepe that may sally forth a dozen times unrecognized by even a best beau if camouflaged with different accessories.

She suggests a dress similar to one she wears in "Affectionately Yours." This is a wine-colored shirtmaker with patch pockets on bodice and skirt.

To disguise the dress for each new wearing Merle would pin matching bowknot pins on the pockets, outline the neck with a jabot of marganza or lace, wear a contrasting wool jacket, or have half a dozen different belts to gird the waistline.

Lace for Romance

When boy meets girl under soft lights and music, romance is in the air and what could be more enchanting than a white Chantilly lace gown? For a rumba or a Strauss waltz, this three-tiered skirt with a low torso hipline adds a romantic touch. If your escort is wearing white tie and tails, the lace shawl becomes a mantilla over the head. For less formal affairs, the shawl can be worn over the shoulders to give a cover-up effect.

Paint and Ingenuity Transform Room

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

IT was a discouraging job if ever we saw one—one of those dreary down-at-the-heel rooms that doesn't seem to have any decorating possibilities. Especially when there was only a limited budget available for refurbishing. The old brownish rug had to be retained and so did most of the rather nondescript furniture. The one new furniture purchase was to be a breakfront cabinet—a wise decision, for this would focus attention on this one fine piece, take the eye away from the old makeshift things. The walls were to be repainted, the old over-stuffed furniture slip covered and there would be fresh curtains.

This problem was beautifully worked out we thought. The walls were painted in pale green, with woodwork to match. Then for curtains, white lace net was selected and made straight and tailored to hang to the window sills, with draperies of a flowered twill on a white ground, finished across the top with a swag of dark green sateen. This same flowered twill was used for slip-covering the old over-stuffed furniture and for fresh lamp shades. The dark green sateen was repeated in slip covers for some plain-jane side chairs.

Several of the odd pieces of furniture proved, on examination, to be worth a rejuvenation job. So the old finish was removed and the wood was bleached, then waxed and polished. At each end of the sofa where lamp tables were needed but couldn't be wangled out of the budget, the manual training son of the family built simple wall brackets which were painted dark green. For summer, the fireplace opening was covered with a fire screen made of the flowered twill fitted with glass shelves to hold water vines and plants.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man Marries Woman in Ignorance of the Fact That History of Insanity, for Generations Back, Exists On Both Sides of Her Family; Should She Tell Him?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a bride a few weeks. I know, and have known for several years, that there is hereditary insanity on both sides of my family. On one side of the family, a number of my aunts, uncles and cousins have been dangerous maniacs,—the affliction extending back to the generation of grandparents and great-uncles. On the other side of the family, the type of lunacy has been less violent but it nevertheless exists, and the victims have been confined to state institutions. My sister is "queer," and becoming more so as she grows older.

I have never discussed this "inheritance" with my parents, because in the first place they think I don't know anything about it; and in the second place, they are morbidly sensitive on the subject. Neither have I ever mentioned it to my husband, although it seems to me that my parents should have. From the beginning of our engagement, I felt I should tell him, but I was too much afraid of losing him; just as I am afraid of losing him now, if he learns the truth.

I have made it my business to read several boks dealing with insanity, and all of them agreed that persons who are certain of any form of inherited mania should never marry; or, if they do, that it is nothing short of criminal for them to have children. Do you think I should tell my husband about my "family skeleton," and in this way prepare him for the possibility of deficient children? Or should I tell him and hope that he will agree it is best for us not to have children?

DISTRACTED BRIDE.

Wife Is Tortured By Needless Fears

DEAR D. B.: A specialist in the treatment of mental disorders, with whom I have discussed your questions, remarks, "If all persons with an antecedent history of psychosis refrained from marrying, the marriage rate would be deplorably low. And just because grandpa was in the bug-house, it doesn't necessarily follow that granddaughter will go there, too." He takes issue with your supposedly well-documented belief that "persons who are certain of any form of inherited mania should never marry; or, if they do, it is nothing short of criminal for them to have children." Indeed, he says of it: "That is a broad generalization, dictated by fear and by insufficient knowledge of what is involved in psychosis. It represents an extreme point of view."

He likened such fear of "inherited mania" to the fallacious fears of "inherited tuberculosis," which held widespread credence in earlier years. Yet today it is a matter of general knowledge that there is no such thing as "hereditary tuberculosis," but only, at most, a predisposition to the infection. Persons with a constitutional predisposition to tuberculosis may succumb to the disease more readily than those of hardier stock if obliged to live in wretched circumstances of chronic underfeeding, poor sanitation, etc.; but they can triumph over that "predisposition," if advantaged by a normally good environment and wholesome routine of daily living. And so with a nervous or emotional "predisposition" to psychotic disturbances

"Mental illness, as generally known," the specialist explained, "is a type of response on the part of a given individual to certain conditions-of-living with which he feels he cannot deal. There are, of course, certain exceptions—feeble mindedness, for instance. That is a specific; a throw-back; a definite entity. But mental illness is another story. There is little danger of grandpa's psychotic manifestations overtaking the grandchild who avails himself of opportunity to lead a normal emotional and social life. If an accumulation of anxieties can be avoided, there is no reason why family history of that story should repeat itself."

"Nature, the race," he remarked, "demonstrates conclusively that the life-force is interested in perpetuating 'survival values,' not those of less-than-survival quality. In any form of sickness, the tendency is toward recovery, not toward death. And in a case history of the kind described, the possibility of psychotic manifestations cropping out in the woman, or in her children, is relatively remote, if she (and they) lead a normal life, comparatively free of desperate anxiety and deprivation."

Turning aside from the specialist's opinions, let us consider the question of whether to discuss your "family skeleton" with your husband. I think you should by all means—largely to "get a load off your mind," to get rid of your guilty sense of withholding a shameful secret (or ominous truth) from him put before talking with him, talk with an authority on the subject of mental disorders, for the purpose of getting an objective slant on the whole picture of which you are a part.

When you do speak with your husband, you want to be equipped to give him the truth of the matter, as science sees it—not a poisonous dose of unfounded terror and misinformation, such as has been clouding your outlook for too long. And when you have talked with a psychiatrist and then with your husband, it is to be hoped that the latter will cooperate in restoring your peace of mind, by checking sympathetically with the psychiatrist to corroborate your report, and to learn, at first hand, whether children seem a "safe investment," and, if so, how to rear them to best advantage.

Linen Press

Originally a press was a structure with two boards that could be screwed or clamped together to press linen to a smooth finish. Now the term is often used broadly to describe a chest or cabinet for storing linen.

A favorite in the court of Louis XIV, the beautiful Louise de la Valliere, is crediteld with having had a gracious influence on the styles of the time, softening their austerity and helping to popularize the delicately fantastic Chinese designs that were then coming in so abundantly. Curious grotesques and monkeys were among her favorite motifs. La Valliere was soon replaced in the King's regard by Mme. de Montespan.

Make Hooked Rugs of Scraps

A CHARMING hooked rug combining jade green, beige and amethyst in a quaint basket-weave pattern!

Its fun to hook such pretty rugs for yourself. And you have practical satisfaction, for you can make them out of discarded clothing, put odds and ends to lovely use.

The design? You copy it easily on paper which you've ruled into 1-inch squares. Mark off a 2-inch by 4-inch section for each overlapping part of the basket weave. Now cut out sections and lay in order on a piece of burlap (the rug foundation). Draw around sections with ink, one at a time, and continue until design for rug is complete.

Then, with the burlap tacked to a frame and your fabric cut in strips about one-half inch wide, you're ready for the fascinating process of hooking.

Holding the strip to be hooked under the burlap with your left hand, reach through with the hook in your right hand. Catch a strip and pull it up through the burlap, making a loop about ¾ inch high Skip a few threads and repeat. Simple!

You can as easily crochet a rug from soft candlewick, yarn or braid one from flowery calico. Our 40-page booklet, NEW IDEAS FOR HANDMADE RUGS, tells how to make lovely styles, including woven, tufted and hooked rugs. Gives directions for Oriental pile, many more.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, New Ideas for Handmade Rugs, to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Somerset Maugham, British Writer, Feted at Two Topflight Parties

By Hope Ridings Miller

SOCIETY'S "LITTLE SEASON" went into high gear last night when two top-flight parties and a theater opening threw the spotlight on Somerset Maugham, the famous British novelist and playwright.

Hope Ridings Miller

Countess Eleanor Palffy, who has known Mr. Maugham for a number of years, entertained at a dinner for him in her home on Thirty-fifth Street. Later, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth feted him at an informal supper in her home on Massachusetts Avenue. Between the two parties, virtually everybody who attended either saw the play, "Theater," which is credited to both Mr. Maugham and Guy Bolton but was based on the novel of the same name written by the former.

Eleven guests attended Countess Palffy's dinner and were in their seats at the theater well ahead of the opening line. In addition to Mr. Maugham, the company included the hostess' daughter, Mrs. Tweed Aldrich, of New York; Countess Palffy's nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Iselin, jr., and James W. Fosburgh and Stuart Preston, also of New York. Still others in the party were Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippmann and Gerald Haxton. After the theater, Countess Palffy and her guests went on to Mrs. Longworth's party.

"Drop by my house after the show. Somerset Maugham probably will be there." This, in effect, was the invitation Princess Alice passed out casually as she met friends at the National Theater last night. So, the final curtain had hardly dropped on the show when several dozen Capitalites were on their way to her home.

As is usually the case when Mrs. Longworth plans "a small party," last night's fete turned out to be a large gathering. Washington's official and topflight residential contingent, as well as a representative number from the diplomatic corps were in the crowd that hurried on "to meet Mr. Maugham."

But the lion of the evening was not the only celebrity on hand for the fete. Cornelia Otis Skinner, star of the play, arrived with her husband, Austin Blodget, and her famous father, Otis Skinner, who came to Washington especially to see the performance. John Golden, the producer, also put in an appearance, as did several members of the cast.

MR. AND MRS. Donald Oenslager, the former of whom did the setting for the play, also attended the party; as did a number of others who were down from New York for the Washington opening. Senator and Mrs. Cabot Lodge, Mrs. Truxtun Beale, Mrs. Archibald MacLeish and Brig. C. L. Lindemann, of the British Embassy, were among those going on to the Longworth fete. Still others there were the Danish Minister and Mme. Henrik de Kauffmann, Myron Hofer, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Joseph Alsop, Clarence Hewes, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund W. Pavenstedt and many more.

Mrs. Longworth, wearing a dashing frock of Tahitian print, featuring a floral pattern in orange and green, chatted with friends in the lobby between acts at the play. Countess Palffy, whose dark blue dress sprinkled with pink blossoms was designed with a brief jacket and a straight skirt, gathered "audience reaction" to the opus of the evening and reported later to Somerset Maugham.

As would be expected, much of the talk at Mrs. Longworth's party centered around the play of the evening, with scores of guests volunteering their opinion as to whether it is headed for success. One of the most attractive women in the crowd, Mrs. Frederick Bradlee, of New York, listened with rapt attention as compliments were showered on her handsome son, Frederick Bradlee 3d, who has the role of the 17-year-old boy in the play.

MRS. LONGWORTH will entertain at dinner tomorrow night, having as her honor guest then Miss Elsa Maxwell, who is coming down from New York especially for the Piccadilly Arcade auction sale at Anderson House. Others who will entertain at dinner, taking their guests on later to the auction, will be Mrs. Truxtun Beale and Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick.

To go back a bit—to last evening's play—I must say the audience was by all odds the most distinguished I have seen at the National this year. Mrs. Randall Hagner and Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer were in Mrs. Edward Beale McLean's box. Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Adolf A. Berle, jr., were in the audience; as was Mrs. Gilbert M. Hitchcock, who recently returned from an extended stay in Florida, and was greeting friends on all sides.

HARRY HOPKINS arrived in a party that included Miss Marguerite LeHand, and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Edwin Watson. Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, Mrs. Shaw Parker and John Foster of the British Embassy, Lady Broderick and her daughter, Miss Sheila Broderick; Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hill, Donna Julia Brambilla, and William Elmslie were among those seen slipping into their seats a few minutes before the curtain went up.

Still others in the audience were Mrs. Stephen T. Early, who came with Mr. and Mrs. George Dorsey; Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, Miss Mildre McKee Dunn, Andrew Wylie, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos del Mar, Mrs. Ernest G. Walker and her son, Mannix Walker, Miss Virginia Bacon, who wore a flowing scarlet cape over her black and white frock, Lady Latham with the Kenneth Watsons, Mrs. Irene Caldwell—to mention but a few I saw there.

Engagement Announced

MISS PATRICIA CRANDON

whose betrothal to Capt. Donald Hamilton Randell, of Washington, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Crandon, of Coral Gables, Fla.

Miss Jane Bell Honor Guest

Mrs. Robert Wattts Hudgens and her daughter, Mrs. Walter E. Leviss, gave a buffet supper last evening in honor of Miss Jane Bell, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Brian Bell, and Joseph William Magee, whose wedding will take place tomorrow at St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Arlington. Mrs. Leviss will be one of the attendants.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bell, the Rev. Peyton Williams, who will perform the ceremony; Miss Edna Allen, of South Carolina, cousin of the bride; Miss Judith Latta, Dr. Paul K. Calloway, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Freimuth, Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Mullen, Churchill F. Downing, Thomas Clarkson, of South Carolina; Mr. and Mrs. George Phillips and Miss Margaret Hoyt.

Capt. Randell Will Wed Soon

Wedding bells are in the offing for one of Washington's most popular young men. He is Capt. Donald Hamilton Randell, Field Artillery, U. S. Army, and the young lady is Miss Patricia Crandon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Crandon, of Coral Gables, Fla.

Capt. Randell, who is the son of Frederick Lewis Randell, of New York City, and the late Mrs. Randell, is on duty here in the office of the Undersecretary of War. The wedding will take place Saturday, April 26, at Fort Myer Chapel at 4 p. m. Later, there will be a reception at the Army-Navy Club.

The bride-elect was graduated from Ashley Hall, Charleston, S. S., and attended Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C., and Katherine Gibbs School, New York City.

Capt. Randell is a graduate of George Preparatory School in Pennsylvania, Princeton University, class of 1932, and the American Institute of Banking in New York City, and did graduate work in Paris. At Princeton he was a member of the Arbor Club, the editorial board of the Daily Princetonian and the varsity rugby football team. From 1932 to 1940, he was associated with the United States Trust Co. of New York as an investment specialist. He was also active in New York politics and was treasurer of the Seventh Assembly District Republican Club.

Dorsey Fisher Honored at Party By Edward Footes

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Foote gave a dinner last night for Dorsey Fisher, who will leave soon for his new post at our embassy in London. The party took place at the Footes' home in Georgetown and was followed by bridge and other games.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Block, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Palms, Mr. and Mrs. William Sprague, Miss Nancy Ordway, Mrs. William T. Mann, Miss Alice Dodge, Miss Jean Conrad, Victor Sutro, Fred Nichols, Mannix Walker and George Vournas. The hostess wore a gown of yellow jersey.

Society Thick As Popcorn At Ball Game

By Carolyn Bell

Taking their cue from President Roosevelt, bigwigs and social lights by the dozens turned their backs on a troubled world—for a couple of hours anyway—to watch the opening baseball game of the season yesterday afternoon.

Although the spotlight was focused on the President and his entourage the ladies came in for a good deal of interest. Easter fineries—veils, orchids, frivolous hats, etc.—were as numerous as peanuts and popcorn. Senator Gerald Nye was accompanied by Mrs. Nye. She wore a smart dark blue ensemble and topped it off with a wide brimmed sailor worn on the back of her pompedour. Mrs. Clark Griffith, wife of the owner of the Senators, wore a dove gray frock and wide hat swathed in violet veiling. A corsage of orchids completed the ensemble.

With his gray felt hat pushed casually on the back of his head the President seemed to be enjoying the game thoroughly. He discussed the plays with his two companions, Harry Hopkins and Sherman Minton. Also in the White House party were Brig. Gen. Edwin Watson and Admiral Ross T. McIntire. Seated not far away were Col. and Mrs. Edmund W. Starling. Pretty Mrs. Starling wore a toast-colored straw hat and a beige frock. The Starlings will leave at the crack of dawn tomorrow for Florida—and expect to return with first-class sunburn.

Missing for the first time in many a year was John Garner, an ardent baseball fan, who usually could be spotted by his ten-gallon hat. However, Vice President Henry A. Wallace made his appearance, striding across the field with Clark Griffith. Later Mr. Wallace chatted with Senator Charles McNary and Senator Alben Barkley, who never miss an opening game if they can help it. Another familiar face missed yesterday was Big Jim Farley.

Watching the plays intently was Jesse Jones. Also glimpsed in the throng were Emil Schram, Senator Hiram Johnson, Mrs. "Bucky" Harris, in a chic blue outfit; John Snyder, Hub Steele, Russell Snodgrass, Dr. Arch L. Riddick, James Rowe and hundreds more.

Agnes Bayer Becomes Bride

The wedding of Miss Agnes Frances Bayer and Thomas Anthony Brennan took place yesterday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Martin's Catholic Church with the Rev. Peter F. Quinn officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Bayer.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an antique ivory satin gown fashioned on princess lines with a Queen Elizabeth lace collar and short train. Her finger-tip veil was held with orange blossoms. She carried her mother's wedding handkerchief and a bouquet of calla lilies.

Miss Mary McKay served as maid of honor. She wore an aqua net frock with a tight basque, puffed sleeves and full skirt. Her bouquet was of spring flowers. Lieut. Anthony R. Bayer, brother of the bride, was best man. Ushers were Martin Brennan, brother of the bridegroom, and Philip Ricker.

Adeline Rush Is Married Here

The wedding of Miss Adeline Rush, daughter of Mrs. John Osgood Rush, of Washington, and the late Dr. Rush, of Mobile, Ala., to James Francis Miltenberger, took place yesterday afternoon at the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle. The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Joseph Moran. A reception at the home of Gen. and Mrs. Lutz Wahl, 2649 Woodley Road, followed.

The bride wore a gown of white brocade with a fingertip veil and carried a prayer book. Her maid of honor was the bridegroom's sister, Miss Marie Louise Miltenberger, who wore rose beige lace trimmed with chiffon and a chiffon hat to match. Her flowers were spring blossoms in shades of orchid and pink. Little Catherine Kelly, of Upper Marlboro, Md., was flower girl, wearing robin's egg blue mousseline and carrying a basket of flowers. Don Christmas was ringbearer.

Gustave Miltenberger, twin brother of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were John Kelly, Myron B. Stevens, William H. Brooke, jr., and Lawrence McCown. Lieut. John Osgood Rush, jr., gave his sister in marriage.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

THE CHERRY BLOSSOM invasion and the opening last night of the new Somerset Maugham play brought some interesting faces to Washington. In addition to the author, down from New York for the opening, were the Donald Oenslagers—he is the well-known designer who did the sets for the play. Mr. Oenslager's name is a familiar one on theater programs, and at one time nine productions with his sets were running in New York at one time.

Dorothea Villard celebrated Easter Sunday with a cocktail party for the Oenslagers at her home in Georgetown. She had carefully rounded up several classmates at Harvard of the designer, among them Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. John Mason Brown, the critic, was another crony when they were all at college. Mrs. Lodge accompanied the Senator to the party, wearing a navy blue costume with a hat of white violets.

BOTH Mr. and Mrs. Oenslager love people and parties and were the last to leave the other afternoon. Two other guests dashed in apologizing for tardiness but explaining they had fallen asleep—under a bush in the Virginia countryside. They were Mr. and Mrs. Courtlandt Barnes, and they had their Easter dinner out of a basket while hiking near Washington. Mrs. Barnes' blue jeans and a brilliant red sweater and jacket had a Huckleberry Finn effect.

Frank Walker, formerly of Washington and now with a New York law firm, was here for the week-end and came to the party. He was also an Oenslager classmate. Jacob Beam, of the State Department, told friends he will leave tomorrow by boat for his new post at the London Embassy. He won't have to worry about lodgings, for the entire staff now lives in a hotel directly across the street from the Embassy. In case of air raids they go over to the bomb and gas proof Embassy shelter.

DORSEY FISHER, another Foreign Service officer assigned to London, will leave shortly by clipper. Others at the party were Mrs. Shaw Parker, Richard Gamble, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Foote, Frank Hannighan, Baron and Baroness Stackeljberg, Lady Latham, Marcia Umbsen and Harry Viliard.

ALSO IN line with the theater was our chat over a noonday cocktail with Mr. and Mrs. Metcalfe Walling and Leon Askim. The latter is the new director of the Washington Civic Theater, of which Mr. Walling has just been made president.

Easter is a day to be celebrated by Mr. Askim for more than one reason. Just eight years ago on that date he was released from a Nazi prison. An Austrian, he opposed the Hitler regime while acting and directing in Berlin. Later, when he was informed it would be healthier to return to Vienna, he went back there and organized political "cabarets," informal revues aimed at the Nazis. One evening, after he had been rehearsing a new production, he arrived at the theater to find it closed. The Germans had taken over Austria. After hiding out with friends, Mr. Askim escaped to Paris, only to be placed in an internment camp in Brittany when war began. This talented young man eventually found his way to America and now has great plans for our Washington theater.

"I've always wanted to meet a contest winner, because I enter every contest that comes along and never hear from it," said a guest at Mrs. McCook Knox's house the other afternoon. Her son-in-law, Richard Smith, won second prize in a competition sponsored by a publishing firm for his outline of a novel. He has completed two-thirds of his book and it will appear next winter under the title "Sun Dial."

Mr. and Mrs. Smith came down from New York to spend Easter with the latter's mother, and Mrs. Knox asked a few young people in to say hello to them. Among those who dropped by were Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbert Train, Mrs. Corcoran Thom, jr., Miss Mildred Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Whitelaw Wilson and Daniel Partridge.

Lucille Kurvers Becomes Bride Of W. B. Bowie

At a quiet ceremony Miss Lucille Kathryn Kurvers became the bride of William Beall Bowie yesterday at 12:30 o'clock in St. Matthews Cathedral with the Right Rev. Msgr. Edward L. Buckey officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Kurvers, of Shakopee, Minn. Mr. Bowie is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Beall Bowie, of Mount Lubentia, Prince Georges County, Md.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an aquamarine ensemble, navy accessories and a corsage of gerdenias and fresia. Miss Catherine Chase, who served as maid of honor, wore a yellow silk frock and a corsage of sweet peas. Oden Bowie was best man for his cousin.

A wedding breakfast was given at the Mayflower Hotel. The couple are now on their wedding trip in the north. They will travel through the New England States. The bride was graduated from Minneapolis Business College. Mr. Bowie was graduated from the University of Maryland and Georgetown Law School.

Sullivans Fete Betrothed Couple

Mr. and Mrs Mark Sullivan, jr., entertained at dinner last night for Miss Stellita Stapleton and her fiance, George Renchard. The couple will be married Saturday, at St. Matthew's Cathedral, with a reception following at the Stapleton residence on Massachusetts Avenue.

Today Miss Stapleton and Mr. Renchard will be honor guests at a cocktail party that Miss Eleanor Flood will give in her apartment at the Shoreham.

Jeanette Fuchs Married Here To L. S. Carey

Decked with white lilies, St. Gabriel's Catholic Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Jeanette Fuchs to Lloyd Spicer Carey at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, with the Rev. Sweeney officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fuchs, of this city. Mr. Carey is the son of Mrs. William E. Carey and the late Mr. Carey, of Chevy Chase, Md.

Given in marriage by her brother, Charles Albert Fuchs, of Norfolk, Va., the bride wore a white marquisette gown with a high neck and inserts of white lace. She carried a prayer book covered with orchids and her fingertip veil was held by a cluster of orange blossoms.

Mrs. Herbert Noyes Harvey, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a shell-pink gown and carried a cluster of rosebuds and blue forget-me-nots. Miss Ruth Marie Keelan and Miss Leona Ernestine Draeger were bridesmaids. They wore angel blue gowns and carried colonial bouquets.

William E. Carey, jr., served as best man for his brother and ushers were William S. Abell, Franklin N. Parks, Albert B. Parks and E. Carey Kenney, of Baltimore, Md.

A breakfast for the bridal party followed at Wardman Park Hotel. Mrs. Stephen Halstead Farrell, sister of the bride, who served as hostess, wore a wood violet ensemble and a corsage of purple orchids. Mrs. Carey wore a beige crepe jacket dress with orchids. The couple left following the reception for New York City. After May 1 they will live in Falkland, Silver Spring, Md.

Mrs. Arthur Woods Plans Concert In Charlottesville

Mrs. Arthur Woods returned to Washington last night from Charlottesville, Va., where she spent the weekend at the Farmington Country Club.

While in Virginia she also completed arrangements for the eighteenth century concert which is to be given in Charlottesville on Friday, May 3, by Mrs. Archibald MacLeish and Ralph Kirkpatrick.

This event is but one of many special entertainments arranged at various points in Virginia during garden week. Proceeds will go this year to Bundles for Britain.

Mrs. E. L. Cummings Gives Luncheon

Mrs. Emerson L. Cummings, wife of Capt. Cummings, of the Ordnance Department, entertained at a small luncheon yesterday at the Army-Navy Country Club. Guest of honor was Mrs. R. S. Morelock, of Galveston, Tex., who will leave Washington today after a two weeks' visit with her daughter, Mrs. J. F. Thorlin, wife of Capt. Thorlin.

Others in the company were Mrs. Leslie Skinner and her house guest, Mrs. William House, of Springfield, Mass.; Mrs. James McInnerney and Mrs. Fries Henney.

Mrs. Vandenberg, Mrs. Harllee Fete Michigan, Texas D. A. R.'s

Tea parties for visiting delegates to the current D. A. R Congress will take over a sizable share of the social spotlight this week. Among those on yesterday's calendar was the one given by Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg in honor of the Michigan delegation, and the one at which Mrs. William C. Harllee entertained for the Texas delegation.

From 4 until 6 o'clock the Vandenberg apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel was crowded with guests. Among those assisting the hostess were Mrs. Henry Joy of Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. John Howard, of Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey, jr., who were guests of Senator and Mrs. Vandenberg over the week-end, spent yesterday visiting friends in Middleburg, Va. They will go to New York today, returning to Washington on Friday.

Around 300 guests attended the tea that Mrs. Harllee gave at her home, 1753 Lamont Street. Former Texans who are now residents of Washington, members of the Texas delegation, and other friends of the hostess were among those on hand to meet the D. A. R.'s from the Lone Star State.

Among those who assisted the hostess were Mrs. Jesse Jones, Mrs. Luther Johnson, Mrs. Albert Thomas, Mrs. Fritz Lanham, Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, Mrs. Fred Rogers and Mrs. Lemuel Bolles.

On Thursday, wives of the West Virginia members of Congress will entertain at a tea at the Mayflower for visiting D. A. R. delegates from West Virginia. The party will take place in the Chinese Room. Hostesses will include Mrs. Harley M. Kilgore, wife of Senator Kilgore; Mrs. John Kee, Mrs. Jennings Randolph, Mrs. Joe L. Smith, Mrs. Andrew Edmiston, Mrs. George Johnson and Mrs. Robert L. Ramsay.

Knudsen Tells Club How to Achieve Defense

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor

"This country may not be in danger of invasion, but it is in danger of becoming complacent," William S. Knudsen, director of the Office of Production Management, declared yesterday, "and if it becomes complacent, it will deteriorate."

The keynote of national defense is "to get everybody to look at one thing—national defense—and then help one another to get it done," said Mr. Knudsen.

He addressed a group of 200 women at the second in the series of information hour programs, sponsored by the education committee of the Woman's National Democratic Club, at the clubhouse, 1526 New Hampshire Avenue. Introduced by Mrs. Claude E. Hamilton, wife of the General Counsel of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Mr. Knudsen prefaced what he said of the actual defense program with a simple account of his own experience in "enjoying the privileges of America" since coming to this country from Copenhagen, Denmark by steerage in 1900—"with plenty of health, but little money."

The first summer he was here he worked in a factory making torpedo boats for the U. S. Navy. He described with characteristic simplicity how he later worked for a railroad, then in a factory making bicycles, which later took orders for parts in the Model T Ford, and how this led to his going to the Ford plant in Detroit.

In pointing out how it is possible to size up and master any job despite difficulties, he drew on his personal experiences of producing essential equipment needed during the World War.

Tells of World War Production Work

He told of delivering 2,500 ambulances in 30 days instead of the 90 allowed for their manufacture—and providing volunteer drivers and mechanics to help operate them in France.

He told of the plan worked out to speed launching of the celebrated Eagle boats, built just before the Armistice.

The rehearsal was not so much an account of his rise to his present position of vast responsibility as a series of illustrations that it is possible to solve all problems, and that of national defense was just another one on a larger scale.

"Today the watchword of successful corporations is cooperation," he said. "It used to be individual effort and 'let the devil take the hindmost.' Now we have to take the hindmost along with us or we get into trouble. It shows how our thinking must change as the country changes.

Learning More About Job All the Time

"I have made autos, ships and locomotives," he said, "but never rifles, machine guns and powder. I burned a little midnight old until I got acquainted with all these new things. I haven't found out all about them yet, but I'm getting closer all the time."

He announced that 784 projects—plants for the manufacture of war materials—would be completed in from 60 to 90 days. And they will be permanent, he said, so they can be used if another emergency comes along. Some will be convertible to commercial uses after the emergency, and others will not. The most important things in the defense picture now are ships, planes, guns and tanks, he said, and indicated that the secret of mass production was dividing these into small units for assembly after shipment to their destination.

Asked whether this country could get ships and guns to England "in time," Mr. Knudsen replied: 'That is a question for Mr. Churchill to answer. We are working as fast as we can and doing our utmost."

Va. Federation To Meet Here

Plans for the thirty-fourth annual convention of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held May 6, 7 and 8, at the Wardman Park Hotel, are rapidly being completed by the committee headed by Mrs. Arthur Orr, of the Lyon Park Woman's Club.

Mrs. W. B. Tubbs, chairman of exhibits, has announced that the Arlington Creative Arts Club will show a number of pictures by local artists, some of which have received national recognition. The Arlington Camera Club will exhibit a group of studies, many of which are now being shown in the Smithsonian Institution; and the Pan-American Union will present an exhibit apropos the studies of Central and South America made by many clubs during the past year. Mrs. Virginia Woodin's famous collection of more than 1,000 dolls also will be shown.

Three breakfasts have been planned by Mrs. C. E. Wismer, of the Cherrydale Club, for Wednesday morning, May 7. These are for the American Home, Welfare and American citizenship Groups.

Reports of progress of various chairmen will be given each week from now until convention time. Mrs. Orr is being assisted by Mrs. Orlando Kirk, of Alexandria, registration; Mrs. J. B. Lowell, transportation; Mrs. J. Kenneth Ableiter, decorations; Mrs. K. K. Haddaway, music; Mrs. Ralph Segar, reception, Mrs. C. E. Wismer, breakfasts; Mrs. Irvin Huffard, banquet; Mrs. Jerome Hollaway, housing; Mrs. Donald Duff, souvenirs; Mrs. J. D. Pope, teas and special events; Mrs. Carl Brockway, finances; Mrs. Robert W. Livingston, hospitality; Mrs. Golden Dagger, information; Mrs. J. York Welbron, yearbook; Mrs. W. B. Tubbs, exhibits; Mrs. J. W. Head, pages and ushers; Mrs. C. C. MacPherson, publicity. Mrs. J. B. Lowell is serving as vice chairman of the convention, with Mrs. E. V. Byrne, treasurer; Mrs. R. C. Dorsey, secretary, and Mrs. William G. Watt, general adviser.

Mrs. Pouch, D. A. R. Candidate, Entertains at Mayflower

Mrs. William H. Pouch, of New York (right), candidate for president general of the D. A. R., who entertained the delegates to the Fiftieth Continental Congress at a reception at the Mayflower yesterday afternoon, shown with Mrs. George Duffy, New York State regent, who made the introductions

Festivities heralding the incoming administration of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, began yesterday with a reception attended by hundreds of "Daughters," at which Mrs. William H. Pouch, candidate for president general, entertained at the Mayflower Hotel.

An aisle marked off by ribbon led from the Connecticut Avenue entrance of the hotel to the Chinese room at the Seventeenth Street end of the building, where Mrs. Pouch and others on her ticket received. The aisle was down an avenue of flowers as the hotel was gay with Easter decorations. Members of the hostess committee greeted friends as they went down.

Most of the women were in evening gowns, and after the reception went on to the opening of the Fiftieth Continental Congress of the D. A. R. at Constitution Hall.

Mrs. George Duffy, State regent of New York, headed the line, introducing the guests to Mrs. Pouch. The latter wore a gown of grey lace with a spray of orchids reaching from her shoulder to her waist. Mrs. Duffy wore blue satin with a spray of gardenias. Next in line was Mrs. Medad E. Stone, regent of the Richmond County Chapter in New York to which Mrs. Pouch belongs. Her gown was of white brocade.

Members of the incoming cabinet who also received were: Mrs. Joseph G. Forney, of Pennsylvania, who wore a gown of beige chiffon and black lace; Mrs. John Whittier How Hodge, of California, wearing blue satin; Mrs. Floyd William Bennison, of Minnesota, in a white gown beaded with pearls; Mrs. William Henry Belk, of North Carolina, who wore white, beaded in rhinestones; Mrs. William H. Schlosser, of Indiana, wearing an aqua gown, embroidered in gold bugles; Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox, of the District, in a flame-colored and beige gown.

Miss Marion D. Mullins, of Texas, who wore red lace and chiffon; Mrs. Samuel James Campbell, of Illinois, in black lace with a wide blue girdle; Mrs. Edward Webb Cooch, of Delaware, in blue crepe; Mrs. Frederick A. Wallis, of Kentucky, wearing flowered chiffon; Mrs. Ralph Crockett, of New Hampshire, in a gown of white, embroidered in gold beads; Mrs. C. Edward Murray, of New Jersey, wearing a white gown with a design of grape leaves done in rhinestones and Mrs. Harry E. Narey, of Iowa, wearing aqua lace.

Details of the reception were arranged for the hostess by a committee of District D. A. R., including Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, vice president general, as chairman; Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke, vice chairman, and Mrs. John Morrison Kerr, national president of the Children of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Louise Moseley Heaton, of Mississippi, candidate for president of the C. A. R., to succeed Mrs. Kerr, was among the guests who attended.

A stringed orchestra played during the hours of the affair, 5:30 to 7:30, and tea was served in the Mayflower ballroom.

Mrs. Harley M. Kilgore, wife of Senator Kilgore, of West Virginia, and Mrs. John Kee, Mrs. Joseph L. Smith, Mrs. Jennings Randolph, Mrs. Robert L. Ramsay and Mrs. George W. Johnson, wives of the Representatives from West Virginia, will be honor guests of their State regent, Mrs. W. H. S. White, of Shepherdstown, W. Va., at a luncheon at the Washington Hotel today, which will be attended by officers and delegates here from the mountain State to attend the D. A. R. Congress.

Mrs. Benjamin Yancey Martin entertained at an Easter tea yesterday at the Woman's National Democratic Club in honor of Mrs. Val Taylor, Mrs. A. S. Mitchell and Mrs. E. R. Barnes, of Alabama, who are national and State officers here for the congress, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., president general, was a guest, as were members of the Congressional delegation from Alabama, and the D. A. R. delegates.

Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Vice President, will be honor guest at the luncheon of the Iowa D. A. R.'s today at 1:30, in the Carlton room of the Carlton Hotel.

Dr. Karl Evang, Norway's Health Chief, to Speak

Dr. Karl Evang, surgeon general of public health in Norway, will be the guest speaker at the Y. W. C. A. World Fellowship lunch on Thursday at 12:30 p. m.

Dr. Evang has recently come to America from Norway and is one of that young group of Norwegian scientists who took part in the national task of developing social welfare in Norway last year.

He has long specialized in problems of nutrition and has conducted research to improve national diet. Dr. Evang has also worked in close contact with problems of the practical life of workingmen specializing in industrial hygiene and in this connection planning many campaigns against dangerous occupational diseases in Norway.

With the outbreak of war in Norway, Dr. Evang, a lieutenant colonel, administered the public health service of the country and directed the work of bringing medical relief to the civic population in war-stricken areas. He left northern Norway on June 7 on board the British cruiser which carried King Haakon, the crown prince, the Norwegian government, air pilots and other military men to England. After spending a few weeks in London, he was sent by his country to America on a special mission.

Dr. Evang played an important part in academic life, having been twice elected preident of the Norwegian Students Association—an organization which has been dissolved by the Germans because it traditionally served as one of the freest forums in Norway.

Mrs. Hurt to Be Hostess

The Washington Alumnae Chapter of Beta Sigma Omicron National Sorority will hold its regular monthly meeting tonight at the home of Mrs. B. R. Hurt, 6030 Thirteenth Place Northwest. Miss Pauline Berram will assist. Miss Audrey Dewsberry will be special guest of the evening and will give a talk on china and glassware.

Waistline Exercise Tones Entire Body

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU do all your own housework, you don't feel much like romping through a daily dozen. What's more, you don't even think of yourself as needing exercise and any suggestion that you do is apt to be countered with the retort that "that may apply to some housewives, but not to me."

But housework does not keep you in shape or in condition. The muscles which are usually the least involved in household tasks are those most important to health and figure—the four pairs of abdominal muscles that are the sole support of the internal organs. You have no supporting bony structure in this area.

To make matters worse, you have to contend with gravity. You have to resist its constant downward tug. When your muscular girdle is allowed to go flabby, gravity is easily the winner.

So even though you skip the rest of the daily dozen, make it a point to do a few special exercises every day to keep this vitally important group in tone. You will find that a regular program of this type keeps you in shape and condition and gives you more energy.

Morning Best Time

In exercising, take advantage of your high energy levels. The best time is around 10 or 11 o'clock in the morning. But if this hour is out of the question, catch your second high energy level at 3 or 4 in the afternoon.

Start with this basic position in which all possibility of strain is obviated

Lie on the back on the floor with the knees flexed and the soles of the feet on the floor near the buttocks. Pull up and in with the abdominal muscles and push the small of the back down flat against the floor. Hold for a second, relax slowly and repeat ten times.

From that position, you can go on to other excellent girdle conditioners as the following:

A 10-Count Number

As you pull up and in with the lower abdominal muscles, flex alternate knees to chest. Relax between times, but continue ten counts.

From same position, knees flexed, feet on floor, and keeping small of back on floor, twist sharply at waist and, holding knees together, touch alternate thighs to floor. This tones waist and stomach muscles.

Graduate to more difficult exercise by exercising with feet elevated on chair seat. From this position, raise hips off the floor until the body is in a straight line, then pull alternate knees to chest, and finally from this position, with hips off floor, swing alternate legs to right angles.

Metal Furniture

From earliest times to the present metal has been adapted for use in furniture making. Bronze furniture appears in the records of ancient Egypt, Greece, Rome, China, Japan and India. In both medieval and Renaissance Europe wrought iron furniture was used as well as wrought iron ornaments on wooden furniture. During the eighteenth century metal mounts, hardware and medallions were used, but ormulu trim reached a new height in the Empire period. In our own time the brass and iron bed and the use of metal hardware have been familiar. Modern designers have given us the tubular metal furniture as well as the intricately interesting variations of metal for outdoor furniture.

Raw Silk for Base Fabric

Raw silk is going to be used by several manufacturers as the base fabric for printed decorative patterns, because it resembles linen texturally. For the supply of linen for use as a decorative fabric will shortly be exhausted. Since silk has gone up 200 per cent in cost, it's probably that much of this new material will actually be made of artificial silk.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

"I can't afford to stop work"

—if this fits your case, then, here is an easy way to protect your strength...to generate new power how you may be able to overcome that tired, run-down feeling sluggish digestion loss of weight

poor appetite

THOUSANDS and thousands of men and women have testified to the benefits S.S.S. has brought them.

The facts are simple, though a low red blood condition is often most deceptive.

Wear and strain of worry, overwork, colds, and sickness often reduce one's blood strength.

Now you may rebuild this strength by restoring your red blood to normal, in the absence of an organic trouble or focal infection, with the famous S.S.S. Tonic.

S.S.S. acts two ways

In S.S.S. Tonic you go after the trouble in two ways . . . first you increase the appetite and better your stomach digestion—thus making better use of the food you eat—secondly, thin, weak, watery blood is made rich and red again thus giving you a boost in energy.

If you can't afford to stop work . . . if there are loved ones dependent on you for support . . . you owe it to them and to yourself to start now on a course of S.S.S. Tonic.

enjoy better health

S.S.S. may be just what you need to get you on the right road to health and happiness again . . . it helps build sturdy health . . . that's why so many say it "makes you feel like yourself again."

Pope's Views Seen as Aid In Crisis Today

Reconstruction plans set down 50 years ago by Pope Leo XIII were urged yesterday as the basis of legislation to solve social problems in this country and to combat the "threat of totalitarianism" in Europe by delegates to the National Federation of Catholic College Students congress here.

Opening the two-day national congress at Georgetown University, more than 200 delegates from 50 colleges heard two encyclicals bearing on domestic problems—particularly labor problems—written by Pope Leo XIII in 1891 and Pope Pius XI in 1931.

After hearing the first tract's provision calling for "public remedial measures" to remove the causes of strikes, "which are extremely injurious to trade and to the general interests of the public," they denounced the stand "that violent measures should be taken to supress strikes."

The students agreed that "the Pope view proposed rather that workmen be accorded their rights in advance of strike action, regarding such things as the living wage, organization and decent working conditions."

The Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, president of Georgetown University, greeted the students who had come from colleges as far south as New Orleans and as far west as Minnesota. His welcome followed the opening address by Gertrude Kirk, national president and a student from Dunbarton College here.

Legislation based on precepts in the encyclicals was urged by Ervin von Wald, of Catholic University, who emphasized the "universal applicability" of the principles outlined.

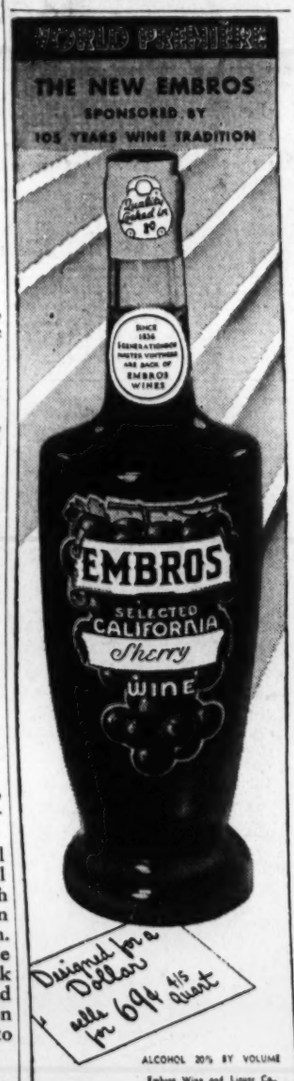

The delegates held sectional meetings in the afternoon.

Two Collisions In District Send Four to Hospitals

Collisions yesterday sent four persons to hospitals.

Two persons were hurt in a collision at Sixth and H Streets Northwest. William M. Bolin, 36, of 726 G Street Northeast, driver of one of the cars, and Mary Gardner, 67, of 6 Cedar Avenue, Gaithersburg, Md., a passenger in the second car, were injured. Bolin was treated for fractured ribs at Casualty Hospital and Mrs. Gardner for a possible fractured pelvis at Emergency.

Two passengers in a taxicab received slight injuries when the cab was struck by a streetcar at Fourteenth and F Streets Northwest. The injured, Ida Mae Williams, 30, of 509 Daniel Street, Colmar Manor, Md., and Helen Bowen, 30, of 107 Edmonston Road, Bladensburg, Md., received first-aid treatment at Emergency Hospital and returned home.

Mother Sees James Roosevelt Married to His Former Nurse

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

By the Associated Press

Beverly Hills, Calif., April 14.—James Roosevelt, 33, whose career swung from the Nation's Capital to the film capital, took as his second wife today a brown-eyed nurse he met while undergoing at a Rochester, Minn., hospital.

The eldest son of the President was married to Romelle Theresa Schneider, 25, in a simple, civil ceremony which was attended by a small group of guests, including his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who came from the East by plane.

Municipal Judge Arthur Guerin read the service at the home of George P. Converse and Mrs. Converse, the former actress, Anita Stewart.

Roosevelt and his bride exchanged vows before an altar banked with Easter lilies. She wore a beige, semitailored suit and carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Just before the ceremony Roosevelt gave her a diamond and ruby bracelet.

Among the 25 guests were Jimmy's mother, his sister, Mrs. Anna Boettiger, and her husband, John Boettiger, Seattle publisher; the bride's mother, Mrs. Agnes Schneider; her brother, George, Notre Dame University student, and her two sisters, Mrs. L. F. Tubbs and Phyllis Schneider, Jimmy's secretary.

Roosevelt was divorced last year by the former Betsy Cushing, of Boston.

Following a luncheon, the couple left on a brief honeymoon at an undisclosed spot. A captain in the Marine Corps at San Diego, Roosevelt must return to duty Thursday. He expressed surprise at a report he might be transferred to Cairo, Egypt.

The romance of the tall, baldish Roosevelt and Miss Schneider began after he went to Rochester for a stomach operation in 1938. He came to a Hollister, Calif., ranch to recuperate, resigning as secretary to the President. Miss Schneider accompanied him. She is a native of Independence, Wis.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt planned to leave tonight by American Airlines plane to keep a speaking engagement in North Carolina tomorrow.

Beverly Hills, Calif., April 14.—The bride wore a simple sports suit of beige wool with a purple silk blouse polka dotted in white. Her hat was a small round untrimmed pompadour bonnet. She wore a purple veil. On one lapel of her coat was a corsage of white dogwood and lilies of the valley. On the other lapel sparkled a diamond sapphire pin, gift of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. The First Lady said that her special gift was "a gold pin which belonged to my mother." The bridegroom's gift was a bracelet of diamonds and rubies. He was dressed informally, wearing a Navy sack suit with soft blue shirt and polka dot tie. In his lapel he wore a blue bachelor's button.

The First Lady wore her Easter outfit of two shades of purple and wistaria with large hat to match. Her corsage was of purple and small white orchids. Anna Boettinger, the bridegroom's sister, who flew down from Seattle with her husband, wore black crepe sprinkled with large red roses.

The bride's mother was the surprise of the wedding. She looked almost as young and pretty as the bride. Her frock was of carmel and white print with wool jacket and straw hat to match. Her corsage was brown and white orchids. The bride's sister, Phyllis, who stood up with her, wore a beige suit and hat and carried violets. The entire Schneider family was present, including the married sister and her husband and younger brother.

League Opposes Farm Parity Idea

The National Economy League asserted yesterday that farmers "have no case whatever for seeking to add additional burdens to a Federal budget already under the strain of a prodigious defense program."

The House is considering Senate amendments to the farm bill providing $450,000,000 for parity payments, as compared with the budget figure of $212,000,000.

Although conceding that "some form of Government assistance to agriculture is required," the private research organization said the parity theory was "only a pseudo-scientific vehicle for pressing demands which have no economic justification whatever."

Montgomery Grants Class D Beer License

The Montgomery County (Md.) liquor control board yesterday granted a Class D license to sell beer and light wine to Harry Lloyd, of Old Germantown, Md.

It reserved decision on the application of the Argyle Country Club, in Silver Spring, for a beer license. No protests were voiced at the hearings on the two applications which preceded the board meeting yesterday afternoon.

Cleric Urges Curb on States' Sovereignty

Restriction of the power of nations to declare war and to be "the sole judge of their own actions" was called the only way to obtain international justice and enduring peace by Dr. John L. McMahon, president of the Catholic Association for International Peace, yesterday.

Addressing the fifteenth annual conference of the association at Trinity College, Dr. McMahon stated that "The state exists for the common temporal welfare. If the present state because of its sovereignty fails to attain that object, then it is time that peoples everywhere demand such legal restrictions of the power of the state."

Hitting particularly at totalitarianism, he quoted the first encyclical of Pope Pius XII as saying "unlimited authority in the state . . . injures the relations between peoples, for it breaks the unity of supernational society, robs the law of nations of its foundation and vigor, leands to violation of others' rights and impedes agreement and peaceful intercourse."

America's responsibility in helping to effect a just peace was emphasized by the Rev. R. A. McGowan, assistant director of the National Catholic Welfare Conference social action department, who served as chairman for the opening afternoon session.

This morning, Dr. Francis E. McMahon, of the philosophy department of the University of Notre Dame, will conduct a discussion on "The Necessity of World Organization" and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John A. Ryan, director of the N. C. W. C. social action department, will discuss "Functions of a World Organization."

Deputy Court Clerks Named For Montgomery

Clayton K. Watkins, clerk of the Circuit Court for Montgomery County, yesterday appointed Mrs. Louise Bogley, Mrs. Mary G. Foster, Miss Pauline Counselman and Mrs. Margaret W. King as deputy clerks. All have been members of the clerical force for several years. The other deputies are Miss Margaret E. Scherrer, chief, and Robert A. Hughes.

E. Curtis Mortimer and Philip Buscher have been appointed by Sheriff Leslie Carlin as deputy sheriffs for the county, and Clarence S. Gray and David S. Clothier as deputy sheriffs for Glen Echo Park.

Think of the Fun He Had

Clifford Jackson, 45, colored, yesterday paid the next 30 days of his freedom for stealing 2 pounds of navy beans valued at 13 cents Saturday night at a Wisconsin Avenue food market.

Jackson was sentenced for shoplifting by Police Court Judge John P. McMahon.

Easter Holiday Proves Unlucky

While the great majority of Washingtonians and visitors were enjoying the Easter weekend at least 217 "unlucky" citizens were cooling their heels behind locked bars, official statistics at Police Court revealed yesterday.

In 167 cases police lodged drunk charges, and 12 others for traffic violations.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Transfer Rumors Upset Farm Credit Employes

Farm Credit Administration is full of transfer rumors. Most common report is that the organization will be sent to Chicago. Several employes on field duty have rushed here to find out what the talking is all about. An official left for Chicago the other day and the story was circulated immediately that he was going to select offices for the agency. Similar stories are being told about Interstate Commerce Commission and Railroad Retirement Board. All the stories, however, are just so much gossip at this point.

It's true that the Budget Bureau plans a long-range study of Washington. This survey will cover decentralization of Federal bureaus also. The decentralization study has barely started and no decision has been made to move this or that bureau out of Washington. Fact is the bureau may never recommend that any large number of employes now working here be transferred.

What the bureau is more likely to do is to keep down the number of Federal workers here by persuading department heads to keep in the field employes who can function there as well as they do here. The bureau, in fact, already has functioned in this capacity by keeping down the number of War and Navy employes. It's also understood to be interested in the 4,200 Social Security Board employes in Baltimore who are supposed to be brought back here. If the board employes can perform as well in Baltimore as they do here it's a safe guess that the bureau will insist they remain there.

Commerce personnel officials have worked out a plan to help employes who are separated involuntarily to get other jobs. The department won't maintain a reemployment office, but separated workers will be indorsed and told of all possible agencies where vacancies exist. Preference in rehiring will be given former employes with good records. The employes have been assured that "race, sex, or religious beliefs and affiliations shall not be determining factors in dismissals or in the preparation of separation ratings."

New Airport to Hire 110

The new Washington National Airport will have 110 civilian employes. Most of the workers already have been selected, but a few laborer and mechanic jobs remain unfilled. Applications can be made at the personnel office on the sixth floor of the Commerce Building. John Groves is airport manager. His assistant is David S. Loughborough and Elizabeth Sayers is his secretary.

Civil Aeronautics Administration is hiring employes at the rate of more than 100 a month. It has taken on 1,200 new workers since July 1 and the end of hiring isn't in sight. CAA now has an all-time high of 5,700 employes. . . . Edgar Young, Budget Bureau personnel director; W. P. Lehman, Interdepartmental Placement Service chief, and Luther Steward, NFFE president, will speak tonight at an open meeting of the Government personnel policy at the North Interior Auditorium. Henry Nolda will preside. . . . Illinois State Society will hold a National defense dance Friday at the Shoreham.

National Defense Recreational Association soon will stage contests to select "Miss National Defense," and "Mr. National Defense." . . . New Civil Service registers and the number of eligibles on each: Associate personnel technician, 75; assistant personnel technician, 107, and junior personnel technician, 537. . . . Robert Butler, former WPA lawyer, is historical adviser to OPM. He's assigned to the priorities division and his work is finding out what the War Industries Board did when problems arose during World War 1.

War Department, which is hiring civilian employes at the rate of more than 1,000 a week, has been given relatively free control over recruiting new employes in the field, by the Civil Service Commission. The department can hire whomever it wants for 30 days in the field service. And the appointments can be extended, if the commission approves. Moreover, the department can hire "for the duration" any employe when the commission has no eligibles, and even if the commission has eligibles but ones who can't report at the time wanted.

Immigration and Naturalization Service is looking for a general counsel. . . . UFWA will have a weekly program on WINX every Tuesday from 10:15 to 10:25 p. m. starting tonight.

West End Citizens Mark 38th Year

The West End Citizens Association celebrated its thirty-eighth anniversary last night with a dinner in the Fairfax Hotel, where its accomplishments in Northwest Washington were lauded by Maj. Ernest Brown, superintendent of police; President Harry N. Stull of the Federation of Citizens Associations, and other District leaders.

Association President Walter F. Wasson presided at the dinner and introduced as guests of honor: Dean Henry Grattan Doyle of George Washington University and Mrs. Doyle, president of the Board of Education; David Babp, secretary of the Federation; Charles L. Norris, former president of the association; A. J. Driscoll, president of the Mid-City Citizens Association; Stull and Maj. Brown.

Burleith

A new building to replace the Fillmore School at Thirty-fifth and S Streets Northwest which "can not be modernized" was requested last night by the Burleith Citizens Association at its regular meeting.

The eight-room structure is about 40 years old and houses approximately 250 pupils, it was said.

Affiliation with the Municipal Assembly was opposed by the association on the grounds the organization duplicates the work of the Federation of Citizens Associations. "Clean Up Week" was indorsed.

National Gateway

A resolution asking Congress to appropriate more funds to the Board of Education for handicapped children in their homes and in hospitals was adopted last night by the National Gateway Citizens Association.

The association also repeated its request that the National Training School for Boys be removed from the District and the land on Bladensburg Road be used for temporary Government offices. Opposition to any change in zoning below the present scale was voiced in a resolution which asked the Zoning Commissioners to notify all neighbors of property under consideration for rezoning.

Kalorama

The Kalorama Citizens Association, at a brief meeting last night, adopted a resolution urging the creation of a park in the vicinity of Nineteenth Street and Columbia Road, north of Kalorama Road. A number of names for the park were also suggested. The resolution was sent to District Park and Planning officials.

The association voted to cooperate in the current citywide cleanup campaign, and to assist city officials in finding living quarters for the influx of defense workers here.

Northeast Washington

The Northeast Washington Citizens Association last night went on record in opposition to all legislation proposed in Congress for a sales tax in the District, at its regular meeting held at the Ludlow School, Sixth and G Streets Northeast.

Further liberalization of the alcoholic beverage control laws was opposed by the group. Opposition also was expressed to daylight saving for the District. The group went on record in opposition to a rent commissioner in Washington

Lawmakers to Hear Dr. Jones, Famed Missionary to India

Conferences with Government leaders on the church and the war crisis is one reason why Dr. E. Stanley Jones is back in Washington after being urged by an "inner voice" to cancel his trip to India and remain in America.

Just what he feels is the church's role in the crisis he would not reveal yesterday in an interview, explaining that he would discuss that subject in his address tomorrow at 8 p. m. at First Congregational Church, Tenth and G Streets Northwest.

Famed missionary to India and leader of the National Christian Mission, which was here in February, he opened a four-day citywide speaking mission at First Church, appearing three times. For the other three days, he will speak from 12 to 12:30 p. m. and 8 p. m., the noon and afternoon sessions having been combined.

He will address a legislators' luncheon on Capitol Hill tomorrow at 12 noon and a laymen's luncheon today at 12:45 p. m. in the alcove of the Dodge Hotel. The latter will be sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches. His mission is under the federation, the District of Columbia Sunday School Association and the District of Columbia Bible Class Association.

Following his afternoon address yesterday, Dr. Jones sat down in a front pew and told how the "call" came to him in a Los Angeles Hotel at 4 o'clock on the morning of March 25.

"I tried to put it aside," he said, "but it kept persisting, and by 6 o'clock I knew it was the authoritative voice of God, so I wired to have my bags taken off the President Harrison.

Dr. Howard Stone Anderson, First Church pastor, learned of the incident, and offered his church's facilities for the public mission, feeling that the Nation's Capital would be the ideal place to initiate Dr. Jones' new plans.

Dr. Jones will speak tomorrow on "The Part That Minorities Play." His message yesterday emphasized the various attitudes taken by people in regard to sorrow, pain, disappointments and other distress.

3 Fugitives Seized, D. C. Man's Slayer Remains at Large

Roanoke, Va., April 14 (AP).—State troopers H. W. Glasscock and H. W. Clark, yesterday captured three of four prisoners who escaped from a state prison camp near Tazewell last Thursday.

The trio, apprehended in an automobile on route 11 in Montgomery County, were David Calvin, 34, of Washington, D. C.; Sam Dillow, 22, of Blant County, and Rice Burkholder, 38, of Front Royal.

D. C. Asks 25 More Juvenile Court Aides

Increase in Staff Of Investigators And Probation Officers Sought

An increase of 25 in the Juvenile Court staff of investigators and probation officers and employment of a psychiatrist and physician to advise in the handling of behavior and medical problems of children were asked yesterday in the court's report for the 1940 fiscal year, submitted to Congress by President Roosevelt.

At the same time, Speaker Rayburn of the House received from the District Commissioners the draft of a bill to give the Board of Public Welfare power to assume responsibility for dependent children without the present requirement that the children be committed to the board by Juvenile Court.

Pointing out that the total number of cases handled by the court, either in or out of the courtroom, declined 10.4 per cent in 1940 as against the record of 1939, the report attributed the improvement largely to the work of members of the staff assigned to the court.

Delinquency Cases Decrease

The number of all delinquency cases, the report stated, declined 9.2 per cent during the year, while dependency cases showed a decrease of 17.7 per cent. Juvenile Court Judge Fay Bentley, the report said, handled 16.8 per cent fewer cases during 1940.

The court's complaint department, it was stated, needs four additional probation officers, or complaint investigators. The present staff of three, it was pointed out, handles an average of 37 cases a month whereas the load should be of 15, according to the best standards of practice.

Nine more child probation officers also were asked. The present staff is 13. At the same time, a request was made for 12 additional adult probation officers.

Staff work with children and the efforts of court officers in composing domestic disputes has been an important contributing factor in the ability of the court to reduce commitments to juvenile reform institutions in the city, the report declared.

Three Supervisors Asked

The report cited a 55 per cent increase in funds collected by agreement in nonsupport cases. Attention also was called to the added load placed on its probation department by change in the law to give the court jurisdiction until the juvenile reaches 21.

Three supervisors, a clerk and a stenographer also were asked in the report.

In an attempt to meet some of the court's requirements for psychiatric advice, members of the staff are meeting regularly in a seminar on psychiatry conducted by a local expert. The seminar, it was pointed out, meets at night and staff members pay for the service out of their own salaries.

During the fiscal year, the court received 2,654 complaints of which 1,377, or over 51 per cent, were served without formal court hearing.

The report criticized the Navy Department for refusing to consider enlistment applications from youths with Juvenile Court records. Pointing out that such applications are considered by the Army and the National Guard, the report declared that many youths are known to the court as children, 9 or 11 years old, who have been guilty merely of petty theft or of "breaking a window."

"Not Criminal Law"

"The Juvenile Court law is not a criminal law," the report declared. "Its intent and purpose is to protect the child and help him develop into a useful citizen.

"It expressly provides that no adjudication under it shall operate to impose any of the civil disabilities ordinarily imposed by conviction. In view of these facts, it is difficult to understand why a juvenile court record automatically, in practice, disqualifies a boy, not for acceptance in the Navy, but from consideration of his application."

The Commissioners' child welfare bill would give the Welfare Board the following additional duties:

Investigation of circumstances affecting dependent children and provision of services for their protection and care.

Safeguarding of the welfare of children born out of wedlock and provision of services for their mothers.

Debate Rages On Stand-up Drinking Here

The question of whether the staying power of a man is more easily determined when he drinks standing up or sitting down cropped up yesterday during a nine-minute consideration by the House of District legislation.

Representative Robert Rich (Republican), of Pennsylvania, brought up the question by calling the attention of the House to newspaper reports that the District Commissioners have approved a proposal that would change the District Alcohol Beverage Control law to permit drinking at the bar. Does that, Rich wanted to know, mean a return to Washington of the "old-time saloon?"

Rich declared that when the eighteenth amendment was repealed, proponents of repeal promised never to permit return of the old-fashioned saloon. He contended that the old saloon would bring back preprohibition evils and that "we don't want to start that sort of thing in the District."

Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee replied that he would not be in favor of the old-time saloon any more than Rich, but in defense of the Commissioners he said:

"There is a question in the minds of the authorities whether the bartender might better be able to tell when a man has had enough if he stands at the bar and drinks. If a man sits at a table and drinks he might be able to soak up all he wants to and no one would know that he was drunk until he got up and tried to walk."

In rapid-fire order Randolph called up five minor District bills. They were all passed without objection. The bills would:

Empower the police property clerk to establish the ownership of recovered stolen goods; authorize the Federal Security Administration to accept gifts for Freedmen's Hospital; authorize the FSA to permit the Red Cross to construct a $75,000 building at St. Elizabeths Hospital to replace a structure destroyed by fire last February; give retirement pay to Charlotte E. Hunter, former public school teacher, and permit the House tally clerk, Hans Jurgensen, jr., to use congressional auto tags.

World's Cleanest City Is Board of Trade Goal

If the Washington Board of Trade has its way, the Capital is going to be "the world's cleanest city" during the next 12 days.

The annual clean-up drive started yesterday and freshly painted trash disposal cans with brilliant posters attached appeared all over town.

The Board of Trade wants everyone to cooperate and some 50,000 pledge cards have been distributed.

D. C. to Seek $1,111,857 For Defense

Extra Equipment, 105 More Firemen, Air-Raid Horns Are Recommended

The District Commissioners last night were preparing to ask Congress for $1,111,857 for emergency fire protection in the event of an armed attack upon the city.

This estimate, along with detailed recommendations for additional fire-fighting facilities and air-raid precautions, was submitted to the Commissioners by the Committee on Civil Protection of the District Defense Council.

It was emphasized that the lengthy report was not the result of "war hysteria," but had been carefully prepared after consultation with experts of the War and Navy Departments and representatives of the New York Fire Department who recently visited London on a survey tour.

Cites Specific Needs

Citing specific needs for the improvement of District fire defenses, the report was turned over to the Commissioners by Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, executive vice chairman of the committee, on behalf of Police Superintendent Ernest W. Brown, chairman.

Recommendations for extra equipment, 105 additional firemen, nine air-raid horns and extension of the city's water supply were included in the report.

Meanwhile plans for "practice" blackouts in Washington and its suburbs went forward last night with the backing of Secretary of War Stimson and Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee.

Stimson, it was disclosed yesterday, has advised the District Commissioners of his belief that District experimentation with the blackout "would be very helpful."

Lessons in Blackout

Randolph asked Congress to approve a bill, introduced by him, to authorize the Commissioners to make preparations for blackouts both in the city and adjoining communities in Maryland and Virginia.

In his letter to the Commissioners, Stimson warned that a "period of intensive instruction" should precede any blackout attempt. The community should understand not only methods to be used in controlling light but also the effect of blackout on its life, Stimson said.

City Salaries Ruled Free Of Garnishee

The salaries of the District's 12,000 employes were declared exempt from garnishment for debt, in a decision of the United States Court of Appeals here yesterday.

Justices Henry W. Edgerton, Justin Miller and Wiley Rutledge agreed that Congress intended to exempt District employes from this process when it established the District as a municipal corporation.

The salary of Mary E. Butler, a nurse at Gallinger Hospital, was attached by Mary E. Chewning, who had won a Municipal Court judgment for about $200. Assistant Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West protested that the District was not required by law to hold its employes' checks for creditors who obtained garnishments.

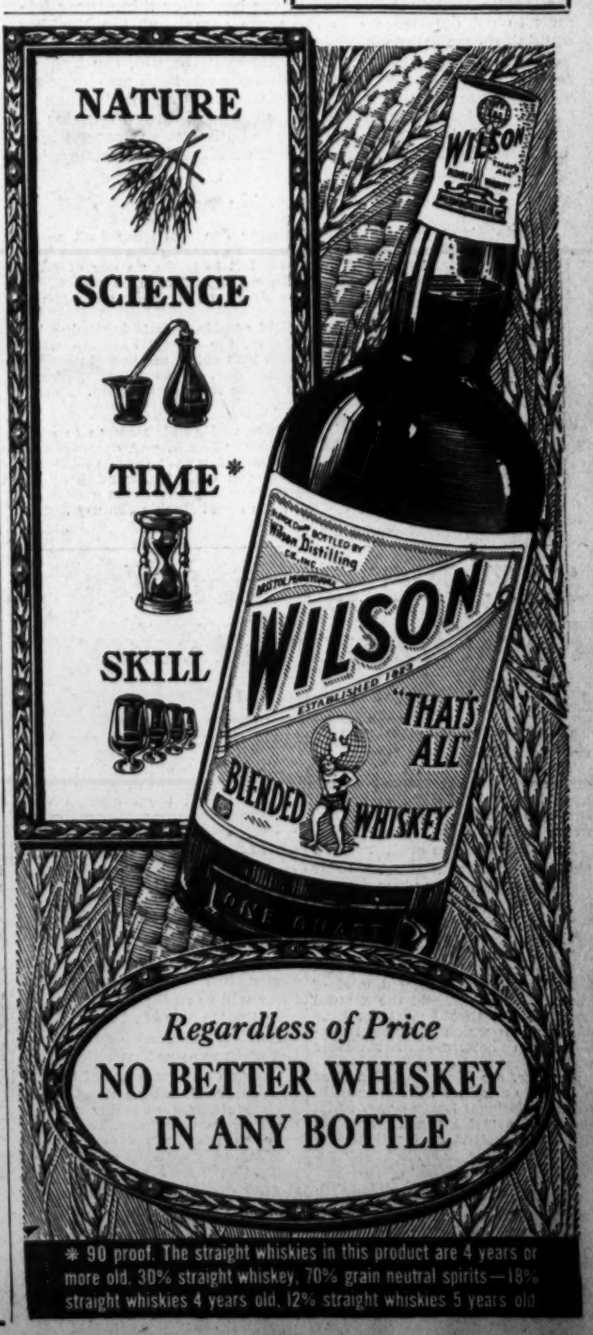

Attorney Cornelius H. Doherty argued that the District was authorized to "sue and be sued" and therefore must answer a garnishment like any other writ.

Justice Edgerton said in the court's opinion that there was a difference. He pointed out that the Supreme Court has distinguished garnishments from other suits.

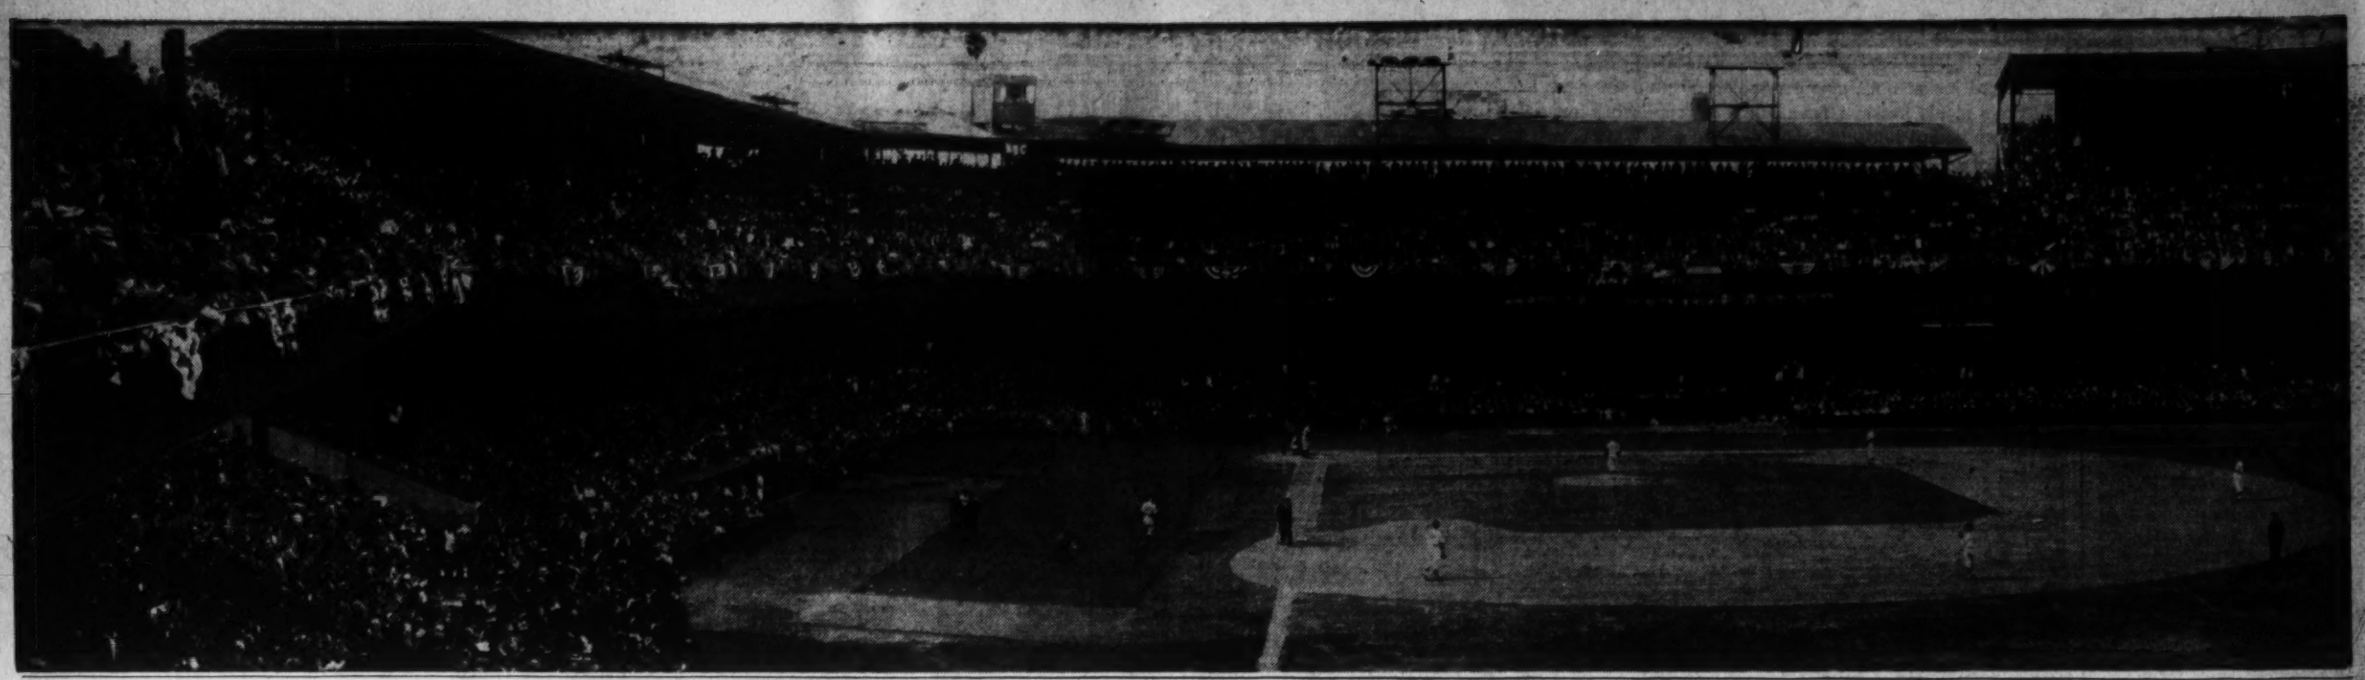

Doherty indicated that the question might be taken to the Supreme Court again.

32,000 Watch Yanks Defeat Nats in Opening Game, 3-0

WASHINGTON, APR. 15, 1941

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Bucky Sees Silver Lining

Bucky Harris was not dejected, merely grim, as he sat by his locker and spat his cigarette smoke at the dressing room floor. He didn't want his shower right away, after that 3-0 defeat by the Yankees. Still too vivid with him was the ball game and the pain of that shut-out. He wanted to talk about it.

POVICH

"They had their day today, that's all right," said Harris. Obviously it wasn't all right with him. He meant that the Nats could do better and would.

I wouldn't say that the Yanks looked like world-beaters today," went on Harris. "They don't look as if they're going to scare anybody out of the pennant. We can beat this Yankee team plenty before the year is over. They didn't beat much when they beat Leonard today."

Leonard, who held the Yankees to six hits and only two deserved runs?

"Yes, Leonard. He got by pretty good, but he didn't have his usual stuff today. If they can get only three runs off Leonard on a day like this, he'll shut 'em out when he's right. You can tell that Leonard didn't have it. Any time Rick Ferrell catches all his knuckle balls without dropping a few, Leonard's knuckler isn't too good. That's the test."

The Nats weren't hitting, Harris was reminded.

"That's right, and you don't have to tell me. We weren't hitting, that's all. Did you ever see a team look good when it wasn't hitting. We're going to hit, though, when the Yankees don't. And I didn't see them busting any fences down today."

That Russo was all right.

"Humph, what a beaut he is. We're not going to meet up with anybody any tougher. That's why I'm not so disgusted about our hitting today. I tabbed that Russo two years ago when he broke in with the Yankees. Anybody could tell he couldn't miss. But they can't pitch Russo every day. Those three double plays didn't hurt him any, either."

Double Plays Brought Nats Doom

Those three double plays hurt Washington, huh?

"They killed us. Try sitting on a bench some time and watch your guys hit into double plays when you need a couple of runs. It's the worst form of torture. And I never thought I'd see the day when I'd see those three double plays, particularly."

Why not?

"Well, figure them out for yourself. Who were the guys who were doubled up at first base on ground balls. Only Case, Chapman and Welaj, that's all. Just the three of the fastest men in the league, that's all. It isn't in the books for those three fellows to get doubled up in the same game, but the Yankees couldn't do anything wrong today. We'll be all right."

All right, too, apparently, is little Phil Rizzuto, the Yankee rookie up from Kansas City who already has been pre-judged a major league star. It was Rizzuto who was the middle man in one of the three Yankee double plays and the originator of another. He turned the ball loose to both first and second base in a flash, and will give the Yankees considerable shortstopping apparently.

Yanks' Infield Shows Seamy Side

Rizzuto didn't get a hit, but Manager Joe McCarthy isn't very alarmed about that. One of the reasons he didn't get a hit was because Cecil Travis mooched far to his left to scoop up one of Rizzuto's blows and throw him out by inches at first base on a decision the Yankees didn't like. It was the first time he had encountered Leonard's knuckler.

The seamy side of the Yankee infield combination is beginning to manifest itself, however. Gerry Priddy, the second baseman who came up from Kansas City with Rizzuto isn't out of the lineup merely because he twisted his ankle the other day. Even in the best of health, Priddy might not have been in the lineup yesterday. There is grave doubt that he is a big leaguer.

Priddy is not a good hitter, it now seems. He didn't cotton to even the exhibition game pitching he saw in the South, and according to Yankee sources, he's slow afoot. And McCarthy isn't greatly enthused about his fielding skill. So it's Joe Gordon back to second base for seemingly a long time, at least until the Yankees can swing a deal for a first baseman because they are not keen about Rookie Johnny Sturm at that job.

Griff, Jacobs Forget Game, Talk Fight

Discuss Date for Louis Title Bout As the President Makes Wild Pitch

By Al Hailey

Franklin D. Roosevelt, who once managed the Groton baseball team, warned everyone within throwing distance and then started things rolling at Griffith Stadium yesterday with a wild toss.

"I'll probably kill somebody," shouted the President, apparently remembering last year's pitch which smashed a Post photographer's camera. Then he let fly. It was high and outside, and after risking life and limb with a flying tackle, Nats' Rookie Arnold Anderson retrieved the ball—which the President promptly autographed with a 10-year-old fountain pen borrowed from a Secret Service man.

But until just a moment before the President and his White House party drove into the ball park, the mind of Nats' President Clark Griffith was not on baseball . . . despite the fact that 32,000 cash customers were streaming into the stands, the flags waving and the bands blaring.

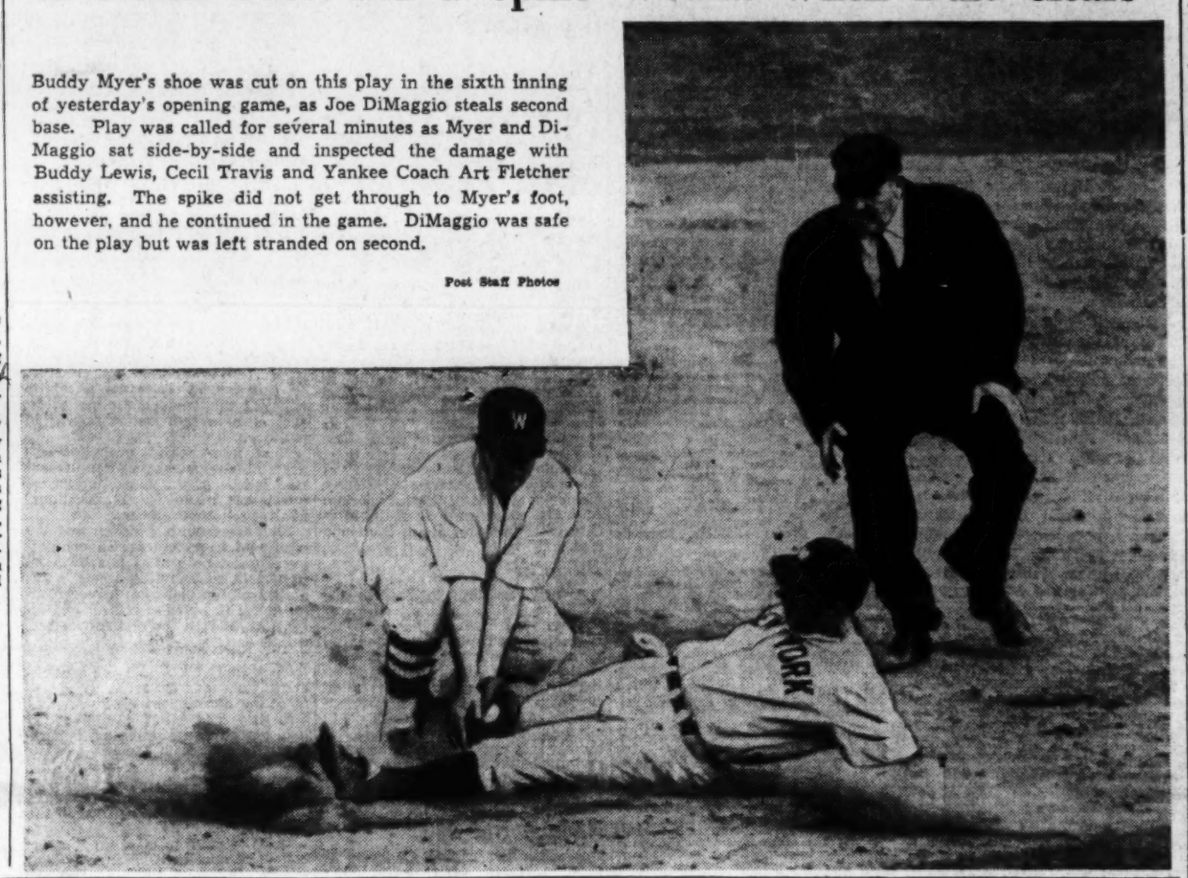

Griff was in conference with Mike Jacobs, New York boxing czar. The Great Mogul of Sock, innocently enough, picked Griffith's busiest day to come to town and dicker with him over rental

A Stolen Base and a Spike Wound When Dust Clears

Buddy Myer's shoe was cut on this play in the sixth inning of yesterday's opening game, as Joe DiMaggio steals second base. Play was called for several minutes as Myer and DiMaggio sat side-by-side and inspected the damage with Buddy Lewis, Cecil Travis and Yankee Coach Art Fletcher assisting. The spike did not get through to Myer's foot, however, and he continued in the game. DiMaggio was safe on the play but was left stranded on second.

Leonard Is Beaten By Russo

Washington Gets Only Three Hits; Error Aids N. Y. In Gaining Lead

By Shirley Povich

President Roosevelt was ceremoniously seated, 32,000 necks were craned to watch his symbolic opening pitch, and then the New York Yankees took over Griffith Stadium's opening-game show yesterday. The Nats were also there. They were licked, 3 to 0.

Specifically, it was a young Yankee named Marius Ugo Russo, who took charge of the ball game. He cracked down on the Nats with a relentless three-hit pitching job. Only once did he permit a Washington player to reach third base. He was throwing an early-inning fast ball and a late-inning curve that extracted all the vigor from the Nats' attack. He pitched one-hit ball after the third inning.

Russo Has Nats' Number

Russo was outpitching Dutch Leonard and the late-inning groans of the 32,000 attested to the apparent hopelessness of the Nats' job against the Yankee left-hander. Leonard was not exactly disgraced. When he left the game at the end of eight innings, he had given up only six hits and one of the Yankee runs was error-tainted.

But it was Russo's day. The 26-year-old Yankee southpaw, starting his third year in the majors, seized grimly his first opening game assignment and when he wasn't baffling the Nats with his pitching, he was grabbing fierce drives into the box and starting fancy double plays—two of them. And he also laid to with his bat, banging a fifth-inning double that produced the second Yankee run.

The 32,000 saw the Yankees sparkle yesterday. They threw up a brilliant defense behind Russo's three-hit pitching and brutally cut down three Washington rallies with double plays. Joe DiMaggio and Second Baseman Joe Gordon raced far out of position to pull in near hits by the Nats, and it was DiMaggio who delivered the longest blow of the game—a first-inning three-bagger that caromed around

Madigama Wins Harford 'Cap at Graw

By Walter Haight

Post Staff Writer

Havre de Grace, Md., April 14.—Youth was served in a thrilling nose finish of the $5,000 added Harford Handicap today as the Brandywine Stable's 3-year-old Madigama defeated Howard Bruce's 8-year-old Jay Jay at the end of 6 furlongs. It was one of the tightest battles in the 29-year history of the sprint. Madigama was stopping and Jay Jay was coming when the camera caught the pair at the wire and not more than the width of two fingers separated them. Hard luck ran with Clyde Tolson, representing E. K. Bryson and carrying the top weight of the party of 120 pounds and he finished in third position, two lengths behind the struggle for the main money.

A crowd of 15,000 holiday fans witnessed the running of the opening-day card here on the banks of the Susquehanna River. Weather that smacked of nearby Delaware Park in July was the order and the track was fast.

Madigama, winner of three of five races in California last winter, was clocked in the excellent time of 1:11 3-5, better than the average for the historic handicap.

Victor Breaks on Top

Jay Jay was seeking his second victory in the Harford, having won the event as a 3-year-old in 1936. He had trouble in last year's running, but today he had no excuses except old age and too much speed on the part of his younger rival. Clyde Tolson had a mishap that cost him a chance to be in the thick of the battle to the wire. Jockey Mannie Berg was forced to pull him up sharply in the opening furlong when he ran into a "blind switch." He rallied but the effort took speed from him and he was a tiring third.

Madigama went to the top in the first jump after Starter Milton sent the field of seven away. Leaving the backstretch, Madigama opened a wide advantage over Equistar and Big Stakes, the latter the lone Kentucky Derby hope in the field. Jay Jay and Clyde Tolson were the ones which showed punch enough to make the early stretch battle interesting. Clyde Tolson, however, weakened and Jay Jay lacked an inch of getting up in time to make it a dead heat. Jockey Nick Wall rode the winner and added the Harford to his long list of stakes victories.

Latins Carry Yank Burden In Victory

By Jack Munhall

The growing Italian domination of the great American pastime of baseball was felt in full force here yesterday when a trio of Latins from Manhattan wrecked the Nats' opener.

Marius Russo, Philip Rizzuto and Joe DiMaggio—those melodious names identify the New York Yankees' Italians who sparked the 3-0 shutout of the Senators.

Russo, a slender left-hander born in Brooklyn and residing in Ozone Park, N. Y., had the Nats whiffing the ozone all afternoon, holding them hitless in six of nine innings and turning in a remarkable performance for a youngster in his first opening-game pitching assignment.

Rizzuto, the squat shortstop from Kansas City who squeezed Frankie Crosetti, one of his countrymen, out of the line-up, proved as good afield as they said he was, though he had no success at the plate. The 5-foot 5-inch youngster, a native of New York City, was the spark of a Yankee infield whose fielding bordered on the sensational. On the few occasions that Russo got himself into trouble it was usually Rizzuto who rescued him with a great play. Twice Phil figured in lightning-quick double plays and his stop and throw on Ben Chapman's sizzling grounder in the seventh was a masterpiece.

DiMaggio, defending American League batting champion, let no grass grow under his spikes before warning all batting rivals that he's again the man to beat. It was DiMag's towering triple to the centerfield corner in the first that sent Tom Henrich across with what proved to be the winnin run of the game. And then in the sixth Joseph breathed life into a New York rally with a tremendous single which moved Henrich from first to third, where he scored on a fly by Charlie Keller, the former Maryland star. Afield, too, DiMaggio still looked like the best in the league as he ghosted back at least 20 yards to take care of a lazy liner by Buddy Lewis in the seventh.

The Yankees of 1941 are a slightly different bunch from the great New York teams of 1938, 1939 and 1940 but their characteristics are the same. Trouping into the dressing room after the game there was no hilarious outburst over scoring an impressive victory to open their fight to dethrone the Detroit Tigers. It was as if they had expected a flawless pitching and fielding performance and enough batting punch to win handily. Russo, who is starting his third season with the club, received an appreciative pat or a quick handshake from most of his mates. Likewise Rizzuto, who with Jerry Priddy were besieged with gifts before the game, was given a few admiring glances, and "Atta-Boy's" but on the whole there was

Leonard Adopts Philosophic Mood After Second Downfall

Knuckle-Ball Artist Bitten by Opening Game Jinx; Had to Change Shoes After First Inning

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Dutch Leonard pitched the last seven innings of his eight-inning turn on the mound yesterday wearing a brand new pair of shoes, sans toeplate. The big Nat hurler was unable to get a good grip with his old spikes in the first inning and he changed between innings.

"I've had trouble getting new shoes this spring, and when they finally came the toeplate was missing," he said, "but I needed a good grip more than a toe plate, so I changed after I couldn't get set in the first inning."

Dutch had no misgivings as he accepted his second opening defeat in a row, without a run for his money either time. "They can't go like that all the time, at least, I hope they can't," he said in the dressing room, "but I sure lose plenty of tough ones."

Jimmy Bloodworth, the scrappy second sacker who was hit in the head with a pitched ball Sunday in Baltimore, dressed for the pregame preliminaries but he changed back into street clothes in the third inning.

He complained of a dizzy feeling when he moved his head to any excess but hoped he'd be back in the ball game in a day or two. "It doesn't hurt but just feels woozy," was the way Jimmy explained it.

Bloodworth confirmed the story of his marriage that leaked out in a Baltimore hospital when he called for his wife while in a dazed condition. A childhood sweetheart, her name was Miss Maurice Norred, of Appalachicola, Fla., Jimmy's home town. They were married February 14, 40 miles from home. Mrs. Bloodworth will join her husband here in a few weeks.

The Washington bench was screaming at the luck of the Yankees through the early innings but when Red Rolfe scooped up George Archie's blow in the seventh with two on base and converted what could have been a triple into an out, they hit the ceiling.

"You lucky bums," was the consensus although a majority of the phrases could hardly be printed here. The bench warmers were moaning when the Nats hit the ball right into the Yankee hands three times for double plays.

Jim Dean and Bucky Harris, who takes every pitch to heart, led the bench chatter although in volume they both fell second to Handsome Fitzgerald, former batting practice catcher. Ben Chapman was plenty sore and grew more so after each out, and took it out verbally on Marius Russo, the Yankee hurler. Steve Sundra didn't let up on his former teammates, and was one of the chief Yankee baiters.

Jake Early, the reserve catcher, will not make the Boston trip with the Nats but will remain here for an eye examination. Early recently took to glasses but is not quite satisfied with the results.

The Nats really gave the bird to Rookie Phil Rizzuto. "Get up off your knees you anteater," one yelled at him. After grounding out to Cecil Travis for the second time, Harris yelled "0 for 2, you'll be out of there tomorrow." Another asked him if he beat those grounders out in Kansas City, and another

Woman's Place In the Home— Of the Nats

By Anne Hagner

Woman's place was in the home of the Washington Nationals at Griffith Stadium yesterday — and many a dinner was late last night as the ladies, bless 'em, made up a healthy portion of the 32,000 who watched the Yankees beat Clark Griffith's boys.

Joe DiMaggio's sizzling catches in centerfield were only lukewarm compared to the temperatures of many spring-suited feminine sports fans who would rather swelter than remove those smooth-fitting new jackets.

What to Wear?

Because opening day at the ball park and Easter Monday coincided, there were more orchids per square yard than Griffith Stadium has seen in many a day, though some had a tough time surviving the premature appearance of midseason weather.

What to wear to a baseball game may seem like no problem at all to the thoroughly initiated, but it does bring about a situation for the lass who is accompanying her favorite fan for the first time. Whether to

227,000 Expected For Openers Today

By Sid Feder

Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, April 14.—Major league baseball opens the 1941 season tomorrow with its fingers crossed.

The shadow of war, with the implication of such allied affairs as the draft and the "fresh" money circulating from the boom in defense industries, has major league moguls lifting the lid on the campaign with emotions running all the way from weary worry to gleeful optimism.

President Roosevelt actually touched off the fireworks today when he tossed his high, hard one to start the New York Yankees and Washington Senators off on the annual one-game "preview" in the National Capital.

Tomorrow all 16 teams swing into action, before an expected total of about 227,000 fans, and the general impression is they'll start the kind of season in which just about anything can happen—and probably will.

In these, the Cincinnati Reds, are favored to come up with their third straight National League flag, while the rebuilt "streamlined" Yankees and the Cleveland Indians figure to fight it out for the junior circuit championship.

The threat of the Army draft, which already has clipped pitcher No. 1, Hugh Mulcahy, from the ranks of the lowly Phillies, hangs over every club. At the moment, the chief immediate blow would be

Jacobs, Griffith Near Agreement on Louis-Buddy Baer Bout

Title Fight Appears Set Here in May

New York Promoter Talks to Griffith About Summer Bout; May Drop Conn Bout

Washington is going to have itself a world's heavyweight championship fight next month—such as it is—if Mike Jacobs, the high potentate of fisticuffs in New York and the several States, has anything to do with it.

Mike came to town yesterday to confer with the District Boxing Commission over the prospect of bringing Joe Louis to the Capital May 23 or 24 against Buddy Baer—Louis to get 40 per cent and Baer 17½ of the net gate.

Although the Boxing Commission listened with not-too-sympathetic ear to Jacobs' plans, the New York fight promoter appeared satisfied after talking with Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats, about rental of the ball park for boxing shows here this summer.

No Contracts Yet

Jacobs denied that a bout this late in the month would interfere with the proposed Billy Conn-Louis fight in June, and scoffed at reports he is seeking to ease Young William out of the picture, believing a summer show involving Louis and Lou Nova would mean more money in ths pocket.

"We're going to put Louis and Baer in here, but there aren't any contracts yet," Jacobs said, reluctant to disclose his plans. "We talked about May 23 and 24, and I'd like to come in here on one of those nights."

Griffith, however, said this would be virtually impossible, since the Nats play at the ball park May 22.

Not Enough Time

"There wouldn't be time enough to install those temporary steel stands in the outfield," Griffith said. "Jacobs wants to come in here with some big time stuff and I'm perfectly willing to give him the park under the terms we talked over today. But it would take two days to put up those stands for the Baer-Louis thing."

Asked if he were granting Jacobs exclusive rights to fight promotion in the ball park this summer, Griffith said he "wouldn't call it that," and then remembered that Promoter Joe Turner has reserved a couple of dates.

"Jacobs is going to bring big time shows here, but he'll have to pick 'em when we're out of town for more than two days at a time," the Nats owner said.

Conn May Be Out

This led to the belief that Jacobs may junk the proposed Billy Conn-Joe Louis June date—despite his denial yesterday at the ball park. Reports have been circulated that Young William will be given the pitch in favor of a summer title fight involving Lou Nova and Louis—a battle Jacobs figures will mean more money in the pocket. The Nats will be hovering around the ball park until May 30, when they play Philadelphia before leaving on a 10-day road trip. This leaves Jacobs the alternative of a Louis-Baer fight here in June, or a Conn-Louis bout elsewhere in June.

He left the impression that the Louis-Bear fight is "in" for the Capital—Conn's June battle notwithstanding.

His store teeth clacking in unconcealed joy at the mention of the $21,000 net gate Baer drew last week in technically knocking out Tony Galento, Jacobs predicted Baer and Louis would draw a $150,000 gate and said he personally believed that the man who first conquers Louis can draw a million dollar gate in a return match.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Whacky Days Are Here Again

The good right arm of the Nation's No. 1 baseball fan, Mr. Big himself, yesterday ended the annual six-month hibernation of that curious knot of harmless whacks who will haunt the country's baseball yards until next October.

CONSIDINE

The whacks we speak of are super-fans. Baseball to them is some form of ritual which stirs them so mightily that they pass beyond the general confines of homo sapiens and become members of another species. You see them for six months only. They crawl back into their cocoon after the World Series and ignore football, boxing, basketball and hockey. They must be saving their voices and strength and passion for the hour when Roosevelt releases them for another six-month period, by the simple process of starting the baseball season with a wobbly pitch from his flag-draped box at Griffith Stadium.

Each town has its super-fan, except perhaps Brooklyn, where they have thousands of them. In some places the super-fan is an out-and-out lunatic. Sometimes he is a henpecked husband who vents his inhibited spleen on rivals and umpires. Sometimes he is a hero worshipper given to foaming at the mouth and muttering mystic things at the side of his flat-browed idol. Sometimes he just likes to yell, and has good lungs. Anyway, the super-fan is always outstanding. He can be blanketed from sight by a crowd of 50,000, but he never loses his identity. That's the supreme test.

They have one of them here. He is an otherwise gentle grocer with a foghorn voice who hates everybody in baseball except Joe Cronin. Everybody else, friend and foe, is singed by the man's inspired venom. Like all thoughtful super-fans, this one takes pride in doing a job well. "I began booing ball players about 1920," he told us once, when we wrote a success story about him. "But I think I probably reached my peak in 1934. That was the year I booed Joe Kuhel when they were carrying him off the field with a broken leg." We left him quietly, while he sat there with memories of his great triumph. We found out later that a couple of generations of ball players have threatened him, but never caused him to waver a bit in his campaign of loud abuse.

Patsy Bounced at President's Request

The Giants have their Jack White, who dies a thousand deaths each afternon in the upperstands, near left field, and who hangs up a sign "No Game Today" in his Fifty-second Street juice joint when the Giants blow another one. Detroit has its Patsy O'Toole, nee something else, who has devoted a lifetime to effacing his self-effacement. He holds up well as a sometimes annoyingly conspicuous super-fan, even though he too reached his peak a few years back, in 1933 at the World Series between the Giants and Senators, Patsy was forcibly removed from his seat behind Roosevelt's box on the general grounds that he was an earspliting pest. It was the proudest moment of his career, he told reporters later.

Cincinnati has an interesting bolt-loose fan who dresses in white from raw April to rawer October, affects a straw hat throughout the season and carries a small pink parasol and a megaphone. We heard him bellow one nonstop sentence for more thn an hour during the last World Series and though we have ears which make walking through doorways an adventure, we couldn't pick up one coherent word he said.

There are many super-fans who deserve mention here, including the one who used to throw a fit during each seventh-inning stretch at the old Braves' ballyard in Boston. But lack of space fortunately permits us to deal with only one more. He is Bruce S. McAllister, who works for the Treasury Department, Bureau of Internal Revenue, in Pittsburgh. We wrote recently that he starts squealing like a thousand stuck pigs from the moment he enters Forbes Field until he leaves, whether there is any reason to squeal or not.

Whacks Still Have Their Good Points

Now we have a note from him which may throw light on him and his kind. Excerpts: "You call it squealing; I call it whooping . . . Among other moguls, Bruce Dudley, president of the Louisville Colonels, thought enough of my antics to pay my round trip railroad fare there to make an appearance last season. The 12,000 crowd out that day was the largest they had in several years . . . I'm fanatical . . . I razz hell out of rivals of the Pirates and get plenty of goats, yet among those I razz the most are many of my friends, including Carl Hubbell, Bill McKechnie, Joe Beggs, Gabby Hartnett, Bill Terry, in fact, every player in the league . . . My voice may carry into the radio microphones so strongly that I become a part of all broadcasts. That's the radio's fault . . . When I go to a game I just let myself go.

"I'm a crazy fan. But, listen, I've given away three pints of blood during the past few years. After every game I go to the Children's Hospital and chew the rag with 17-year-old Jimmie Colton, who has been in an iron lung for two years. I'm the guy who caught 34 balls fouled into the stands at Forbes Field during the past 11 years, got autographs on them and gave them to youngsters and sick people all over the country. Yet I never get any publicity about these things."

You mean until now, Mr. McA. Anyway, here's a wish that your lungs and the lungs of your counterparts hold out. Super-fans are a necessary part of the baseball picture. But one thing worries us, Mr. McA. how did the people who received your blood act after that at ball games?

Giants Blank Army Nine in Exhibition

By the Associated Press

West Point, N. Y., April 14.—The New York Giants, mainly a rookie squad, turned in their annual victory over the Army baseball team today, 9 to 0, as Jim Lynn and George Bausewein blanked the Cadets with three hits.

The Giants scored five of their runs in the seventh inning on home runs by Morrie Arnovich and Buster Maynard, each with a man on base, and one by Jim Gladd with the corners vacant. The nearest Army came to scoring was in the third inning when Catcher Joe Ahern and Pitcher Tom Tarver hit successive singles off Lynn. The next three men were easy outs.

look feminine or be comfortable is the choice she must make—and you'd be amazed at the number of them who prefer the former.

The girl who knows enough about the game to tell her escort where Cecil Travis plays or how many men Dutch Leonard has retired goes in for sturdy sport frocks and low heels, according to an eavesdropping survey made from Mr. Griffith's topmost rafter.

On the other hand, the miss who attends because it's opening day and she'll see a lot of friends will invariably wear a floppy hat, a sheer print and expensive nylon hose that are done practically no good by splinters in some of the stadium's more elderly green chairs.

You'd like the pretty little brunette who said to her friend: "Doesn't that DiMaggio look just like Dick Koons, the orchestra leader?" and you'd sympathize no end with the poor lady who defied the high breezes in the next-to-top row with a wide, wide blue skirt, only to get it caught on an obscure hinge of her chair.

The vehement soul who differed so vocally with most of the umpire's decisions probably wouldn't appeal to you as much as the sweet young thing who was willing to wade through hundreds of people seated in the aisles, just to import soft drinks for her famishing friends.

And pity, too, the middle-aged lady who protested: "But, officer, I must leave before the President does! I'm meeting my husband 10 minutes ago, and he'll be furious."

Best advice to future feminine customers: Wear a mocha-colored skirt that will match the dirt; put a long feather on the bonnet to be distinguishable in the mob that meets its friends "under the big tree" at the entrance—and carry an alpine stick for that long pull to the top of the grandstand. It may come in handy if you want to throw something at an umpire.

Massey Set For Arena Semiwindup

Harvey Massey, well-known New York middleweight, will appear in an eight-round semiwindup on next Monday night's boxing show to be headlined at Turner's Arena by Cocoa Kid, welterweight colored ace, and Joey Sutka, Midwestern champion.

Massey will be making his debut, and Matchmaker Gabe Menendez is seeking El Brookman, former Golden Gloves champion, who has won his last three bouts, as an opponent.

About six months ago Massey defeated Ernie Vigh, outstanding New York fighter, and previously had lost a split decision to Middleweight King Kenny Overlin. He more recently kayoed Johnny Jackson.

Sutka, too, is a new face locally, though he has an impressive string of knockouts and victories. Sutka hails from Detroit.

Matchmaker Menendez is endeavoring to bring in his headliners for workouts Friday and Saturday.

Menendez stated that the town was becoming a beehive for boxing talent. Among those who have taken up residence are Buddy Scott, former George Washington athlete, now weighing 190 pounds, and who has won his last ten fights; Henry Hook, of Indianapolis; Billy Colbert and Dixie Walker, topnotch Southern fighters.

Hudson Pitches Today for Nats In Boston

Into Boston's Fenway Park move the Nats today for the Red Sox's opening game. The Washington team entrained last night, a few hours after their 3-0 defeat by the Yankees in the Griffith Stadium opener.

It will be Sid Hudson on the mound for the Nats today. Jack Wilson, big Boston right-hander who has been the team's most impressive pitcher this spring, will be in the box for the Red Sox. Twenty-five thousand fans are expected to watch the game.

Accompanying the Nats was Second Baseman Jimmy Bloodworth, discharged from a Baltimore hospital yesterday after being struck on the head by a pitched ball on Sunday. Bloodworth, not seriously hurt, complained of no dizziness, and Manager Bucky Harris indicated he would be in the Nats' lineup today.

the angle of the wall in deepest right center and drove in the first Yankee run.

Bareheaded, for the most part, sat the President in the beflagged White House box after lobbing his symbolic first pitch toward the diamond. A new departure marked the pregame ceremonies as Vice President Wallace and Club President Clark Griffith stepped to the front of the Army Band's parade to center field for the flag-raising ceremonies. Players of both teams for the first time did not participate in the parade, but stood at attention on the baselines.

Perfect Afternoon

Save for the calendar and the attendant ceremonies of opening day, it could have been a mid-July afternoon as the Weather Man gave the perfect recipe for a ball game. Coats were doffed and thousands were shirt-sleeved during the warmish afternoon.

The Nats' futility against Russo was completely enduring. In fact, it was Pitcher Leonard who delivered the Nats' only truly rousing blow—a centerfield single in the third inning. Buddy Lewis and Buddy Myer, makers of the only other Washington hits, sent soft ingles into leftfield.

Four times during the ball game the first man to face Rosso reached base, but never did the Nats seriously threaten to avert their shutout ignominy after never failing to score in nay of their 24 spring exhibition games.

For little Phil Rizzuto it was a graceful major league debut despite his failure to make a hit in the game. The aKnkees' ingrown little shortstop came up with difficult chances all afternoon and twice figured in the Yankee double plays To give you an idea of the snap and precision of the Yankees' double-play machinery, the three Nats doubled up at first base were the three fastest men on the team—George Case, Ben Chapman and Pinch Hitter Johnny Welaj.

Archie Had Company

Hitless went George Archie, Washington's rookie first baseman, but he had select company in Roger Cramer, Cecil Travis, Ben Chapman and George Case. On the only two occasions when the Nats had two men on base, Archie grounded into side-retiring force plays.

Leonard, almost similarly beaten in last year's opening game when the Nats also failed to get him a run, was damaged chiefly yesterday wheen he resorted to his fast ball after being dissatisfied with his control of his knuckler. It was off Leonard's fast ball that Red Rolfe singled into rightfield with one out in the first inning to set the first Yankee run in motion.

Leonard might have escaped damage in that first inning with better luck. Buddy Myer flipped Tom Henrich's grounder to Cecil Travis at second for a force-play, but in trying for an apparent easy double play, Travis threw the ball into the dirt past Archie and Henrich scampered to third. Then DiMaggio, who happens to be the American League batting champion, demonstrated why. He clouted one of Leonard's fast balls deep into the centerfield corner and when it finished bounding about the fences, Henrich was home and DiMaggio had a triple. The scoring was limited to one run when Keller fouled out.

Cramer Helped

It required a clever catch by Doc Cramer on Red Rolfe's long drive into centerfield before the Yankees were turned back scoreless in the third inning, and in the fourth Cecil Travis raced full tilt across the foul line to catch Keller's windblown pop and halt another threat.

But in the fifth, the bottom of the Yankee batting order put together two well-tagged hits to stir up the Yankees' second run. With one out, Bill Dickey, who was supposed to be in a batting slump, lashed a long double into left center, and with two out Pitcher Russo himself fetched the run home. Russo swung lustily at a three-and-one pitch Leonard was trying to get over the plate, and banged it against the left center wall to get Dickey home.

The Yanks came back for more in the sixth and got one more, with DiMaggio again figuring in the uprising. Henrich singled to right with one out, and DiMaggio moved him to third with a lusty single to left. Keller at this point produced a tolerably long fly to Case which permitted Henrich to score.

Leonard strove mightily to keep the Nats in the ball game before retiring for a pinch hitter after eight innings. He rid himself of the last eight men to face him in order, but he had the help of two spectacular fielding feats by his infielders. On successive plays, Buddy Myer and Travis turned in sensational efforts to keep the Yanks off base in the seventh.

Buddy's Slop Best

Myer's contribution was the fielding feature of the contest. The 37-year-old second baseman went far to his right for a one-hand pickup of Dickey's fierce drive and from far off balance threw Dickey out at first. Umpire Bill McGowan's decision stuck despite Dickey's loud protests. On the next play, it was Travis robbing Rookie Johnny Sturm of a hit. Travis sped into short leftfield and hauled down Sturm's twisting pop fly with his back to the plate.

Ken Chase, who was moved into the game as the Nats' pitcher in the ninth, dispatched the Yankees in one-two-three order.

Back in the first inning, the 32,000 scented the tying run for the Nats when Russo walked George Case, first man to face him, on four pitched balls, but he curbed his wildness immediately. Cramer lined out to centerfield, and then it was that the Yanks summoned the first of their double plays, on a ball hit to Russo by Ben Chapman and handled via Russo, Rizzuto and Sturm.

There was high interest in the proceedings, too, in the second inning when Buddy Lewis led off with a twisting single over Rizzuto's head, but Russo bore down from that point. Lewis moved to second when Russo threw out Travis, and when Myer drew a walk the Yankee pitcher bent again to his task. Archie grounded to Rolfe, who stepped on third for a force play on Lewis, but was wild with a throw to Trum for an attempted double play. However, Rick Rerrell obliged by striking out.

Again on First

For the third consecutive inning, the first man to face Russo reached base, when Dutch Leonard opened the third with a clean single to center, but here again a pesky Yankee double play reared its head to throttle the Nats. George Case made a strong bid for a hit with a hot drive that started through the pitcher's box, but Russo speared it on the bounce in the webbing of his glove and routed a double play through Gordon and Sturm.

Thereafter the Nats were helpless against Russo. They didn't get a man on base through the fourth, fifth and sixth innings. Joe Gordon raced into short right field for a brilliant one-hand catch of Ben Chapman's fly after neither Sturm nor Henrich were able to reach the ball, and that was the Nats' closest approach to a hit from the third to the seventh.

The Nats got a man on base in the seventh, after two were out. Cecil Travis drove a fierce drive through Third Baseman Rolfe's legs and reached first, but he was not credited with a hit. Buddy Myer breathed life into the proceedings at this point when he dumped a single into short left that moved Travis to third, bringing Rookie Archie up and on the spot. As he had done under similar circumstances in the second inning, Archie grounded to Rolfe and into a force play.

There was one last flicked of hope for the 32,000 when Russo walked Ferrell to lead off the eighth, and in this emergency Manager Bucky Harris moved Johnny Welaj into the game as a pinch hitter for Leonard. But the Nats once again encountered a Yankee double play. Welaj grounded to little Rizzuto, who flipped the ball to Gordon at second in the same motion, and Gordon's whistling throw to first beat Welaj to that base.

The Nats couldn't get to first base in the ninth, and it is presumed that everybody left the park.

Georgetown Nine Defeats Syracuse, 8-3, for Third Straight

Bill Wixted, Powers Hurl For Winners

Hank Mylnarski's Homer, Triple, Single Take Stick Honors; Castiglia Homers

Big Bill Wixted settled down after a bad first inning yesterday to pitch Georgetown University's undefeated baseball team to an 8-3 victory over Syracuse at the Hilltop.

Wild at the start, the 6-foot 4-inch Wixted walked in two Orange runs in the opening frame, but then hurled five shutout innings before turning over the mound duties to Vin Powers in the eighth. Powers allowed one run in the last two innings.

Georgetown, led by Shortstop Hank Mylnarski, who socked a homer, triple and single in five trips, was winning its third straight victory, all in impressive style. The visiting Orange who showed strength in blanking Navy, 8-0, Saturday, were never in the game after the fifth in which the Hoyas bunched hits for five runs.

Catcher Jim Castiglia homered for the Hoyas and added a single to emerge as one of the batting stars.

Maryland Host To Syracuse Today

Syracuse, beaten yesterday by Georgetown for its first defeat in two games against Eastern opposition, tackles Maryland today at 2:30 o'clock at College Park.

The Terps, losers of four of six games, are expected to pitch either Max Hunt or Bill Fulton.

Terp Lacrosse Team Defeats Lions, 12 to 3

Maryland's fast moving lacrosse team scored its fourth straight victory at College Park yesterday in defense of its national collegiate crown by downing Penn State's ten, 12 to 3.

The game was never in doubt after the first quarter as the potent Old Liners unleached an attack that netted six goals to the Nittany Lions' one. Jordan Sexton and Milt Vandenberg tossed in two each and Chick Allen and Al Slesinger one apiece in the scoring spree. Jim Ritter made Penn State's loan goal.

Maryland continued to outplay the Lions in the second stanza and piled up a 3-to-1 scorning advantage, with Ray Grelecki registering twice and Al Slesinger once. Charley Lockwood scored for the Lions.

Barlund's Purse Held Up in Chicago

Illinois Body Forfeits His Share of Conn Proceeds for Poor Showing; Suit to Follow

By International News Service

Chicago, April 14.—The Illinois Boxing Commission late today forfeited the purse of Gunnar Barlund for his poor showing against Billy Conn in seven rounds at the Chicago stadium last April 4.

The fine approximated $3,900. Barlund already has received $944 of his purse, and it was believed he would be permitted to retain the advance share.

In addition the commission suspended Paul Damski, Barlund's manager, for one year, thus setting a record for drastic action since its recent reorganization.

The ruling was announced by Chairman Sheldon Clark following a three-hour session. Present at the heading were Barlund, Damski, Commissioners Roy D. Keene and Harry Scranton, Referee Barney Ross, Promoter Billy Rand, Dr. Frank Lagorio and Al Ramo, Barlund's trainer. Attorney General George F. Barrett also sat in with the commission.

Dr. Lagorio testified that the cut over Barlund's eye, given by Manager Damski as the reason for refusing to let his fighter come out for the eighth round, was not serious enough to stop the fight.

An unexpected twist was given when Referee Ross was asked about his statement after the fight that he "might" have stopped the battle in the next round. Ross replied:

"Yes, I might have stopped it—but not because of the cut!"

Bystanders gathered the inference Ross might have called the scrap "no contest" because of the stalling tactics of the fighters, who disappointed a crowd of 16,000.

Damski intimated he would sue the commission for return of the purse, stating he ordered his fighter to quit because further fighting would have been dangerous to his sight.

Lawson Little in Personal Appearance Here Today

National Open Champion Lawson Little will make a personal appearance at the Hecht Co. today for a three-hour program of shot-making demonstrations and questions and answers.

Little will appear at the Sport Shop between 11 a. m. and 2 p. m., continuing his role of good-will man for his sporting goods sponsors and the clubs which bear his name.

to the defending American League Champion Detroit Tigers if their ace clouter, big Hank Greenberg, is summoned.

In Cleveland hopes are high. Last year, the row between the players and Ossie Vitt was blamed for the Tribe's defeat in the pennant chase.

The Yankees are going to have more than a little bit to say. After four straight pennants and world championships, they slid to third last year, and the rebuilding was on over the winter.

The Boston Red Sox still need pitching, and their chances in the current race appear to lie in whether or not they're going to find any from among the throwers they're brought North from their training camp.

Jimmy Dykes and his Chicago White Sox again look like the trouble makers for the first division hopefuls, and should be in there fighting for a first division berth.

Around St. Louis, the folks are high over the chances of the Browns, the only major league club which never has won a pennant.

The Senators and Philadelphia Athletics, as usual, resembles horses carrying too much weight.

Cincinnati is the team to beat in the senior circuit. Although Billy Myers, short-fielder for the 1939 and '40 pennant winning outfits, has been traded off, the Reds' bosses feel they have more than an ample replacement in Eddie Joost. The pitching staff, with Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters remaining as the "bell cows," has been strengthened through the acquisition of moody Monte Pearson from the Yanks.

Berg Leads Asheville Golf

By the Associated Press

Asheville, N. C., April 14 (AP).—Patty Berg, the erstwhile national women's champion from Minneapolis, toured the rolling Biltmore Forest Country Club course in 76, one over women's par, today for a four-stroke lead in the annual Land of the Sky 72-hole medal tournament for women.

In second place was Jane Cothran, the Greenville, S. C., runner-up in the 1940 tournament, who posted a 38-42—80. Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., the defending champion, had a 40-41—81.

Other first division contestants included Helen Dettweiler, Washington, D. C., 41-45—86.

Ackerman Outdoors . . .

From Nag's Head, N. C., yesterday came word of the first catch of channel bass north of Oregon Inlet this year. Capt. Will Lewark, of the Kill Devil Coast Guard station, turned the trick. Local anglers thus may be almost positive of enjoying their favorite sport within two weeks or possibly less, depending upon the speed of the bass' run northward.

Pennsylvania's trout season opens today, and will run until July 31. In preparation, the Fish and Game Commission stocked the streams with 1,200,000 brook, brown and rainbow trout.

Central Nine Gets First Outdoor Drill

The long-postponed opening outdoor practice of Central High's baseball forces, defending interhigh champions, along with a pair of games in the vicinity of Washington today mark the local schoolboy baseball program.

Forced to limit itself to pitch-and-catch drills to date because its diamond is being resurfaced, Central will bring its full strength into the sun for the first time today when players meet at the Ellipse at 11 a. m. Coach Jack Ray has asked all veterans and newcomers to be on hand promptly.

Actual competition for the day will be in Arlington, where Washington-Lee's nine, minus Catcher "Shanty" Shepherd, who was beaned last week, plays host to Fairfax High, and at Annendale, Md., between Calvin Coolidge's first team in history and Briarley Military Academy. Both games will start at 3 p. m.

15 Cities Compete In Gym Events

Teams from at least 14 cities and Washington will compete in the national Y. M. C. A. gymnastic championships at the Central "Y" Saturday afternoon and evening. In addition to the local representative, which finished second in the meet last year, cities to send teams will probably be Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland, Columbus, Philadelphia, New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Newark, Baltimore, Elizabeth, N. J., Germantown and Lancaster, Pa., and Fort Wayne, Ind.

Robert Morris Upsets Favorite in Feature at Jamaica Track

Master Henry 2d; Victor Pays $18.80 As 14,123 Fans See Second Day's Card

By the Associated Press

Jamaica Racetrack, N. Y., April 14.—Robert Morris, a candidate for the Wood Memorial and Kentucky Derby and owned by J. F. Byers of Pittsburgh, and Jockey Alfred Robertson stole the spotlight as the second program of the thriving meeting was offered before 14,123 fans here today.

Mr. Byers' good looking colt drove to a length and a half victory in the Restigouche Purse, a mile and 70 yards test for 3-year-olds, and the veteran Robertson was astride the smart stepping son of Jocopo, thus chalking up his third straight triumph on the card. Bern Stable's Master Henry, the 2-to-1 favorite, was second by two lengths over William Woodward's Bolivar. The victor paid $18.80 and finished in 1:42 4-5.

Today's crowd was well above the attendance of a year ago, when 10,388 were on hand. The wagering went along accordingly.

First Start of '41

It was Robert Morris' first start this year. The colt won one of his four starts last season and $1,150. But he always has been well regarded by his connections and seems a good prospect for 1941 fixtures. Master Henry also was making his 3-year-old debut. All in the field of nine except Choppy Sea and Boston Man were named for the Derby. And all save the latter pair and Bolivar are eligible for the Wood Memorial.

Robert Morris had to be thoroughly game and fit to win. He was among the bunched leaders all the way, worked his way to the front through the last quarter-mile and drew away at the end. Master Henry, Gun Bearer and Sheriff Culkin also figured in the early battle for command. The last two faltered, but Master Henry, possibly a trifle short, managed to hang on well enough to stave off Bolivar. The others were plenty of daylight behind.

Havre de Grace

(Compiled by Walter Haight.)
WEATHER, CLEAR; TRACK, FAST.

FIRST RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 2-year-old maidens. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:14½. Off at 2:14½. Winner, Millsdale Stable's gr. f. (2), by Royal Minstrel—Heedless Gal. Trained by J. M. Hubbell. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:53⅘.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	Start	¼	Stretch	Finish	Straight
MAD BUNNY	(Wall)	118	4	1	1½	1¹	1¹	$1.45
MISS I. Q.	(Haas)	118	2	2	2²	2²	2²	4.40
HORN	(Canning)	113	8	8	4¹½	4³	3³	11.75

MAIDEN FERN	(Shelhamer)	118	7	6	7⁷	8	8	44.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAD BUNNY, $4.90, $3.20, $3.70; MISS I. Q., $4.70, $4.30; HORN, $6.40.

MAD BUNNY, first away, drew clear of MISS I. Q. gradually, opened a good lead in the stretch and was kept to a stout hand drive to the end. MISS I. Q. was away well, ran lapped on MAD BUNNY early and continued gamely under a drive to the finish. HORN went to contention on the outside, lost ground at the final turn and closed resolutely. SIS BAKER was in the thick of early contention, raced on the rail and weakened in the final eighth. ASHAME lacked early speed. ASTROLOGIST weakened gradually. The others were outrun.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:44½. Off at 2:44½. Winner, H. G. Bedwell's blk. h. (8), by Bontonian—Lady Supreme. Trained by H. G. Bedwell. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:49⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOSTON PAL, $4.30, $4.40, $3.00; WEST SEA, $16.40, $6.60; KNOXVILLE, $3.10.

BOSTON PAL, steadied while closest to the pace of BLUE CYCLONE, took command when asked and was kept to a drive to the finish. WEST SEA lacked early speed and was partially blocked while moving between horses on the backstretch, rallied when clear and was closing on the winner. KNOXVILLE was allowed to run on his own courage early and rallied mildly under punishment in the stretch run.

Daily Double, MAD BUNNY and BOSTON PAL, Paid $19.00

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:15. Off at 3:15. Winner, E. K. Bryson's ch. h. (6), by Stimulus—Duchess Lace. Trained by J. Serio, Jr. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:47⅘.

BRILLIANT ONE	(Garner)	113	1	4	8	8	8	8	8	66.45

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STURDY DUKE, $6.80, $3.40, $2.90; NILON, $3.20, $2.60; MOBCAP, $5.30.

STURDY DUKE moved to serious contention gradually, disposed of NILON to take command and won easily. NILON was sent to the top with a bold move on the backstretch, could not resist the winner and was best of the others. MOBCAP, slowest to begin, was hard ridden and made up some ground.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds. The Belair. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:45. Off at 3:45½. Winner, G. C. Greer's blk. c. (3), by Bostonian—Little Lie. Trained by R. B. Archer. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:12⅘.

FANTASTICAL	(Dabson)	113	5	7	9	9	9	9	12.60

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CAPE COD, $11.10, $6.40, $4.50; CIS MARION, $6.10, $5.10; PETE JR., $9.40

CAPE COD assumed command in the opening furlong, drew clear and was kept to a drive to the end. CIS MARION could not keep up early, found racing room on the outside and closed determinedly. PETE JR., slowest to begin, was shut off badly at the far turn, came out and moved up swiftly, but tired in the final 20 yards.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,500. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:17½. Off at 4:17½. Winner, H. G. Bedwell's b. or br. c. (4), by Kanter—Her Grace. Trained by H. G. Bedwell. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 1:45⅘.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Straight
SON ALTESSE	(Berg)	111	7	5	4²	2ns	1½	1²½	1²½	$5.40

SUN TRIAD	(Duncan)	102	4	1	2½	5¹½	7	7	7	19.45

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SON ALTESSE, $12.80, $4.10, $2.90; LITTLE BEANS, $2.90, $2.50; INTERLACE, $3.80.

SON ALTESSE, close up from the start and taken under steadying restraint on the backstretch, disposed of CHARLENE when asked and drew out gradually to win with speed in reserve. LITTLE BEANS, within striking distance from the start, was shut off by the winner when taken up on the inside, came gamely when clear, but weakened suddenly in the closing eighth. INTERLACE went evenly and showed a good effort.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $5,000 added. For 3-year-olds and upward. The Harford Handicap. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:46½. Winner, Brandywine Stable's b. g. (3), by Gino—Sun Dancer. Trained by W. M. Mulholland. Net value to winner, $4,425; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $250. Time, 1:12⅘.

Horses	Jockeys	Wgt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Straight
MADIGAMA	(Wall)	110	6	1	1¹	1³	1¹ⁿ	1ns	$2.35

TROIS PISTOLES	(Canning)	100	1	7	7	7	7	7	72.40

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MADIGAMA, $6.70, $4.40, $2.80; JAY JAY, $5.00, $3.10; CLYDE TOLSON, $2.50.

MADIGAMA, first away, shook off EQUISTAR and BIG STAKES to open a long lead approaching the stretch, saved ground and barely lasted under strong handling. JAY JAY, steadied early, came out for racing room, gained sharply and just failed to get up. CLYDE TOLSON was forced to be pulled up sharply when crowded in the opening furlong, rallied when clear, moved up menacingly and weakened in the closing test.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:14½. Off at 5:14½. Winner, M. J. Myers' b. g. (10), by Blue Pete—Dark Flight. Trained by J. Y. Christmas. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:54.

ANNIKIN	(Claggett)	109	2	7	7¹½	8	8	8	8	46.20

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLACK GROUSE, $3.80, $2.80, $2.40; MEMORY BOOK, $3.60, $2.90; PERLETTE, $3.20.

BLACK GROUSE, rated while closest to the pace of PERLETTE, took command approaching the stretch turn, drew out, but was kept to a drive to stave off the closing bid of MEMORY BOOK. The latter lacked early speed, came to the inside while improving his position, came out in the stretch and was closing on the winner. PERLETTE outran the field in the opening quarter, opened a wide lead and weakened after being displaced.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good for all but White Sand. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:44½. Off at 5:44½. Winner, G. R. Watkins' b. h. (5), by Sir Andrew—Greedy Girl. Trained by R. Nixon. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:44⅘.

†Pulled up.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GREEDAN, $10.50, $3.60, $3.10; OVERSIGHT, $3.00, $2.50; SPIN ON, $5.80.

GREEDAN, close up from the beginning, was hustled through the stretch to gain slowly on OVERSIGHT and, getting to the front of the latter nearing the end, won in a distance, then staged a strong run end, getting through on the inside on the stretch turn, opened up a good lead, but weakened at the finish and was unable to hold the winner. SPIN ON was going steadily at the end.

Selections at Havre de Grace

Dear Al:

Charles Town's summer meeting, which has developed several good 2-year-olds in recent years, may have a graduate in the Preakness this year. The horse is Mrs. Victor P. Noyes' He Rolls, winner of the Arkansas Derby at Oaklawn Park. However, I don't believe Jockey A. Veseli will do the riding. He Rolls, along with Little Beans, King Cole and Omission, is likely to be a supplementary entry for the Preakness. This costs $1,500 and the lists close tonight at midnight. Jockey Buddy Root, who rode well in Cuba last winter, arrived yesterday and went to work galloping horses. He appears to be in excellent condition and will take some mounts before moving to Charles Town. Trainer J. P. Jones tried to tell the boys that the horse he had on the track yesterday morning was Screw Driver. But we just stood around and laughed because the horse was Ocean Blue, the Kentucky Derby candidate. Goldun, winner of the hunt race in Virginia last Saturday, is well known to small track fans. He is in the barn of Capt. Ewart Johnston. Jockey Leon Haas, who will do the riding for C. S. Howard, here and at Pimlico, was called to New York for a meeting of the Jockey Guild. Nothing is too good for the colt, Walter Haight. He is stabled at the top of the stretch and can watch the races. Maybe if he fails to win, we can teach him to call charts. The excellent training conditions available for the past ten days at Pimlico have given the horsemen ample opportunity to improve the condition of their charges. With a portion of James Milton's starting crew on hand each morning, many horses, particularly 2-year-olds, have been schooled in the Puett starting gate. Of those that have been broken away from the post, many displayed sufficient speed to suggest they are ready for the races. A pair of Derby candidates, Hugh Nesbitt's Staretor and Cleaveland Putnam's Swain, arrived at Pimlico Monday from Santa Anita Park along with nine other horses. George H. Strate was in charge of Staretor, an improving 3-year-old obtained during the winter by the Los Angeles sportsman from Foxcatcher Farms, and Jess Durnell looked after Swain and seven others in the shipment. R. H. (Specs) Crawford had two jumpers, Quakerstreet and Playdema, in the same car. The former accounted for the $10,000 Grand National Steeplechase at Agua Caliente and will be pointed for Pimlico engagements. Charles E. Durnell is due to arrive later in the week to assume direction of the horses being looked after by his brother. Swain is expected to start in the Chesapeake Stakes and Strate is hopeful of being able to run Staretor in an overnight event at Havre de Grace before shipping him to Louisville. BILL.

First race—INTRUDING was a winner at Bowie and appears well placed in this field. Comes from the Bryson string and I'm going to string along. PETE'S BET has had poor racing luck on two occasions and will be in the thick of contention. WITNESS STAND won recently but may be overweighted.

Second race—MORSTEP is on the reserve list. This veteran will be hard to beat if placed in action and deserves the call. RAZACLA has been close consistently and needs attention. SCHLEY AL is cheap, but that was a fine try.

Third race — DRIFT ALONG closed like an express train when third at Bowie. Needs only a better timed ride. ROUGH BISCUIT fits nicely with these and should be in the thick of the battle. PIMLICO LADY is speedy and may have to be caught.

Fourth race—The Bryson entry has three chances in this field with JOANNY, LER-LIN and FOLD UNDER named. JOANNY appears to be the best of the lot but also is a doubtful starter. However, I'm going to string along with any part of the entry that goes. BLAHBLAH and REMOLEE meet again. This time the weights say BLAHBLAH will be first to the wire.

Fifth race—GINO BEAU is reported to be a fair sort. I'm tossing out that last. Meets only maidens. TELLEVANE, on the reserve list, raced in good fashion at Bowie and is dangerous. CROISSANT has had several chances.

Sixth race—SWYNSTAN seems to have found the right spot for a crackdown. Gets a modest weight assignment and I'm going to make this one the day's best. BALLOTANT and SILVER ROCKET have good figures and probably will be in the money circle.

Seventh race—AUTUMNQUEST looks like money from home in this field. Gets in with 109 pounds and is as fit as hands make horses. Needs only a ride. BAIN MARIE worked well at Bowie and is dangerous. BLAZING HEAT for the show end.

Eighth race—DR. STICKS was a fast closing second at Bowie and that effort points him out despite the 120-pound package. SEALOCH and MATCH POINT will be factors off their Bowie races.

Best bet—SWYNSTAN.

price of the stadium this summer for boxing shows. For a full half-hour, Griff, Jacobs & Co. haggled over dates, with Jacobs finally picking one late in May for a Joe Louis-Buddy Baer heavyweight title fight.

Strangely enough, Jacobs, who probably has handled more tickets to sports events than any other man alive, couldn't purchase seats to the opener with the New York Yankees. So he rushed off to have a talk with Lieut. Commander Gene Tunney about more fight business.

The customers who turned out to see the Nats try to win their first opening day game since Wes Ferrell beat the Athletics, 12-7, five years ago, were an orderly group. They were a serious, undemonstrative collection of citizens, and the ovation for President Roosevelt was rendered with more restraint this year. There wasn't even the usual scattering of fights among the spectators.

But if they were sobered by thoughts of war abroad, their appetites were unaffected. "Uncle Billy" Smith reported. They consumed 24,000 bottle drinks, 2,000 pounds of hot dogs on 18,000 rolls, and 100 cans of ice cream. In addition to recording the biggest sale of "dogs" and "cokes" in the last five years, the day set a new high for score cards—20,000.

President Roosevelt, deeply tanned but showing the burden of his office, was in high spirits as Vice President Henry Wallace returned from the flag-raising ceremony in centerfield.

"That was a good job, Hank," the President said.) "You put one right over the plate." Hatless Henry just grinned and took his seat in an adjoining box.

Sitting a few boxes away from the man whose ambition is to see the United States become an "arsenal for democracy" were two violent Senate opponents of the recently passed lend-lease bill.

In one box, sitting with his wife, was Senator Gerald Nye. Further on down was Senator Hiram Johnson, who was occupying a box with Dr. W. E. Dandy, of Johns Hopkins Hospital. Nye followed the game with great interest, while Johnson sat grim, teeth tightly clinched on his cigarette holder.

In the wake of the Presidential automobile came a band of Norfolk citizens pushing two baby buggies and carrying a 5-foot horseshoe of jonquils. They were followers of Phil Rizzuto and Jerry Priddy, Yankee rookies who were graduated from the Norfolk club. Led by Ellis Loveless, Mrs. J. M. Gran, Janet Drury and Mrs. Aurelia Terry presented the baby carriages, full of gifts, and the horseshoe to the two rookies.

As the Yankees filed back into the clubhouse after batting practice, they stopped individually to shake the hand of big Dutch Leonard, the Nats' knuckle-ball artist.

"That's fine right now, but those guys are going to be my enemies in just a few minutes," Dutch philosophized.

Incidentally, most of the scribes erred when they penned that yesterday's pitch was President Roosevelt's ninth for the Nats. Actually it was only his eighth. Because of the press of business in 1939—when the Nats opened with the Yankees—the President turned the job over to his sidekick, John Nance Garner, then Vice President.

It was a field day for autograph hounds, with dignitaries from all walks of Capital life on hand to choose from. Billy Richardson, pudgy vice president of the Nats, strove to wrest Jesse Jones, secretary of Commerce and Reconstruction Finance Corporation head, away from a flock of youthful admirers. Jones patiently stopped, scrawled his signature on a grimy book.

little celebration. The players dressed quickly, for there was little time to make their train.

Manager Joe McCarthy was beaming but reluctant, as usual, to make any prediction on the outcome of the league race.

"You win one today, lose one tomorrow," he philosophized. "We'll take 'em one by one and see what happens."

Placed in Class 3-A

Rizzuto, hardly an impressive-looking athlete with his short frame, narrow shoulders and broad beam, is a likable youngster who seems greatly relieved now that the Selective Service officials have placed him in Class 3-A, which defers him indefinitely for dependency.

DiMaggio, too, is temporarily safe from draft, though he said he would not be surprised if he were serving his country next year. Married, DiMaggio is also in Class 3-A.

Rizzuto and Priddy, the shortstop-second base combination that made minor league baseball history with Kansas City for three years, were not forgotten by their friends as they prepared for their first big league game. Before the contest started the two Italians were presented with a large "good luck" wreath of flowers from Newark admirers and also with a flock of gifts, delivered to them in two baby carriages.

Down in the dressing room following the game Rizzuto was still receiving telegrams from admirers. One was from the Holy Name Society in Kansas City. Priddy didn't break into the line-up but a third member of the famed Kansas City infield did, for John Sturm, who was on the last end of many of the Rizzuto-Priddy double plays at Kansas City, was at first base for the Yanks.

Jorgens Wires

Posted on the bulletin board in the Yanks' dressing room was a lone telegram, from Arndt Jorgens, for years an understudy to Bill Dickey. "First opener I've missed in 13 years," read part of the wire.

If you are a keeper of statistics, here are a few opening-game "firsts":

First hit of the season—Rolfe, of New York, in the first.

First run—Henrich, of New York, in the first.

First run batted in—DiMaggio, New York, in the first.

First base on balls—Case, Nats, in the first.

First double play—Rizzuto to Gordon to Sturm in the first.

First strikeout—Russo's whiff of Ferrell in the second.

"Hitler on the run," shouted the newshawk. "Yeah, but who's he chasing?" asked the pessimist.

There was so little applause for President Roosevelt when he entered the ball park that it seemed the fans, after nine years, were getting used to him.

Jannazzo Beats Leto With Left In Split Decision

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, April 14.—Izzy Jannazzo, of New York, recognized in Maryland as the welterweight boxing champion, won a disputed decision tonight from Jimmy Leto, of Hartford, Conn., in a 15-round title fight.

Jannazzo, who gained titular recognition in Maryland by outpointing Kid Cocoa, again used his educated left hand to win a split verdict over Leto.

Referee Charlie Short cast his vote for Leto, but both the judges gave Jannazzo the nod. He was awarded the bout largely on his superior boxing skill.

Both fighters weighed 145½ pounds.

warned him he'd better get a hit or McCarthy'd jerk him out of there tomorrow.

Nick Altrock, the coach-comedian who missed his first opening game in many years, sent a good luck telegram from Sarasota, Fla., where he is still laid up with his broken leg. It was addressed to Bucky Harris and read: "'Best wishes and good luck for the opening game. Give the gang my best wishes. Hope you have a good day, for I sure will be pulling for you." Signed, Nick.

Manager Harris has a baseball phrase for any occasion. When the Yanks scored their second run, Harris greeted the team when it returned to the bench with, "We needed two to win, anyway, boys." He called consolation to Dutch Leonard when the pitcher had two strikes and two balls on Red Rolfe, with two out. "Three deuces never loses," he yelled. Bucky was picking every inning for the big rally and implored Leonard to hold them just one more time. He was bitter about one or two of the umpire's decisions. Bucky wanted to win the first one.

Trainer Mike Martin was taking part in his thirty-ninth opening game. Mike spent a fairly quite afternoon, however, getting excited only when Joe DiMaggio slid into Buddy Myer and put a hole in Myer's shoe. Jimmy Pofahl jumped up and grabbed his glove off the hook, but Buddy jumped up and Jimmy sat down.

As the Nats and Yanks exchanged positions on the field in the pregame practice, most of the older players shook hands or called a greeting. Dutch Leonard greeted a majority of his rivals of the next hour, but when he sat down he said, "That stuff is out when I get out there. I don't know any of 'em and they don't know me." Former Yanks Sundra and Benny Bengough renewed old acquaintances.

Unable to take part in the ceremonies of the Presidential pitch as he had to warm up, Leonard was trying to get someone to handle his movie camera. Andy Farkas, the Redskin back and Nat rooter who sat on the bench, filled the bill.

The Washington dressing room was just a bunch of ball players dressing. Naturally, they were not in a joyful mood but they didn't take it too hard. To a man they dressed and packed quietly for the trip to Boston. Several of the older heads reasoned out the plays that cost the game. Buddy Myer was complimented for his great play on Bill Dickey's grounder in the seventh inning while Leanard was consoled for his losing effort. It might have been August 17.

Monopoly Seen In Aid to New Ocean Airline

Federal subsidy of a new transatlantic air route between New York and Lisbon would give the American Steamship Lines "a practical monopoly of both water transportation and air transportation" over the route, a Senate Appropriations Committee minority report charged yesterday.

The report, signed only by Senatory Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, says the steamship line owns 70 per cent of the stock of the American Export Airlines, and said Lehman Brothers, New York investment bankers, controlled both corporations.

An $800,000 appropriation for the new transatlantic air service was included in the Treasury-Postoffice appropriations bill by a 13-to-12 majority of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

House Disallowed Item

Senate Majority Leader Barkley tentatively planned to call the measure up in the Senate today, but may lay it aside pending the return of Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, who has been ill. McKellar sponsored restoration of $1,216,000 for ocean mail contracts to the appropriation bill, making possible the new line.

Admistration supported, $1,229,000 in estimates originally were submitted by the Budget Bureau, but the House disallowed the item. Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, led an unsuccessful committee fight to keep it out of the Senate bill.

Bailey argued in his report that Pan American Airways, now operating without competition over the air route, "has done its work well" and is prepared to put on at least three additional ships "at a cost of at least $20,000 per trip less than American Export Airlines."

Carries 70% of Mail

The minority report said American Export Steamship Lines is now carrying 70 per cent of the mail over its water route between this country and Lisbon and under the proposed subsidy "would take over probably half of the air-mail business between New York and Lisbon."

"Why," asked the report, "should this Government give the American Export Steamship Lines such a monopoly? Or why should it give such subsidies and such a monopoly to Lehman Bros.? It is a strong banking company and has political connections of great influence. But is not this too much, even so?"

Interregional Road Unit Named

President Roosevelt appointed a national intersectional highway committee yesterday to recommend a limited system of national highways "designed to provide a basis for improved interregional transportation."

In a letter to John M. Carmody, Federal Works administrator, Mr. Roosevelt said that the group, composed of seven men, would serve in an advisory capacity to Carmody.

Those named are:

Thomas H. MacDonald, commissioner of public roads; G. Donald Kennedy, Michigan highway commissioner; Bibb Graves, former Governor of Alabama; C. H. Purcell, California highway engineer; Frederic A. Delano, chairman National Resources Planning Board; Harland Bartholomew, city planner, St. Louis, and Rexford G. Tugwell, chairman New York City Planning Commission.

"Most of the members of this committee have both an extensive knowledge of the program and a sympathetic interest in its solution," Mr. Roosevelt wrote. "It is my hope that our national needs will be paramount in their deliberations and that as a result of their recommendations we can prepare detailed plans and specifications. This will permit us upon the conclusion of our defense program to utilize productively some of the man power and industrial capacity then available to construct a national system of interregional highways."

At the same time the Alaskan International Highway Commission decided to urge the War and State Departments to take immediate steps to expedite construction of a $25,000,000 road from the United States through Canada to Alaska.

Gov. Ernest H. Gruening of Alaska, member of the commission, told the other members that if an emergency arose requiring other use of steamers now serving the Territory there would be no means of supplying the great Army and Navy bases there.

The commission members—Representative Magnuson (Democrat), Washington, chairman; Gruening, Thomas Riggs, of New York, and Donald McDonald, of Fairbanks, Alaska—decided to ask the State Department to expedite negotiations for a treaty with Canada for the joint construction of the road and to ask the War Department to use its influence to get funs to permit early start of construction.

First Colony Plans 104 Apartments

Building Inspector A. R. Lash announced yesterday he had issued a permit for a $200,000 development, to provide for 104 apartments in the block bounded by St. Asaph, Green, Jefferson and Pitt Streets, Alexandria. Construction will begin in the near future.

The apartments are to be built by the First Colony Corporation, which has submitted plans for construction of 13 buildings, each having eight family units. The two-story structures are to be Colonial in design.

Local Drama Clubs Plan To Divert the Soldiery

Men in Uniform to Be Guests at Plays; Mr. Coburn Explains What He's Shooting At; This, That and the Other About the Theater

AN IMPORTANT MEETING will be held tonight at 7:30 in the Thomson School, Twelfth and L Streets Northwest. The conference will be among representatives of District drama groups and the District Defense Council, for the purpose of furthering plans for providing stage entertainment for men in uniform.

BELL

It is the tentative thought of those primarily interested that plays be given to which members of the uniformed forces of the United States will be admitted free of charge, with the civilian populace paying public unwrapping a small fee at the ticket wicket. Two local groups already have fallen in with the scheme and have definite plans to carry it into effect.

The first gesture in behalf of the potential army that has leaped to camp in the hour of National emergency will be in Harding Hall on Friday night of this week, when the G. P. O. Players will revive "Rollo's Wild Oat," under the veteran direction of George Vivian, one of the pioneers of the theater. Men in uniform are invited to attend as guests. For the rest of us, 35 cents is the nominal charge.

On Thursday and Friday of next week, April 24 and 25, the Census Bureau Drama Club will launch a similar enterprise in Jefferson School, with their presentation of a three-act comedy by Ed C. Scribner, bearing the Gelett Burgessian title of "The Smiling Cow"—although, of course, the one Burgess had never seen was purple. Ruby Allen will direct this bovine number.

All this, needless to say, is an admirable undertaking, founded on high patriotism and a willingness to serve the Man with the Whiskers. It remains only to be seen how the soldiery will react to it.

So they are calling up and stopping me on the street to ask what it is that's the matter with the American theater that Charles Coburn is so concerned about. I thought I had made it clear that it is the appalling shortage of competent players and that this deficiency is due mainly to the fact that there remains no training school from which competent players may spring—not overnight, but eventually. Mr. Coburn put it to this column this way: "Name one American actor who has come up in the past 15 years who could replace Maurice Evans, for example, in either classic or modern drama." We couldn't do it. Then he translated the query into terms of femininity and wanted to know who had come up in the same period to replace Katharine Cornell, Helen Hayes, Lynn Fontanne or Ethel Barrymore. We couldn't do that, either. That is the problem Mr. Coburn is waging a one-man battle to overcome. And I still say more steam to him.

The Tivoli Will Titillate in Technicolor

An Easter, all-star, cartoon program will be presented in the Tivoli Theater, Fourteenth Street and Park Road Northwest, tomorrow morning at 10:30. It will be put on for one performance only. Featured on the bill will be "The Milky Way," the animated short that won the Academy Award; Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Popeye, Porky Pig, Our Gang and other selected short-reels.

The Easter greetings that arrived over the weekend from that incomparable zany, Al Trahan, recently at Loew's Capitol, were both welcome and warming. Despite the fact that Al prostitutes great gifts as a pianist and one of the best of the barytone voices to the ridiculous hilarity of rough-and-tumble—and I mean tumble—low comedy, the fellow, at heart, is one of the gentlest of sentimentalists. I've seen him cry into his beer more than once, and not crocodile tears, either. It's nice to know him.

The "Glorified" to Glorify Gay Garb

Saturday will be "Ziegfeld Girl" day in the Capital. Virginia Cruzon and Myrna Dell, two of the "glorified," will be in town that day to model costumes from the picture—and their own wardrobes—at Hecht's and set off paintings of typical "Ziegfeld Girls" by McClelland Barclay, Neysa McMein, John LaGatta, Gilbert Bundy, James Montgomery Flagg and others of the first-flight artists. Their present tour marks the first time either of the gals ever has been outside of Los Angeles county. Oh, yes, "Ziegfeld Girl," starring Judy Garland, will be coming along to Loew's Palace soon. Maybe the two things hook up.

The executives of "The March of Time" are cocktailing the press at the Carlton tomorrow afternoon from 4:30 to 7, incidental to preview screenings of "Men of the F. B. I.," already celebrated in this space.

In "Theatre," accorded its metropolitan premiere in the National Theater last night, Coauthors W. Somerset Maugham and Guy Bolton and Producer John Golden have retuned old strings to play a rousing salute to the courage, the romanticism and the spirit of the stage and its people.

It will be charged, of course, that the warp and woof of this new drama of the playhouse, dramatized from Mr. Maugham's novel of the same name, is threaded with faint colorings of earlier footlight fables that have preceded it to the boards. "Declasse," "Encore," "Romance" and numerous other previous productions of note will be cited as precursors of the present work, based upon a comparable, if not identical, theme. But in "Theatre," the first major starring vehicle for Cornelia Otis Skinner there is a substance, a building interest and a devastatingly effective final scene that serve to differentiate it from all the others. While to some the plot may seem trite, to most it will seem true and sufficiently fresh to justify the ten curtain calls accorded it last evening at the conclusion of the seventh and final scene of its three acts.

Multiplies the Familiar Triangle

This latest of the Golden contributions to the better things of the current season's drama expands the familiar triangle into a five-sided design of domestic and romantic conflict. There are the two great stars of the London stage, long divorced but still living ostensibly as man and wife under the same roof; their son, the youthful accountant who succumbs reluctantly, but in time completely, to the fascination of Julia Lamert, and the millionairess backer of the theatrical enterprises of the estranged Gosselyns who, at the instigation of Julia, sets her cap, as the saying goes, for the philandering Darby to Julia's Joan. It is not so familiar a formula as it sounds as the Messrs. Maugham and Bolton have transposed the Maugham fiction from book covers to the broad arch of the proscenium.

There are quirks in the working out of the stage story that lend "Theatre" a quality of sturdiness that will wholly submerge any first impressions that here is an old dish merely warmed over. The piece has been written with all of the zest, the sprightly dialogue, the occasional bursts of profanity and the utter frankness demanded by present-day audiences. It fairly bristles with smart lines. Some of them seem to have been borrowed from plays that were here not so long ago, but this is an oversight of the playwrights that assuredly will be promptly corrected.

It also is true that the three acts stand in need of judicious pruning to obviate infrequent lags in the briskness of both speech and action, but that, likewise, is a matter that the blue pencil will correct probably before these lines are seen in print.

"Show People" Are "Show People"

The gist of the whole thing is that "show people" are "show people" and never can be anything else, and that even an interrupted love can be renewed once the contracting parties find themselves and stop all that foolishness about platonic friendships, indifference to intrusions and the petty intrigues of "little people" not their equals. The point of the engaging business is brought off rather well and will be brought off better as the first full week of performances wends its way in the direction of an assured popular success.

As we have said, both interest and action progress nicely. The first act, last night, impressed the observer as a bit perfunctory and played more or less by rote. We were pretty discouraged about it. Acts two and three, however,—with occasional time out for retardation—picked up so well and ended so ingeniously that all earlier fears were swished into oblivion by the capacity audience's storm of applause after it all was over. That end of the play, by the way, is such that Miss Skinner makes her final exit through the front of the house in which she has just achieved an acting triumph. Last night that was the National. Her exit was down the steps into the right aisle and out through the lobby.

Principals Register Soundly

Cornelia Otis Skinner, in the role of the great actress, Julia Lambert, it must be confessed, has not as yet completely encompassed the part. Her performance was letter-perfect last evening, but still lacking in that warmth, humanness and perfect timing that can come only with familiarity with the character bred of more than three previous performances. She is, as always, poised, charming and authoritative—and will be more so as time goes on. Arthur Margetson, as her unestranged estranged husband, Michael Gosselyn, is altogether admirable—save possibly in the remarkable rapidity with which he recovers from a terrific binge in the last act—and Viola Roache acquits herself in high feather as Evie. Miss Lambert's widely privileged maid. Carl Harbord is the interloping Tom Fennell in the case and somehow always brings up memories of Bramwell Fletcher. Frederick Bradlee is juvenilely excellent as the son and Margaret Bannerman plays the role of the poaching backer with adequacy, but no traces of brilliance. One seems to think of Lily Cahill in this connection.

The remainder of the cast is such as to give Mr. Golden confidence that his newest play will not suffer from the performances of what usually are denominated the "minor" roles.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, April 14 (INS).—Over the weekend Darryl Zanuck made up his mind about the first Hollywood picture for the most attractive Jean Gabin. Several months ago Twentieth Century-Fox bought "Moon Tide," a whimsical, romantic novel by William Robertson, which is apparently right up the street of the French star's brand of love-making. In spite of the rain Friday night, Gabin must have gotten a big kick out of the opening of "Pepe Le Moko"—for there was a line a block long in front of the theater. Cobina Wright, jr., and Bob Stack were among the first nighters.

PARSONS

Garbo, the elusive one, hasn't been so elusive that her rides in Hollywoodland with Erich Maria Remarque, famous author, haven't been noted. Garbo and Dr. Gaylord Hauser, food faddist and the only one who was ever able to get her into a cafe, have apparently cooled.

Cecil B. DeMille called off a story conference when Gloria Swanson dropped over to Paramount to talk over the good old days. As La Swanson walked in, looking like a fashion plate in a gray suit and gray hat with peacock feathers, C. B. asked, "Gloria, aren't you superstitious about wearing peacock feathers?" "No," said Gloria, "for when I started at Paramount they were lucky for me." It looks now as if they might again be lucky, for C. B. wants to do a picture with her and Para is talking a two-picture deal.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Took off in a veritable rain storm for Mexico City with Susan Hayward after our broadcast—but what a trip! Tell you lots more about all the excitement tomorrow; Laird Cregar tests tomorrow at Warners for the "Man Who Came to Dinner" role. It's still up in the air about Cary Grant; Helen Vinson narrowly escaped injury when the station wagon she was driving out from the East turned turtle and was completely wrecked. Luckily, Helen and her mother weren't badly hurt and train in within a few days.

Loretta Young, who has been seeing New York, gets back home April 17.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Star Pens Words To Film Melodies

Dennis Morgan takes his singing seriously. When he was told he'd sing in "Kisses for Breakfast," he not only selected the music but also wrote the lyrics.

Morgan's songs were Strauss melodies, tuneful but wordless, until he turned lyricist.

Now, under the titles, "I Would Sing to You" and "A Smile Awakened My Heart," the lyrics have been copyrighted and will be published with release of the film.

In Hollywood With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, April 14.

The research on the life of Belle Starr, which 18-year-old Gene Tierney is playing, is revealing.

HOPPER

Belle was the rough-and-tumble, two-gun frontier woman contemporary of the James boys. Kept her figure streamlined with massage and had her clothes styled in Chicago. Belle was right in there pitching with the old s. a., and stopped as many men's hearts with her smile as with her gun. She once flirted with a married Dallas banker, kept a midnight rendezvous with him at his bank, then relieved him of 30,000 smackers.

Another time, when she was jailed, she eloped with the sheriff, ditched him after they had crossed the State line. Randy Scott and Henry Fonda play her husband and brother in the picture. You'd think it was a set-up for Mae West. But no—little Gene Tierney plays Belle.

When I was in Washington, I had a telegram from her: "Every one who has seen the test seems to think I can do it, which pleases me, because I know I can, even if in reality I'm not that type of gal. I think this is a great opportunity, and I wish, if you felt inclined, you could help me get it. Gratefully, Gene Tierney." Before I could do anything, Gene was already cast for the part.

I always say, them that has grits. And does that apply to our little go-getter, Paulette Goddard, who's buying up houses like mad, decorating them, and either selling or renting them at a terrific profit. Hal Grieve is doing the decorations on her latest purchase, which was the home of Heather Angel and Ralph Forbes, and Harold's nicknamed her "Hetty Green" Goddard.

Incidentally, she's sporting two new Flato necklaces and bracelets which pack 50 pounds of gold in them—while the rest of us content ourselves with a gold filling or two!

That fine actor, Paul Lukas, who hasn't been getting the breaks here, got the best notices of the year from the New York critics for his performance in "Watch on the Rhine." It's a smash hit. His wife, in order to be in New York for the opening, closed their Palm Springs home and Hollywood apartment in 24 hours. Yes, she made it!

Was it business or pleasure that took Norma Shearer twirling with two agents at Ciro's the other night? Incidentally, Norma's blond hair is mighty becoming, and her figure was the envy of all beholders.

Charles Boyer says he's getting one of the greatest thrills of his life playing in "Hold Back the Dawn" because Victor Francen, the great French actor and one of Charles' boyhood idols, is playing with him for the first time.

The town will be standing in line at the Equire Theater when they unreel "Pepele Moko," with Jean Gabin, and Boyer will be the first to buy a ticket. It was called "Algiers" when he played in it.

"The World's My Oyster," written by Edmund North, kicked around Metro several years. Finally they sent for North to adapt it, but before Metro could get him the draft did.

Short-Term RFC Issues Far Oversold

The Treasury announced yesterday that subscriptions for the $600,000,000 of Reconstruction Finance Corporation notes offered for sale last week totaled $6,206,000,000.

Subscriptions for the ⅞ per cent, 1¼ year RFC notes totaled $2,646,000,000, and subscribers were allotted 12 per cent of what they asked. Subscriptions for the 1⅛ per cent, 2¼ years RFC notes totaled $3,560,000,000 and subscribers were granted 9 per cent of their requests.

The Treasury offered $300,000,000 of each of the two types of notes. The RFC will use the money primarily in connection with its own defense financing, but will reimburse the Treasury to the extent of about $175,000,000 for capital advanced several years ago.

Stock Offering Slated

Offering of a new issue of 50,000 shares of the capital stock ($1 par value) of Heat Elements, Inc., at $6 per share is being made today by MacBride, Miller & Co., Inc., New York, and McKnew & Co., Inc., Washington, an additional 25,000 shares are being reserved for the exercise of stock purchase warrants, and 5,000 more shares will be offered by the underwriters for their own account. The company is engaged in the manufacture of a patented nonluminous electric heating element known as "black heat."

Cottonseed Oil Extends Rise; Wheat Strong

By the Associated Press

Although close Federal scrutiny of prices lent a touch of caution to buying activities in commodity markets, a number of key staples moved up sharply yesterday.

Cottonseed oil extended its wide upturn of the last few weeks, climbing .13 to .18 of a cent a pound in futures dealings. Cotton rose 30 to 90 cents a bale.

Rubber futures, erratic in recent sessions, pushed up around ¼ of a cent a pound. Forward contracts in hides and copper made small gains. Rio and Santos coffee recorded steep declines and domestic sugar futures receded a small fraction.

Chicago wheat was buoyant, closing ⅞ to 1⅛ cent a bushel higher. Corn improved ⅛ to ⅝ of a cent a pound.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot commodities advanced to 81.90 per cent of the 1926 average from 81.85 per cent Saturday.

Week's Steel Rate To Dip to 98%

New York, April 14 (AP).—Steel operations will drop one point to 98.3 per cent of capacity this week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

The decline was due mostly, observers in the steel industry said, to interruptions occasioned by the shortage of coke and other essentials in the manufacturing process brought on by stoppage of work in the soft-coal industry.

A week ago output was at the rate of 99.3 per cent of capacity and a month ago 99.4. Last year it was at 60.9 per cent.

Orange Growers Plan Advertising Drive

Los Angeles, April 14 (AP).—The California Fruit Growers Exchange will place 303,266,000 orange advertisements in American and Canadian newspapers and magazines during its 1941 Valencia advertising campaign, Advertising Manager Russell Z. Eller said today.

The advertisements will appear in 256 daily papers in 185 cities and in 2,606 weeklies. Funds for the campaign were derived from an assessment upon exchange members of 7 cents per packed box.

Cotton Futures

New York, April 14 (AP).—A quiet but persistent mill demand and some professional short covering boosted cotton futures for final net gains of 6 to 13 points today.

The list at one time was within 2 to 7 points of seasonal highs. A slight increase in offerings near the close shaded the top figures.

Trading circles heard that some buying of contracts was based on expectation of favorable action on farm legislation this week. Reports that London and Washington were negotiating a United States purchase of a large quantity of Egyptian cotton stirred comment. Some quarters suggested the proposed deal was explained by the shortage of better grade long staple cotton in the delta region of the central belt.

Delivery problems and talk of possible increases in minimum wage limits of textile workers tended to restrict cloth turnover to low figures.

Exports Saturday, nil; season so far, 831,440 bales; port receipts, 12,487; port stocks, 3,390,306.

Cottonseed Oil

New York, April 14 (AP).—The broad buying movement in fats and oils put the cottonseed oil market in the focus of speculative attention again today.

Following a late rally in allied markets, futures moved up 13 to 18 points on a turnover of 306 contracts.

Stimulating the market in the early dealings were weekend reports of large purchases of tallow in Chicago.

Crude cottonseed oil in the Southeast and Valley was 7¾ cents a pound bid, with offerings limited. Late reports said mills were asking 8 cents. A few small lots sold in Texas at 7¾ cents, up .10 of a cent since Thursday.

Closing futures bid prices: May, 8.78; July, 8.84; September, 8.95; October, 8.97.

Bank Loans Up 29 Million During Week

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that a $29,000,000 gain in business loans of banks was the twenty-eighth consecutive rise since the defense program stimulated business financing.

In 101 leading cities, the board said, commercial, industrial and agricultural loans rose $29,000,000 to a total of $5,494,000,000 in the week ended April 9. This figure was $1,101,000,000 larger than a year ago.

Largest increase last week was $11,000,000 in New York City.

The board's 101-city member bank condition statement gave the following summary of assets and liabilities on April 9 together with changes for the week and with the same week last year, in millions of dollars:

	Apr. 9.	Apr. 2.	Apr. 10, 1940.

Wrigley's Donation Of Aluminum Accepted

Chicago, April 14 (AP).—The William Wrigley, Jr., Co. announced today it had sent 500,000 pounds of aluminum ingots to furnaces in Louisville, Ky., to be processed into sheets for the use of airplane manufacturers.

The chewing gum company offered its aluminum supply to the Government last week as a contribution to the national defense effort, and the offer was promptly accepted.

Failures' Total Dips

New York, April 14 (AP).—Business failures in the week ended April 10 numbered 240, compared with 267 in the previous week and 344 in the comparable week of 1940, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Favorable Labor News Rallies Stocks, Offsets Cloudier Outlook in Balkans

New York, April 14.—Stocks rallied irregularly in today's market when favorable labor developments at home helped offset cloudier foreign news.

Leaders dipped fractions to more than a point in the forenoon, many to new lows for the year, as the British position in the Balkans seemed to be growing shakier and the signing of the Japanese-Russian neutrality agreement brought thoughts to financial quarters of further international complications, with the United States, in particular, "on the spot."

Prices began to come back when Bethlehem Steel announced it had granted a 10-cent-per-hour wage raise to some 90,000 employes, and U. S. Steel later followed suit by duplicating the boost for about 240,000 and apparently halting a walkout in this industry which would have seriously hit the defense program.

While steels reversed their downtrend and finished with modest advances, there was no rush for these issues inasmuch as most buyers showed an inclination to await an expected move to raise quotations for finished steel products which some suggested might meet governmental opposition.

Transfers of 458,700 shares compared with 357,30 last Thursday and was expanded to this total by a last-minute sale of 75,000 shares of Commonwealth & Southern at ⅜, off 1-16.

Ending with plus signs after having hit new 1941 bottoms were U. S. Steel Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Crucible Steel, Chrysler, American Telephone, Air Reduction and Loew's.

Retaining improvement were U. S. Rubber, Western Union, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Santa Fe, New York Central, Pullman, Anaconda, General Electric, duPont, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corporation, Philip Morris and J. I. Case.

Behind were General Motors, North American, Kennecott, Montgomery Ward, American Can, American Smelting, Douglas Aircraft and International Harvester.

Considered in boardrooms was a drop of one full point in this week's steel mill operations, due partly to coke shortages, and reports from virtually all sections of the coutry of near-peak Easter shopping records.

Secondary rail bonds stiffened, along with U. S. Governments, commodities did better. Wheat at Chicago was up ⅞ to 1½ cents a bushel and corn ahead ⅛ to ⅜. Cotton was 30 to 65 cents a bale higher.

In a spotty curb gains were held by American Cyanamid "B," Electric Bond & Share, Glen Alden Coal and Republic Aviation. In arrears were Gulf Oil, American Gas, Cities Service preferred, Aluminum of America and Pittsburgh & Lake Erie. The turnover here was around 71,000 shares versus 86,000 in the previous full session.

Textile Makers Seek to Check Rising Prices

New York, April 14 (AP).—Textile manufacturers were reported in trade circles today trying voluntarily to keep prices from advancing so as to avoid compulsary limits, or "ceilings," fixed by Federal defense authorities.

The industry, it was noted, has been having one of the greatest booms in its history as result of combined heavy military and merchant orders.

With mills booked weeks ahead, demand for nearby delivery has found the market susceptible to quick price boosts, it was said. Some mills were reported trying to remedy this condition and hold down prices by refusing to quote and restricting civilian orders.

Basic cotton fabrics were rated at the highest price levels since the big forward buying movement in late 1936 and early 1937.

Grover Whalen Named Chairman of Coty, Inc.

New York, April 14 (AP).—Grover Whalen has been named chairman of the board of Coty, Inc., one of the world's leading perfumeries.

The man who always wears a fresh gardenia in his lapel has had many jobs, public and private. Among them: Official greeter of the City of New York; police commissioner of the City of New York; president of the New York World's Fair Corporation; general manager of John Wanamaker, big department store of New York and Philadelphia, and chairman of Schenley Distillers Corporation.

He has been a director of Coty, Inc., since 1936.

Enlarged New Floor Given Soybean Traders

Chicago, April 14 (AP).—Soybean traders stepped into a new pit on the board of trade today.

Construction of enlarged facilities for transactions in beans futures contracts was made necessary by recent large scale business. Turnover in beans futures in March totaled 65,670,000 bushels compared with 41,974,000 in February and only 9,440,000 bushels a year ago. Since April 1 daily sales have averaged about 4,000,000 bushels.

This is the third time trading facilities have had to be increased since the start of futures dealings in beans several years ago.

Market Waits $900,000,000 In New Issues

By the Associated Press

New York, April 14.—Public utility managers and investment underwriters are working out details for flotation of nearly $500,000,000 in financing when market and other conditions favor theh operations, a survey revealed today.

More than 80 per cent of the total was listed as prospective debt refinancing and a substantial portion of the remainder for refinancing preferred stock.

Raising of additional capital for plant improvements and expansion may send the total to around $1,000,000,000 before tthe end of 1941, it was suggested.

Corporate simplification and revamping of utility systems to conform with SEC requirements under the holdin gcompany act were objectives in proposed financing deals as well as reduction of interest charges.

Listed among prospective financing were: American Telephone & Telegraph, $95,000,000; Associated Gas & Electric, $00,000,000; Cities Service Power & Light, $51,000,000; Columbia Gas & Electric, $10,000,000; Alabama Power Co., $97,000,000; Union Electric Power, $15,000,000; Nevada California Electric, $5,000,000; Philadelphia Co., $60,000,000; Louisville Gas & Electric, $25,000,000.

Sharp Rise Noted In Home Loans

New York, April 14 (AP).—A rise in home ownership during the last six months of 1940 was disclosed today in a report on new mortgage loan activities of Mutual Savings Banks.

The National Association of Mutual Savings Banks reported its member institutions made new mortgage loans amounting to $194,418,757 in the final half of 1940 compared with $165,766,681 in the first six months.

These institutions hold a larger total of mortgage loans than any other group of American banks, the association said.

Lockheed Aircraft Has 25,887 Workers

Burbank, Calif., April 14 (AP).—Lockheed Aircraft Corporation reported today that with its affiliate, Vega Airplane Co., it was the largest employer of manpower used exclusively in the production of airplanes.

The company and its affiliate hired 2,414 men during March to bring the total number of its employes to 25,887.

Lay Brother, Kin Among 32 Inducted

William J. Orlando, 28, a member of the Third Franciscan Order for the last eight years and assistant sacristan of St. Aloysius Church, and his brother, John, 24-year-old electrician's helper, will be among 32 District registrants to be inducted for a year of military training in Richmond this morning.

The brothers, who live at 1499 Saratoga Avenue Northeast, were both drafted and both last night said they are "glad to be able to serve their country."

Today's induction group is the second of daily small units to be sent this week for processing at Camp Lee and probable service at Fort Meade. Thirty-six were inducted yesterday, one of the 37 sent to Richmond failing the physical examination. Groups of 35 registrants, all white, will be sent daily through Saturday to the induction center.

Ten colored replacements from Washington will be inducted today at Baltimore.

After this week, one further induction group will be sent to Richmond this month, 148 white registrants going on April 23. The next unit will be on May 9, when 132 District men are to be inducted. White and colored replacements will be sent as needed, Selective Service headquarters announced.

Meanwhile, another 1,100 Washington registrants will take their physical examinations this week, half of them tonight and half Thursday, in six District hospitals.

White registrants to be inducted today are:

Local Board No. 10—Michael Picciano, Harold Holderness, Joseph H. Carr, William C. McKelvey, William R. Merrian, Eli A. Levine, Andrew P. Freeman, Gerald Bernstein, James A. Compton, jr., Earl D. Wright, Louis Edison, John R. Dietrich.

Board No. 11—Harry E. Barndollar, Emanuel S. Fisher, Whitman C. Kearns, Roy Estep, William H. Corn, Harry Laskin, William Jamieson, Ensor F. Danielson, Charles W. Haas, William E. Hall.

Board No. 21—Laru Strieby, Hugh D. McNeil, John K. O'Hara, Stanley B. Ledford, Aloysius Gainey, jr., Edward M. McManus, William J. Orlando, Joseph Bruno, William M. Winslow, John J. Orlando.

Colored replacements to be inducted in Baltimore this morning are:

Columbus Breswell, Richard D. Wade, Hammie Wiley, Lawrence W. Wallace, Leonard T. Jones, Donald J. Mitchell, Augustus Tucker, John S. Mitchelle, Hiawatha H. Berry and Clarence E. Tuttle.

Polish Folk Dancers

ACCEPT INVITATION HERE—Traditional Polish folk dances, some of them dating back to the fourteenth century, will be presented at the eighth annual National Folk Festival to be staged here May 1, 2 and 3. The dances will be performed by a group of dancers from the League of Polish Women in Chicago, who yesterday accepted an invitation to come to Washington. Helen Muchall, shown in this dance, is leader of the group, which includes six girls and six boys

Funeral Today For Harrell, Insurance Man

Funeral services for John B. Harrell, sr., 74, founder and president of the American Home Mutual Life Insurance Co., will be today at 11 a. m. from the S. H. Hines funeral parlors, Fourteenth and Harvard Streets Northwest, followed by burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery. The Rev. Robin Gould, pastor of the Francis Asbury Methodist Church, will conduct the services.

Harrell, who died yesterday at his home, 3034 Cleveland Avenue Northwest, was born in Suffolk, Va., and came to Washington in 1886 just after being married. Entering the real estate business, in 1908 he formed the American Home Mutual Life Insurance Co. on a modest scale, steering it to a $5,000,000 concern.

Both the Columbia Federal Savings & Loan Association and the American Home Mutual Life Insurance Co., of which he was president and founder, will remain closed until noon today.

Harrell was a member of both the Northeast Citizens Association and the Mount Pleasant Citizens Association and director of the Security Savings & Commercial Bank. He was a member of the Congressional Country Club, the Building and Loan Association League, the Board of Trade and the Francis Asbury Methodist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Laura Thomas Harrell; two sons, Rudolph T. Harrell and C. Gay Harrell; a sister, Mrs. Clarence Camp, of Ocala, Fla., and two brothers, Charles O. Harrell, of Suffolk, Va., and George T. Harrell, of Asheville, N. C. Another son, John B. Harrell, jr., died about a year ago.

Ceremony Set Today at Old D. C. Marker

Ceremonies commemorating the laying of the cornerstone of the original District of Columbia will be conducted in Alexandria this afternoon by Alexandria-Washington Lodge, No. 22, A. F. and A. M., which officiated at the first dedicatory exercises at Jones Point 150 years ago today.

The original marker, situated near the United States Army Signal Station on property now owned by the Government, marked the southeast corner of a 10-mile square which comprised the first Federal district. This land, included in the original district, was returned to Virginia by an act of Congress in 1846.

The original dedicatory program will be reenacted by the Masonic lodge from authentic records which have been obtained by the anniversary committee, and officials of Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia have been invited to attend the program. Among those to whom invitations have been sent are the Governors of Maryland and Virginia, the District Commissioners and the grand masters of the Masonic bodies in each of the three jurisdictions.

Members of the lodge, wearing colonial costumes, will assemble at the Masonic Temple on Cameron Street at 2:30 p. m. and after a brief business meeting will proceed to historic Wise's Tavern, where, according to records of the dedication, the original delegation stopped to drink a toast to the new Federal district. From the tavern, the Masons and their guests will proceed to the scene of the marker, and the reenactment is scheduled to start at about 4 o'clock.

Erdman T. Stulz, worshipful master of the lodge, will represent Dr. Elisha Dick, George Washington's personal physician and then master of the Masonic unit, who laid the cornerstone. A speech delivered by Dr. James Muir, former pastor of the old Presbyterian Meeting House, will be read verbatim by James Sherier, while an address of welcome to the guests will be presented by Mayor William T. Wilkins.

Last Rites Today For Mrs. Lynch, Chemist's Widow

Funeral services for Mrs. Eva F. Lynch, 68, widow of Dr. Robert L. Lynch, former chief chemist of the District, will be held at 2 p. m. today at her home, 2246 North Glebe Road, Lee Heights, Va. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Lynch was born in Washington and educated in the public schools and at Waverly Seminary. She was a past matron of Loyalty Chapter of the Eastern Star. She died Sunday at her home.

Surviving are three sons, R. F. Lynch, of Washington; William U. Lynch, of Arlington, and Robert L. Lynch, of Riverdale, Md.; two daughters, the Misses Margaret E. and Marian V. Lynch, both of Arlington; two brothers, Reuben A. Fowler, of Philadelphia, and Ernest H. Fowler, of Washington, and a sister, Mrs. Pearl F. Shaw, of Navarre, Ohio.

Comdr. Sullivan, World War Hero, To Be Buried Today

Lieut. Comdr. Daniel A. J. Sullivan, 57, holder of a Congressional Medal of Honor for services in the World War, will be buried in Arlington Cemetery this afternoon. He died January 27 at his Mount Vernon, N. Y., residence.

Ceremonies at 2:15 p. m. in Fort Myer Chapel and at the cemetery will be conducted by the Navy Department assisted by the Army and Navy Legion of Valor of the United States, of which Commander Sullivan was a distinguished member.

The commander secured a depth bomb that broke loose on the deck of the converted yacht, Christobal, which was guarding a munitions convoy in May, 1918, and rendered it harmless.

First D. C. Chief Of Women's Labor Law Retires

Mary Louise Simpson, first District administrator of the eight-hour labor law for women, retired yesterday after 27 years at the District Building.

Appointed to District service in 1914 as an inspector in the Health Department, Miss Simpson was charged with enforcement of the working law and general supervision over working conditions for women employes throughout the city.

Administration of the law was transferred to the District Minimum Wage Board in 1938.

Miss Simpson said it was "very difficult" to enforce the law during its first year on the books. Employers, she said, found it hard to adjust their businesses to meet the requirements. Prior to 1914, she added, many women were forced to work ten hours during the daytime and come back again at night.

Miss Simpson lives at 13 Tenth Street Northeast.

Pelley Faces Jail Here Pending Extradition to N. C.

District Attorney Edward M. Curran moved to lodge William Dudley Pelley in jail here yesterday, a few hours after the United States Court of Appeals ordered him sent back to North Carolina for sentence for unlawful stock deals.

Pelley is reported to be in Noblesville, Ind. He has five days to answer Curran's motion to revoke the $5,000 bond posted to secure his appearance here.

Convicted on two counts of unlawful security dealings at Asheville on January 22, 1935, Pelley paid $1,000 fine and was granted probation on a one to two year penitentiary sentence. Judgment on the second count was postponed five years.

ONE OF CHAMBERS' GREATEST VALUES!
SOLID METAL CASKET!
A REAL VALUE

A complete funeral for only $197—including a beautiful, solid metal casket, cars and over 60 items of individual, personalized service. For years Chambers has studied how to give the public finer funerals for less money and this is one of his outstanding accomplishments.

STATEMENT TO THE PUBLIC

In spite of the fact that casket manufacturers now ask considerably higher prices—CHAMBERS continues the low price policy that has already made him one of the Largest Undertakers in the World. Nor is there any sacrifice of quality. In one month Chambers will conduct more services than the average undertaker conducts in two years—absorbing all increased costs by means of his vast purchasing power. You can still get the same services and the same caskets at the same low prices as formerly.

Listen! with Glynn

It will probably be no great surprise to you to hear that the stars of tonight's "First Nighter" drama which you hear over WJSV at 8:30 are to be Barbara Luddy and Les Tremayne.

A real surprise would be the announcement that Miss Luddy and Mr. Tremayne were not to star in the production. For it would be about the first time since November 27, 1930, that the perennial acting pair have not been starred in that hardy perennial of radio dramas which you hear every week at that time.

Which is a way of saying that both actors and series must be pretty good, for each of them has stood the acid tests of time and repetition well over 500 times—and that, my children, is a long time in radio.

Probably if you asked for the formula for "First Nighter's" success there'd be nothing very fancy or mysterious in the answer. Nothing more than good, well-rounded acting and well-written plays week after week. There have been no sensational departures in dramaturgy in the series, no attempts to lure listeners with glittering name stars. And yet "First Nighter" goes on week after week high in the popularity ratings where much more pretentious competitors have fallen by the wayside. No doubt there's a very fine moral to be drawn from all this!

Tonight's play, starring Barbara Luddy and Les Tremayne as we've said, is a little mystery drama neatly titled "Murder on Display."

Weather Conditions

U. S. Dept. of Commerce, Weather Bureau, Washington, Monday, April 14—7:30 P. M.
Forecasts for Tuesday and Wednesday

For the District of Columbia—Fair and continued warm Tuesday; Wednesday showers and thunderstorms and considerably cooler; moderate southwest winds becoming moderate to fresh northwest on Wednesday.

For Maryland—Considerable cloudiness and continued warm Tuesday, followed by local thundershowers in west portion Tuesday afternoon or night; Wednesday showers and thunderstorms and considerably cooler.

For Virginia—Generally fair and continued warm Tuesday; Wednesday showers and thunderstorms and considerably cooler.

Conditions Last 24 Hours

Unseasonably high temperatures were registered this afternoon almost generally east of the Mississippi River due to the continued northward and eastward movement of air of tropical origin between the South- [illegible] inches) at Melbourne, Fla., and the trough of low pressure that extends from Lake Superior southwestward to western Texas, with two centers, Duluth, Minn., 998.6 millibars (29.49 inches), and Alpine, Tex., 1001.0 millibars (29.56 inches). The highest temperature in the United States this afternoon were those registered in the Middle Atlantic States and North Carolina, Philadelphia, Pa., and Raleigh, N. C., reporting 91 degrees, and Greenville, N. C., 92 degrees. At Washington, D. C., the temperature reached 88 degrees. Rather general showers have occurred from western and central Texas northeastward to the Lake region and in New York, New England, the Dakotas and portions of the Rocky Mountain region. Numerous thunderstorms occurred from Texas to Michigan and Wisconsin, while light snow is falling tonight in southeastern Wyoming and northeastern Colorado. Considerably cooler air of Polar origin is moving rapidly southward and southeastward over Minnesota, the Plains States and Wyoming and eastern Colorado, and the highest pressure in this air mass is 1019.0 millibars (30.09 inches), at Casper, Wyo.

Court Powers In Contempt Cases Limited

By John B. Oakes

In a 5-to-3 decision overturning a 23-year old ruling, the Supreme Court yesterday restricted the Federal judiciary in its power to punish individual summarily for criminal contempt.

Speaking for the five-man New Deal majority Justice Douglas held that Federal criminal statutes permit summary citation for contempt only when the offense is committed in actual physical proximity to the courtroom.

His opinion maintained that the "reprehensible" actions which the lower Federal court wrongly sought to punish by contempt proceedings could be properly attacked through the normal processes of trial by jury.

The decision apparently knocks out the possible use of Federal law for the summary punishment of the press for criminal contempt.

The 1918 opion reversed yesterday dealt with a Toledo newspaper, whose conviction for criticising court procedure was sustained, with Justice Holmes and Brandeis dissenting.

Justice Douglas stated that the case decided yesterday "presents the question of presenting a plain misreading of language and history" by the Supreme Court in 1918.

Yesterday's case involved summary citation for contempt of two North Carolinians, R. H. Nye and L. C. Mayers, for inducing W. H. Elmore, of Conway, S. C., to drop a suit against the B. C. Remedy Co. Elmore claimed that the death of his son, James, resulted from the use of a headache powder known as B. C. manufactured by the company; but he asked for dismissal of the suit after, it was alleged, Nye and Mayers had used "liquor and persuasion." The alleged actions took place over 100 miles from Durham, N. C., where the trial court was located.

Takes in Old Law

Although summary punishment for contempt is permissible if the offense occurs in the immediate vicinity of the courtroom, Justice Douglas noted that in this case "the fact that . . . there was an obstruction in the administration of justice did not bring the condemned conduct within the vicinity of the court in any normal meaning of the term."

Justice Stone, on the other hand, joined by Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Roberts, held that the responsibility of departing from long-accepted construction of the law "should be left to the legislative branch of the Government to which it rightfully belongs."

The controversy revolved around a 110-year-old law that allows summary punishment for contempt in case of misbehavior in the presence of the court "or so near thereto as to obstruct the administration of justice."

Since last fall, the Supreme Court has had before it two other important contempt cases, involving Harry Bridges, C. I. O. leader on the West Coast, and the Los Angeles T[illegible]. Their summary citations for contempt were, however, under State law.

NAPC[illegible] in Rail Case

[illegible]-to-4 decision, the court yesterday affirmed a ruling of the Ohio Supreme Court that an injured railroad employe could bring suit in any Federal court within the jurisdiction of which the railroad operates. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad complained that the employe had "conspired with his attorneys" to bring the suit "at a distant point" in order to harass the railroad.

The other 4-to-4 decisions in private litigation brought the total of such split opinions to eight in the last few weeks. An unfilled vacancy in the Supreme Court was caused by retirement February 1 of Justice McReynolds.

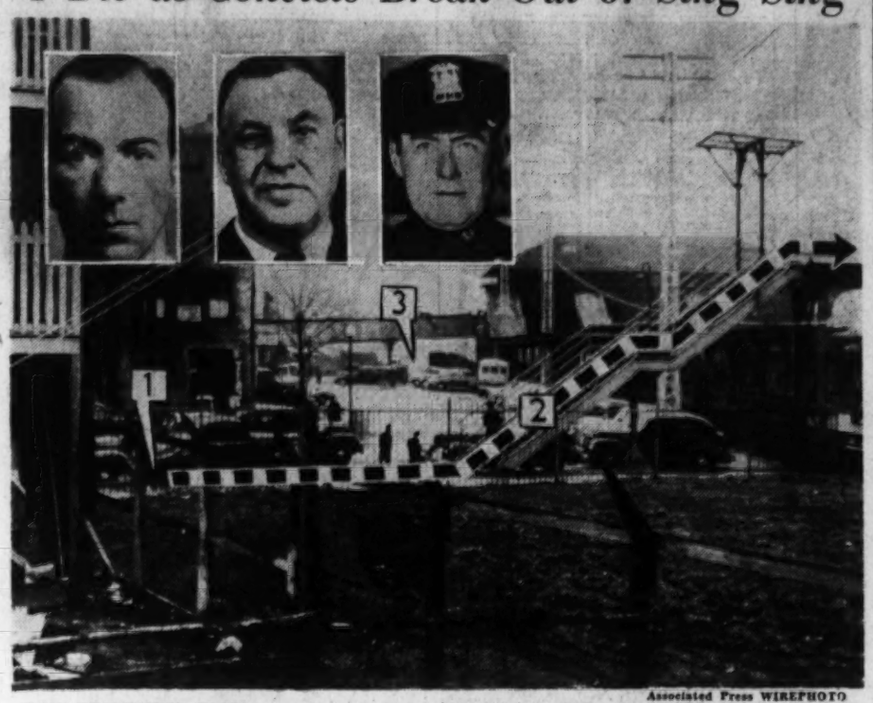

The court yesterday agreed to review a lower court decision continuing until January 1, 1942, a consent decree restraining the Chrysler Corporation from making loans to or acquiring securities of any automobile finance companies.

In a unanimous decision, the court reversed a District court decision that a small operator of an interstate motor carrier route, to whom the requisite certificate of convenience and necessity had been transferred, did not have to obtain approval from the I. C. C.

4 Die as Convicts Break Out of Sing Sing

HOW PRISONERS FLED—A policeman and convict were killed in an Ossining (N. Y.) street (1) in gun fight that followed the escape of three Sing Sing prisoners. The two remaining convicts fled across railroad overpass (2) toward the Hudson River and were later captured. Police found a machine gun in auto parked at (3). Inset—Convict John Waters (left), who was killed; John Hartye (center), Sing Sing guard shot to death; Policeman James Fagan slain during gun battle.

Ossining, N. Y., April 14.—Armed with smuggled guns and crudely-fashioned keys, three desperate, long-term convicts broke from Sing Sing Prison today and after seven drama-packed hours, four persons were dead, including one of the fugitives and the two other felons were captured.

Those taken after a wild dash for freedom—Joseph (Whitey) Riordan, 24, and Charles McGale, 45—were arranged before Police Magistrate Vincent Fuller on two charges each of murder.

The charges involved the slaying of a Sing Sing guard and a city policeman.

Other victims of the abortive prison break were Convict John Waters, 30, shot by Ossining officers, and Convict McGovern Miller, 35, who died of heart disease during the melee inside the prison.

Riordan and Waters gained entrance to the prison hospital at 2 a. m. by feigning illness. There they met their coconspirator, McGale, a trusty. The trio, serving sentences for armed robbery, had plotted for six months to escape.

The three men suddenly whipped out guns smuggled to them previously in a milk truck by outside confederates and killed John Hartye, a prison guard. During the resultant excitement, McGovern Miller, 35, convict receiving treatment for a heart ailment, collapsed and died of shock.

The only other guard on duty in the infirmary, Matteo de Simone, was overpowered, hustled from the infirmary suite to a subbasement and locked up.

Bringing the keys into use the three desperadoes unlocked two barred passageways and crawled through a service tunnel to a railroad siding outside the prison wall.

Barely away from the prison grounds, the convicts met a cruising Ossining police patrol car. The smuggled guns spoke again and were answered by police gun fire.

Waters and Patrolman James Fagan, 32, were killed in the battle. Riordan and McGale fled toward the Hudson River and forced Charles Rohr, jr., a shad fisherman, at gunpoint to row them across the river to the wooded hills on the western shore.

Less than a mile from the shore point from which they had fled after their forced ferry across the river, Riordan and McGale, dazed and apparently bereft of fight, were flushed out by a heavily armed posse.

HERE IS HOW THE PLAN WORKS

The Hecht Co. Is Working Direct With the Originators of the Previous Washington Music Appreciation Offers, Which brought the Symphonic and Operatic Masterpieces to the Public Through The Washington Star.

The Hecht Co. will conduct its Music Appreciation distribution by special and exclusive arrangement with the organization that provided the records for The Washington Star's Music Appreciation campaigns in which tens of thousands of symphonic and operatic records reached the public at amazingly small prices.

The HECHT CO.'s offer will feature the World's Greatest OVERTURES! WALTZES! SYMPHONIC AND CONCERT CLASSICS! RHAPSODIES! SERENADES! SONATAS! SONGS!

WHY THE RECORDS COST SO LITTLE

As in the case of the symphonic and operatic records, neither orchestras nor conductors receive any royalties on the records distributed under these Music Appreciation programs. Instead, they accept merely a single recording fee. The cost is brought still lower by virtue of the fact that the manufacturers of the records have reduced their charges due to the large volume of production. In conducting its own Music Appreciation offer, The Hecht Co. minimizes its customary retail profit on phonograph records.

A WORD ABOUT THE RECORDS THEMSELVES

The records represent an expertly planned collection of the World's Greatest Music. They were originally intended to be sold to the public as a complete unit, in THE MUSIC LOVERS CHEST OF RECORDS.

Copyright, 1941, Music Lovers Chest of Records, Inc.

The Hecht Co. made arrangements whereby you can take only those records you wish—one, or two or any number of the 50 records.

Many families will want the ENTIRE Chest of Records in their homes! Others will want only certain records.

In either event, here is a valuable opportunity to obtain those classic you want, a few at a time, week by week.

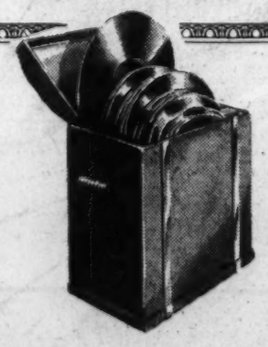

DE LUXE RECORDS ARE AVAILABLE

For those who want the finest, most durable records obtainable from the manufacturers, a quantity of the de luxe records is available at 74c a record. The musical performance is the same and little if any difference can be detected. The sole difference in the de luxe records is in the more expensive ingredients used in making what the manufacturers consider the finest possible playing surface consistent with utmost durability.

The offer began on March 28th with the release of six records: THE BLUE DANUBE; WILLIAM TELL OVERTURE; BEETHOVEN'S MOONLIGHT SONATA; BARBER OF SEVILLE OVERTURE; THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER; SCHUBERT'S AVE MARIA; VICTOR HERBERT'S KISS ME AGAIN.

Each Saturday hereafter, for a period of 10 weeks, four or more records will be released. Watch The Hecht Co. advertisements for news of the current weekly releases. Here is your opportunity, easily and economically to build a record library of the most beautiful music the world has ever known.

Superbly recorded by distinguished symphony orchestras, military bands, concert and chamber groups, string ensembles, soloists and choral groups. Overtures! Waltzes! Rhapsodies! Sonatas! Symphonic and Concert Classics! Ballads! Songs! Spirituals!

You Can Get Your Chest With Any of the Records

The Music Lovers Chest of Records was originally created to sell as a complete unit . . . fifty double-faced 12-inch records, alphabetically arranged in one easy-index case. But by special arrangement with the makers, The Hecht Co. has made it possible for you to buy this magnificent collection ONE AT A TIME . . . or in LIMITED GROUPS . . so that you may select the records of your choice as they are released. The chest is completely indexed . . . and available through this special offering at 69c . . . a simplified and ideal method of keeping your records in perfect condition, and always at your fingertips for quick selection of your favorite musical masterpieces.
